Clean Up Considerable Business And Make Plans For Group Session Friday

At a well-attended meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club last evening in Duffus', the local executive decided to ask for a quadruple schedule when the group convenes Friday in Cobourg to draw up the season's schedule. The Petes will also request Tuesdays and Fridays for home games, opening early in June, and will submit several names of referees from here. The committee to this group meeting will be Bud Fisher, Charlie Carson, Doug Miller, Fred Nelson and George Mein.

Asked to Help

Officers and players are asked to be on hand tonight, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at six at the new field to aid with the work. A resolution of thanks was passed to the city for invaluable assistance given the club in its new project. It was decided to name the coach and the manager at the next meeting, and check upon cost of uniforms.

A Lighting Committee was appointed consisting of Frank Buckland, Fred Nelson, Charlie Carson and Mick Magee. It was reported that work was progressing satisfactorily upon the new box and that the raffle tickets were being sold rapidly. A check will be made on dressing rooms for the new field in the near future. The club promised to sponsor minor lacrosse here this summer. If neither Oshawa or Norwood is represented at the next meeting, Secretary Bill Hall will write the Orillia Terriers to see if they are interested in a game here.

NEW YORK, April 27.— (AP) — Big league scouts are flocking to Winston-Salem, N.C., to watch Archie Templeton mow 'em down for the Methodist children's home team....Archie, 18, has the ivory hunters agog with his strike-out exploits....in 33 innings this season he has fanned 88 batters....Wow!....May be another Bob Feller or another Babe Ruth, for they say he can pour the pine into that leather almost as well as he pitches....Ruth began his baseball career in a home for boys, too.)

Yankees are interested and so are the Cardinals....Our southern operative reported one big league club offered Templeton $10,000 to sign a contract....Another said it would better any bid the kid received by $1,000....One report has it the Cardinals have the inside track and that if Archie hasn't already made up his mind to cast his lot with St. Louis, he will soon. Branch Rickey made a personal visit to Winston-Salem to watch the youngster in action.

No less than five gum shoe men were in the stands the last time Archie did his stuff....Frank Rickey (Branch's brother) Charlie Barrett and Oliver French, president of the Rochester International, represented the Cards....Paul Krichell and Gene McCann were there for the Yankees....They saw the show, all right. Templeton chilled by fanning 15 in a row....Who's going to beat Bucky Jacobs, U. of Richmond pitcher, who has turned in two no-hitters in as many weeks.

One "rookie" who is more than living up to expectations is Burleigh Grimes....He has been kicked out of two ball games in two days.

Queen Alex. Victors In School Softball

Queen Alex opened the School Softball League schedule yesterday afternoon when they took an 18-11 victory over King George on the Q.A. diamond. After seeing an early lead being cut down gradually by the East City squad, the Northerners rallied for five markers in the sixth frame to put the tilt in the bag. Seven of the winners were struck out but they also drew 10 walks. The losers had five sent back on strikes. Some good and bad softball were dished up in this opening number which proved interesting all the way. The teams:

DODGER ROOKIE STRONG HITTER ANOTHER RUTH?

CONFIDENCE NEEDED

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Wally was poring fast balls straight across the dish. The lads like straight, fast balls, and base hits were popping all over the park.

A tall young man, weighing close to 200 pounds, stepped up, whirled his bat in a half circle and put all of his body into a powerful swing. Bang! The ball soared far over the rickety fence in deep right centre field.

Another fast one, this time low, inside. Wham! The ball sailed in a long, graceful arc, 20 feet beyond the wall in right, close to the foul line.

Another Homer

One more, right down the middle. Crack! The ball went like a bullet over the second baseman's head, and just when you though it would fall, it started to climb. The centre fielder merely turned his head and watched it fly over the barrier and drop a good 400 feet from home plate.

Burleigh Grimes frowned. Whenever the manager of the Brooklyn club is pleased, he frowns. Turning to one of the writers nearby, he said: "Ruth never hit 'em any harder than Tom does. He's going to drive in a lot of runs for us with that kind of batting."

The batter was Jack (Long Tom) Winsett, good looking, smiling young man with black hair and brown eyes, 25 years old, from McKenzie, Tenn. He was through with his trick at the plate in a few minutes, and we asked how about it.

"I broke into baseball over at Mobile after I finished high school," said Jack. "Rudy Hulswitt, the scout, was managing the club then, and he helped me a lot. Got me my first chance with the Red Sox six years ago. I didn't make it."

Confidence Needed

Winsett didn't make it, but his debut was dramatic. On opening day in 1931 at Yankee Stadium, he went up as a pinch hitter and hoisted a home run out of the park.

"I wasn't so hot as a fielder then," said Winsett, "though I could run pretty fast. I've been all over the country since then; Buffalo, Nashville, Montreal, Rochester, Columbus. Had to keep my trunk packed all the time."

Manager Grimes says that all that Winsett needs is more confidence in himself. If he had Pepper Martin's disposition, he'd be another Ty Cobb, because he can outrun any of the Dodgers.

TORONTO'S KID LEAFS POUND SYRACUSE 6-3

Lekola And Berly Give Great Display—13 Chiefs' Runners Stranded

FOUR QUEEN CITY ERRORS

(By the Associated Press.)

The International League's "kid" teams, Toronto Maple Leafs and Newark Bears may be short on experience, but they're "long" on the stuff that wins ball games.

The season is less than a week old, but so far the standing shows these two well out in front, each with five straight victories.

The Toronto "kids" made only seven hits off Syracuse flinging but bunched them effectively for three-run rallies in the fourth and seventh innings to beat the Chiefs 6-3. Two experienced Maple Leaf elbowers, Frank Nekola and John Berly, worked so well in the clutches that the Chiefs couldn't win on 13 hits and five Toronto errors.

Marius Russo, one of Newark's rookie pitchers, had some trouble marwing up the Bear's fifth triumph yesterday but his teammates gave him plenty of batting support to defeat Rochester Red Wings 9-7.

The other games yesterday, Buffalo-Baltimore and Montreal-Jersey City, were postponed because of rain and cold.

Outhit, Outfielded.

Howley's hustling youngsters were outhit and outfielded by a wide margin throughout yesterday's game, but they bunched their blows to the best possible advantage, and came out on top behind the effective hurling of John Berly. Berly allowed Mayo Smith's perfect double play grounder to go through his legs, putting runners on first and third. Petoskey popped to Leppert and Smith went to second as Joyner was thrown out, but Jim Walsh fired a single to centre, scoring both runners.

Rookie Porter singled sharply to right to open the seventh, and went to third on Rodier's error of Walsh's grounder. Ross and Heath followed with singles to produce three runs, Ross having gone to second on his blow when the Chiefs attempted to nab Walsh at third.

Syracuse had taken a two-run lead in the third by putting together doubles by Joost and Moser with Gamble's single sandwiched in between. With Joost on third, Gamble on first and one out, Caton lined to Ross, whose throw to first went past Walsh, allowing Joost to score and paving the way for Moser's two-bagger. A good throw would have meant an easy double play.

Cook Stops Rally.

Earl Cook relieved Kolp in the seventh and pitched good ball until he was taken out for a pinch-hitter. He stopped the Toronto rally cold and pitched to only three batters in the eighth, getting two of them on strikes.

Joe Gantenbein got Nekola out of a tough spot in the second, when he took Doc Leggett's grounder and converted it into a double play after Moser had opened the inning with a single. Rodier and Miller followed with safeties, but Kolp struck out.

The home team lost several good scoring chances by their inability to come through in the pinches. They left a total of thirteen runners stranded. The youthful Leafs committed four errors, but when fielding counted, they didn't make any mistakes.

J. G. Barry-Thomas drove his 600-horsepower car "Babs" over the sands at Pendine, Wales, 11 years ago today to shatter all world's records. MARY LOOKS FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

Girl Owner Competes With Earl Sande Coaching Racing Ponies

LOUISVILLE, April 27.—(CP)—There will be something more at stake than the major portion of a $50,000 purse when No Sir, owned and trained by Mary Hirsch, starts in the Kentucky Derby May 8—victory would make his owner the first woman ever to train a Derby winner.

Women have had their names in Derby history as owners, but Mary more at home in breeks and leather boots, is shooting for a record. Mrs. R. M. Hoots won the Derby in 1934 and was followed by Mrs. J. D. Heris in 1935. Mrs. Payne Whitney in 1931 and Mrs. Dodge Sloan in 1934.

Mary broke into the training game two years ago when the New York Jockey Club granted her a license, the first in turf history to be granted a woman. Max Hirsch, noted trainer objected for a long time but finally gave his daughter permission to train.

It was only a few years ago she started working with horses. Before that she attended a boarding school, but never was really contented. Despite objections by Hirsch, Mary "sort of snuck up on 'em" and remained.

Mary is all for No Sir, a bay colt by Sortie from Ebb, but she isn't overlooking the other entries. The horse to beat, she believes, is Col. E. R. Bradley's Brooklyn.

Earl Sande, the freckle-specked kid who tasted victory in the Derby three times as a jockey, is back. Sande is back as a trainer quite confident Maxwell Howard's Scenesh ifter can collect first money.

Sande, one of few trainers who can get along with Fenelon, is pinning his hopes to the peak of condition Earl believes Fenelon can be in the running, but Scenesh ifter is his pride.

There are only three entries Sande fears. One is Galaun, son of Gallant Fox. His biggest reason for liking Galaun is Gallant Fox. In his last Derby victory, Sande coaxed Gallant Fox home on top. The others he fears are Brooklyn and Pompoon.

Brilliant Play In Polo Match

YANKEES HAMMER ATHLETICS 7 TO 1 TAKE A'S RECORD

Crafty Lazzeri Pulls First Triple Play Of Season In Eighth Inning

BEES TRIM DODGERS 9-5

By Bill Bost
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Once again in first place in the American League, the Yankees already are a step ahead of their blistering 1936 pace.

As they man-handled their way to victory in the junior circuit's pennant race and, subsequently, in the world series last year, the Yanks skipped few teams and individual batting honors.

Talk was all of the prodigious power of murderers' row—Ochrtig, Dimaggio, Selkirk, Powell, Dickey and Co. Little, if any, attention was paid their defensive strength. Yet the Ruppert rifles trailed only the White Sox in fielding efficiency with an average of .973.

Now they have achieved one slippery peak they missed in their record-breaking 1936 climb. For inscribed to their credit is the major league's first triple play of the week-old season. Last season the American League had seven, to tie the all-time record. But the Yanks didn't have one.

Credit for setting the three-ply killing in motion goes to Tony Lazzeri, the crafty veteran from San Francisco whose instinctive agility around his second-base beat more than makes up for his aging legs.

One Of Tony's Neatest

Tough Tony has done a lot of neat jobs for the Yanks, but few neater than the one he pulled off in the eighth inning of yesterday's 7-1 defeat of the Athletics. That defeat shoved the A's out of the lead and moved the champions into it.

With runners on first and second, Chubby Dean drove one of Johnny Broaca's offerings straight at Lazzeri. It would have been simple for Tony to play it safe. Instead Tony elected to gamble, trapped the ball, then flipped it to shortstop Frank Crosetti, his fellow San Franciscan.

Before the A's or the frost-bitten customers knew what it was all about, Bob Johnson had been forced at second, Dean was thrown out at first and Wally Moses was tagged by Red Rolfe as he came into third.

Though the weather man washed out all but three games, those three provided enough excitement to go around. Boston Bees' 9-5 trimming of Brooklyn Dodgers was marked by Brooklyn Manager Burleigh Grimes' second consecutive expulsion from the field, bold Burleigh having beefed too strongly at one of Umpire Larry Goetz's decisions.

In Boston, Bossy Boer, 10-year-old Red Sox recruit second baseman from San Diego of the Pacific Coast League, was heaped by Washington's right-hander Ed Linke, in the course of Boston's 12-5 slaughtering of the Senators. Doerr went to a Hub hospital for x-rays and observation.

SUDBURY TAKES INTERNATIONAL HOCKEY TITLE

Tigers Slap Goal In During Overtime After Lively Battle

HASTIE IS THE HERO

Wembley Leads 2-1 At End Of Regulation Time But Canucks Hold Edge On Points

TORONTO, April 27. — Wembley Lions won and lost, and Sudbury Tigers lost and won, as the world's amateur hockey championship series wound to a close last night at the Maple Leaf Gardens. But Sudbury took the title and left Lions only a boat to take when slender George Hastie persisted in front of the English goal, and finally rolled the puck into the corner of the goal past Musgrove after taking a double pass from Jules Chollette and Irwin Chamberlain.

The score came at 14.25 of a sudden-death overtime period, or was it a new game? It sent the 1,845 paid crowd and those others who didn't pay into a cheer for the Canadian and new world champions and then home in the rain, regretful that hockey was through for another season.

Lions Tie Series.

Wembley were 2 to 1 in the lead at the end of the regulation sixty minutes and earned a 3-3 division in points for the series. That brought on the sudden-death overtime of twenty minutes, or until such a time as a goal was scored.

It was an uneventful start to the overtime that gave promise of the game developing into a long-drawn-out session, and it looked as if more than twenty minutes would be needed to declare a titlist. But it was the dramatic finishing touch from the slim centre, Hastie, the boy they said was too light for pro company, that ended all that.

His teammates were overjoyed, and as Chollette and Chamberlain skated to him and draped fond armclasps around his neck the remainder of the Tigers hurried from all parts of the ice and from the players' bench to extend congratulations. Like the good sports they are, the Wembley players stood in mid ice, sought out each individual Tiger and wished him well. Then they cheered, a farewell to gallant winners from gallant losers, and in effect an adieu to Canadian hockey.

Wembley Player Injured.

Unfortunate was the injury to Des Smith, good-looking Wembley defenceman, in the closing minutes. A stick hit him square in the eye, and he had to leave the ice for repairs. Although he complained of a peculiar spot on the eyeball, the Wembleyites was hopeful the injured optic would be all right.

It was a cleanly played game and for all of the first period and part of the second it was a scrambly sort of pastime. Majority of the plays consisted of shots from the blue lines and close-in plays were for the most part few.

With the championship hanging in the balance the two squads set about to wait for the breaks. The first goal would open things up, the bulldog boys opined, and they had Sudbury at 7-5 favorites. And the first goal went against them to Wembley via Bobby Walton, with Captain Lou Bates assisting. It came about 15.09 of the second period, following a rink-length dash by Bates. His weak shot was stopped by Teno and the rubber came out in front to Walton, who followed in fast and drove a hard shot into an open cage as the Sudbury goaltender lay flat on the ice.

Not content with the one goal, the red-raiders pressed an advantage in the third period after 2.09, and again Captain Bates loomed as the hero, coiling down right wing, cutting around Lavigne and dropping the puck into the corner as Teno moved the wrong way.

Musgrove Fans on Shot

With the two-goal lead, Wembley's chances looked brighter than their flaming sweaters. But the pleasure dulled a lot when Don Orsoso scored an easy goal twenty-two seconds later. It was the only score of the series on which Musgrove looked bad. And he missed this one. Jim Dewey had shot, and the rebound came out to Orsoso. The Count, as he is known to his mates, rapped the puck from about six feet out, and the rubber passed over Musgrove's shoulder as he knelt on the ice and into the goal.

The goaltender took a swipe at the rubber with his gloved hand as it came toward him, but missed. Then he sheepishly pulled the rubber out of the back of his cage.

That ended this low-scoring game but in the closing minutes B.O. (before overtime) had everything that hockey can give you in excitement tumbled out of the bag. In fact, for narrow escapes, the Wembley goal takes the palm for this season, we'd say. Sudbury had so many chances to score that now, when one looks back on the jumbled panorama, it's hard to realize how they missed winning the championship in regulation time.

As we loved you, so we miss you
In our memory you are near.
Loved, remembered, longed for always.
Bringing many a silent tear.
Sadly missed by Wife and Children, Mother and Gerald.

Let us help stock away below normal contracted with reduced purchases of Baby Chicks next season in 1938 even the possibility of a grave egg shortage later in fall. The impression prevails that eggs will be scarce from September to January, and authorities are advising producers to raise every chick they possibly can this spring. Owing to good breeding stock and strong hatches, Hill-Crest can offer you the best Leghorn and New Hampshire Chicks we ever owned. Tell you how to raise them successfully at little higher cost than normal years on the start plan. Let us help you way to share in the higher poultry profits promised for the coming months. Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Col. Alex Lutman—who has a hold over over Stuckey—Jim Asson, an ex-convict, and the lawyer are stopping at the same hotel in Cobenal with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith has persuaded Jacqueline to marry Asson, posing as a wealthy Englishman, unsuspectedly falling in with the plan of the three men to have Asson cultivate the girl, have all of her property assigned to him before their marriage, then splitting up the inheritance before she learns of it. Lutman, as Jim's "trustee", has hurried Jacqueline's decision by revealing a check he cashed for her mother returned marked "insufficient funds". After meeting Jacqueline, Stuckey is more reluctant than ever to go through with the scheme and finds telling them all the property deed must be signed in London. Back in London Charles leaves Lutman in his office while he goes after Jim Asson. Mrs. Smith and Jacqueline arrive at Stuckey's office to sign the deed. Jacqueline insists on a conference alone with Charles before signing the deed. Jacqueline signs the deed but later Charles tells Lutman she signed in the wrong place and that he will have to prepare another, perhaps delaying the wedding. Finding Charles opposing the marriage, Lutman suggests that Charles himself marry her instead of Jim, but he refuses. Meanwhile Elsie Harringay, Stuckey's stenographer, proposes a private chat with Jacqueline.

CHAPTER 28

JACQUELINE and the typist walked, without exchanging a word along the street until Miss Harringay turned into a small cafe and there seated herself at a marble-topped table. She ordered two coffees and sat frowning and drumming the table with her fingers until the coffee was brought.

"Listen," she said suddenly. "You're going to marry Jim Asson, aren't you?"

Jacqueline's frown matched Miss Harringay's.

"And what has that to do with you?" she asked.

"What's it got to do with me? I like that. Ask Jim Asson what it's got to do with me and he'll tell you, won't he? I don't think! He'll lie to you, that's all he'll do—say he's never heard of me. But don't you believe it. Jim Asson's heard of me all right—long before he'd ever heard of you. You're an afterthought, that's what you are."

"Suppose you tell me what you have to tell me," said Jacqueline, "and get it over."

"All right, I will. Jim Asson's mine, do you hear? He's mine, and I'm not letting you or anyone else have him. Get that clear."

"You seem to forget," said Jacqueline, "that Mr. Asson and I are going to be married."

"Are you?" interrupted Miss Harringay. "Don't be so sure of that. Don't be so sure you'll want to marry him when I've finished. If Jim Asson thinks he can chuck me overboard now—well, he can't. I'll show him he can't. I've been good enough for him all this time until you came along, and when a girl has been good enough for a fellow for three years, she's not going to be left flat if she can help it. Going to marry me, he was. He said so, anyway, and I believed him, and I waited for him, and now he's back he seems to think he can chuck me away and forget all about me. Well, he doesn't get away with that lot."

"All this has nothing to do with me," said Jacqueline. "If what you say is true....."

"It's true all right," interrupted Miss Harringay. "If it wasn't true, why should I be telling you? I've a sense of shame as much as you have, and it's no pleasure to me to tell you things about Jim. But I'm going to tell you. I'm going to tell you what kind of a cheap little rat he is, because, even if it is a cheap little rat, he's mine, and I'm not going to lose him, and the only way to stop you from taking him is to tell you. You won't marry him then, because you don't love him, and I do. What do you know about Jim Asson? What he's told you, I suppose, and I can guess what that is—three cars, a steam yacht, and a nice place in the country, huh?" She gave a hard little laugh. "Yes, he's been staying at his place in the country—been there for two years—while I've been waiting, waiting for him to come back and marry me as he said he would. Did he tell you the name of his place in the country?"

"I don't think he even mentioned a place in the country," said Jacqueline. "He certainly did tell me that he had a couple of cars."

"Well, I'll tell you," said Miss Harringay. "Charming place it is—in Devon—beautiful scenery. I believe Dartmoor is its name. Yes, the prison. The only trouble about that place in the country is that once you get inside you can't get out until your time's up."

For some moments Jacqueline said nothing. She was surprised to find that what Miss Harringay had just told her had not really astonished her in the least. But where did Charles come in? How much did Charles know about Jim Asson? Was it because he knew so much about Jim Asson that he had been reluctant to let her sign that deed this morning?

"Dartmoor!" repeated Miss Harringay. "That's where he's been—for a stretch of two years. He didn't tell you that. You couldn't expect him to. And it's not the first stretch he's done. If you don't believe me you can go and ask Mr. Stuckey. Or you can ask Colonel Lutman, or you can ask the police. They know Jim Asson all right; they've reason to. And now what are you going to do?"

"I'll tell you what you're not going to do," said Miss Harringay. "I know your sort. You're not going to marry him, and that's all I care about. I don't care what Jim Asson's done, but you do. He may be a cheap little rat, but I love him, and I'll fight to keep him, and I guess I've guessed his pitch this time, and if he kills me for doing it I don't care." She lighted a cigaret and leaned back in her chair. "What are you going to do?" she repeated.

"Do you want to hear any more?" she asked. "Because if that isn't enough there's plenty more I can tell you. I'm not the only one; I don't kid myself about that, and if you'd like to hear a few details..."

Jacqueline made a quick gesture. "Quite," said Miss Harringay. "I thought that would be enough to get on with, but if you want to know any more just drop me a line and I'll be pleased to call and see you. I'm afraid I've upset you, haven't I? But you ought to be grateful to me really. If you'd married Jim Asson, you'd only have found out later and wanted to put your head in a gas oven, and he's not worth that. Not to you. And he's got no money. I suppose you didn't know that?"

"No money?" repeated Jacqueline. "But I thought...."

"You thought what they wanted you to think—Jim Asson, Colonel Lutman, and Mr. Stuckey. They wanted you to think that when you married Jim Asson you'd get $10,000 a year for yourself and $5,000 a year for your mother. Oh, I know all about it; I typed the deed and had a good laugh over it. You can take it from me that if you had married Jim Asson you'd have been lucky to get $7 a week for the housekeeping. Jim hasn't $40 in the world."

"But Colonel Lutman told me..."

"Oh, I can guess what he told you, but it doesn't alter the fact. I don't pretend to know what they're after in trying to marry you to Jim Asson, but they're after something, and if Colonel Lutman and Jim Asson have anything to do with it, you can bet your last dollar it's something dirty. That's all. I'd drink my coffee if I were you, as it's got to be paid for. If there's anything else you want to know, you know where to find me, don't you?"

Mrs. Smith, on her arrival in England, had taken up her residence in a small furnished flat in that part of Pimlico which prefers to be known as Belgravia, and bore the same grudge against it that she had borne the Hotel Waldersteln. She hated it for being so blatantly third-rate.

In the jargon of the estate agent it was a well-furnished self-contained flat in Belgravia, but in the language of anyone less blasé it was the first floor of a house, otherwise let out in single rooms, not far from the Vauxhall Bridge road, with a bathroom shared with other tenants, and furniture which had seen its best days many years before. But Mrs. Smith had consented herself for her present uncongenial surroundings with the assurance that it was only for a week or two, until Jacqueline was married, and she spent her mornings inspecting flats that were really self-contained, really in Belgravia, and really more in keeping with an income of $10,000 a year.

When Jacqueline reached home she found that the well-furnished, self-contained flat was empty, remembered that her mother was lunching with Colonel Lutman, and gave a sigh of relief. She was in no need to face her mother at the moment. She wanted time to think, to sort out the muddled facts of the case, to have some kind of plan which she could present to her mother as a substitute for the future that the latter had so carefully arranged. And there would be not only her mother to deal with; there would be Colonel Lutman and Jim. As likely as not her mother would bring them back with her, and the three of them would make a continued onslaught on her resolution. She wouldn't mind that so much if Charles were there to support her; but Charles would not be there.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FUNNY COMB

"Come out! Come out! Come out!"

At first when Uncle Wiggily heard those words as he hopped up stairs in his hollow stump bungalow, the rabbit gentleman thought it might be one of the Bad Chaps calling to him.

"Come out! Come out! Come out!" he heard again.

Then he knew it was the voice of his little rabbit girl, Jangle. He heard her jumping around her room, while all the other rabbit children were down stairs eating their breakfasts before they went to school.

And when Uncle Wiggily looked in Jangle's room he saw her, partly dressed, skipping around and she seemed to be pulling her fur.

"Why, Jangle, what's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily kindly. "What do you want to come out?"

Bang

"The tangles in my fur," answered the little rabbit girl. "Oh, such tangles as I have! There! There! There!" Suddenly the comb snapped out of her tangled fur and out of her paw and, flying across the room, hit Uncle Wiggily on his pink, twinkling nose.

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" said Jangle. "Poor Daddy!"

"Never mind. It didn't hurt much," said Mr. Longears. "But why is your fur so tangled, my dear, that even the comb jumps out and doesn't seem to want to make you look neat and tidy? Why, Jangle?"

"I guess, Daddy," said Jangle, "it's because I didn't comb out my fur before I went to bed last night."

"Didn't you comb your fur, Jangle?"

"No, Daddy—I— sorter of forgot it."

"That's too bad, Jangle," said her daddy. "You should always go to bed neat and tidy and then, except for what few tangles get in your fur as you sleep, you will be neat and tidy when you awake. But now I must help you get ready for school."

"Do you mean you'll help me comb out my tangles?" asked Jangle.

"Yes," said Mr. Longears. "Your mother and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy are both busy giving the last breakfast to your brothers and sisters. So I must help you with your tangles."

Well, it wasn't as easy as Uncle Wiggily thought it would be. Never had he seen worse tangles in any little rabbit girl's fur. The more he tried to smooth them out with the comb the more it stuck.

Ouch, She Says

"Oh, Daddy! You hurt! You're pulling my fur!" cried Jangle.

"I can't help it. It's your own fault Jangle," said Mr. Longears.

But when Jangle cried again and when he saw how badly tangled her fur was and how the bath room comb wouldn't take them out, he said:

"I must get a different comb, Jangle."

"What kind of a comb, Daddy?"

"Oh, a funny comb that grows in the fields," said the rabbit gentleman. "Wait until I come back."

Uncle Wiggily quickly hopped over the fields. He knew a place where grew the teasel plant. It was like a Scotch thistle bush and had on it, from last year, large round burs with hooked spikes. They were now hard and dried and stiff.

Uncle Wiggily broke off two or three teasels holding them by the dried stems so they wouldn't prick him. Teasels are used in mills to fluff up cloth and sort of take out the tangles. Uncle Wiggily was going to use one of the funny, natural combs on Jangle's fur. But no sooner had he picked the teasels than a voice behind him cried:

"Put up your paws! I have you now!"

Then, if the lead pencil will stop bouncing up and down on its rubber like a ball, the story will be about Uncle Wiggily combing Bobbie.

INTERNATIONAL CIRCUS

Cripps Attacks Government On Coronation Plans.

LONDON, April 27, (AP) — Sir Stafford Cripps, Labor member of Parliament, charged today that "the Tory Government is turning the Coronation into an international circus."

Speaking at an East London political meeting, Sir Stafford declared the city's parks were being ruined by the erection of Coronation grandstands in which "seats are being sold at unheard-of prices."

He expressed pleasure that "many trade unions have refused to purchase tickets on that the Trade Union Council is having no part in them around by advertisement."

IMPROVE GROUNDS IN HASTINGS PARK

Board Prepares Site For Suitable Softball Diamond And Other Sports

HASTINGS, April 27.—The members of Hastings' Park Board are to be highly commended on the improvement made to the local park ground during the past two weeks. Many willing workers have given freely of their time and labor towards levelling and building up the lot making a most suitable place for a softball diamond. Reeve Fairman, Stanley Stevenson (who is so interested in softball) and others on the Board have spent a great deal of time in encouraging and supervising the work all of which has been done with one purpose in view, that of improving the grounds and making a place where the young people of the village can spend many hours of amusement. It is expected that the diamond will be in good shape and that the first game will be played within a week's time. This work which has been done voluntarily on park ground purchased by the Women's Institute, almost three years ago, together with what was done the first year, has made what seemed an impossibility at one time, a place that is presentable and a credit to those who think of the goodwill of the younger generation. The Hastings' Park Board are sponsoring a Premier Talkie show to be held in the Town Hall (tonight) Tuesday evening, April 27th, proceeds in aid of the Park.

A Trip To United States

MRS. JOSEPH HAMILTON, LAKEFIELD

To travel and see all the beforementioned places you may go by Niagara and return via Windsor. However, we have travelled all the routes mentioned, have seen all I have narrated, and found the route I wrote about best for sights and routine. It is certainly worth your while to have the same experiences.

One factor not mentioned before but I'll try to stress these facts. I'm quite fond of good food and particular where I eat, but excluding hotels which are too numerous to mention, and good ones too, if you are out for seeing the food you eat before you get it, do try the wonderful Mills' Restaurants known especially in Cleveland and Columbus. You may get service as you wish just for the asking. Don't fail to try the Isley Dairy Products place and in any city you may find one or several through Pa. and Ohio. You will get your suprises in good, quick lunches, dinners; and talk about ice cream—for amount and quality they are superior.

A Goodwill Tour

Now, we know such a goodwill tour as contemplated or even a casual tourist from here will induce many a visitor never heretofore interested in our country. It may be done through visits to the many lodges, clubs, school organizations, etc., and the friendly spirit, closer relationship, better understanding between countries, and a more ready atmosphere to serve one another cannot be made stronger in many other ways as it could through such a tour. If there ever was a time when the countries should strengthen such friendly relationship along with co-operation now is the time of greatest need. The high officials are visiting and doing outwardly their utmost to strengthen the bond but such as our Peterborough and vicinities tour would interest all classes from different viewpoints. A study of both sides of the border from all angles down to prices on commodities is most fascinating to delve into.

Improve Roads

Now, while they who plan to visit elsewhere we do hope our member of parliament, county, township and Peterborough officials will tour our country roads over which they hope to induce tourists to travel after being invited here. It must be remembered tourists do not come to stay in Peterborough but in the country around our lakes, or rivers, or on lake islands. They travel to Peterborough and surrounding villages to shop after going over these roads. Of course, this is done only a few months in the year. Now, I'll speak only for our own Stony Lake and the road from Lakefield to and beyond Crow's Landing including route to McCraken's Landing. This is done also in the interest of lakes and roads elsewhere in our Kawartha district.

The road connecting the McCracken's Landing with our other much used summer resort Crow's Landing, and the only road our farmers somehow have had their homes here for more than 100 years, is still in such a backward state of building that it is not represented on most of our Ontario road maps—not even on our official government map for 1937. Now, how do you think that would effect our much needed, hoped for tourists? Why let these farmers who use the road 12 months in the year, desperately struggle (at times) to get over such a road to get to your stores to supply you with produce, but more often to spend their money in Peterborough or surrounding villages. You think about attracting the tourist but have you not considered those who live here all their life?

The old adage is "Ask and ye shall receive". Now let each of you do your part in asking and I know our road will be put on our Ontario maps, as it most assuredly should be.

Come out along our road to McCracken's or Crow's Landing and beyond and see what a beautiful drive it could be made with excelling roads.

The officials who we helped to put into office are invited especially to take a nice bumpy ride over this stated Crow's Landing road. See if it, with its dips and dives, many crooks and turns with such views obscurred by unnecessary brush and trees with boulders or holes big or deep enough to stop a steam engine let alone a week car with a fast driver under the steering wheel trying to go the new speed limit of 50 miles an hour while some one of the farmers whose life interests or ancestors have been here for more than 100 years is wrecked when time and space will not permit him to steer his car off in a safe place away from such reckless drivers. I know, but you may not, that we on this route have many farmers who have worked diligently, and with the greatest interests for our government and country for more than one hundred years and have at least 80 cars most of which pay from $7 to $12 license have trailers or trucks and all buy gas, paying a gas tax. They pay their taxes and help in every progressive governmental movement but still, as you can see, use this road as most of it was in horse and buggy days. You can travel thousands of miles and not get on a road like this. There are the many log hauling trucks, many in number that have their living abode elsewhere but use and destroy our road more in one month than our farmers would in 12 months till they get unpassable. One doctor's call would take from $15 to $35 out of a farmer's pocket in 1 hour and it would take the farmer many days to earn it back. What would you think of that, you who call a doctor for every ache or pain. Yet we may do more to deserve good roads than in sections for miles such as we have travelled where the only inhabitant is a wolf or other wild animal of the swamp or forest, or masses of dynamitted rock where no one ever could live. There are many such desolate places here in Canada with excellent roads.

Come out along our road to McCracken's or Crow's Landing and beyond and see what a beautiful drive it could be made into, but now full of mud holes where many a car is stuck. Take notice how all farmers along the way try to do their part to make it an attractive place for others to tour, compare our deciduous and evergreens over the landscapes to be seen, take a trip out on Stony Lake; study the physical features as our lake and bordering banks—some elevated, abrupt, or sloping with all these mentioned features of other lakes. Take a few trips on foot or boat up some of the joining rivers and lakes, and you will find as we have after all our travels that there isn't another lake in Canada or the States that has as many islands which certainly adds to its beauty and as noted for such a variety of trees, moss, wild flowers, animals, birds and access to waters elsewhere as does our own Stony Lake. Yet you will find hundreds who never hear of it. Now, help us to advertise this lake for it is yours as well as ours and certainly well worth every effort to publicize.

Although most all the truck owners who haul logs from or over this road and the pephaline drivers and officials have their living interests elsewhere and not in our roads or country surrounding but use and destroy this road so much we hope you too will try to induce all who do have authority or power of influence in securing enough funds to put this road in a condition suitable to correspond with most all other country roads leading tourists to attract resorts such as Stony Lake affords with all its cottages, hotels and motorboat service for their disposal.

Should Re-Stock Lakes.

Now for the Fish and Game organization and any one who helps to take a musky, bass, etc. out of Stony Lake do all you can to push every man, official, or organization having power or influence to see that our Stony Lake is well replenished with every specie of fish suitable. After having visited several to be had but are you one to sit by and let all other places get their share and Stony Lake be deported.

Get busy and after every source possible to secure the desired and much deserved results. We need and deserve them in the highest limit obtainable. The U.S. has nothing on our country for attractions for tourists. Classify the countries this way: We have that which the U.S. has not and they have that which we have not, except mutual understanding and friendly co-operation to look forward to.

BLACK BEAR SHOT IN BARNYARD RAID

Lindsay Mumby Assisted By Others Shoots Bruin In Bonarlaw District

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, April 27.—A huge black bear, weighing three hundred and seventy-five pounds was shot and killed on SATURDAY evening last by Lindsay Mumby, assisted by his son, Niram Mumby and Messrs. Thomas and Bruce Cassidy. The kill was made on the farm of Mr. Mumby just east of Bonarlaw about ten o'clock at night and was the hoped for result of carefully laid plans to put an end to the marauder which had been bothering Mr. Mumby's sheep and lambs. Although the sheep were fastened in the barn the animal tore boards from the wall and has killed two sheep and six lambs. The visits started on Wednesday night last when it was not certain that the work was that of a bear, but when on Thursday night the lambs were killed and left lying on the floor it was decided to watch for Mr. Bruin. On Friday he made his usual visit but only carried away the carcass of a former kill and was not seen. Saturday night, however, the watchers were rewarded when he came in full view in the bright moonlight when Mr. Cassidy opened fire apparently making a good shot as they state the bear immediately started making a terrible fuss, jumping in every direction and endeavouring to get away. Hiram Mumby, however, immediately got in a few effective shots and being joined by Lindsay Mumby they continued to shoot until the brute was finally overcome.

The carcass was brought to the 12th line farm, where Mr. Mumby resides, strung up in one of the sheds and has been viewed by hundreds of persons of the vicinity.

PRESENT MESSAGE IN UNIQUE FORM

Lakefield Church Service Presented Through Medium Of Religious Drama

LAKEFIELD, April 27.—The evening service at Lakefield United church took on an unusual form on Sunday, when the religious message was presented through the medium of the religious drama, in sharp contrast with the customary method of presenting the message through the spoken word.

The religious drama, which was presented in the Sunday School room, was entitled: "The Finger of God." Rev. O. F. Kelly played the leading role, with Miss Nora Webster and Robert Spence providing the supporting cast.

In an introductory address, Mr. Kelly mentioned that the drama is not by any means a new method of presenting religious truth. This method, he almost said, as old as Christian religion itself, he said, and has an advantage over the spoken word, in that it appeals to the eye as well as the ear.

Special lighting effects added to the impressiveness of the drama which was remarkable for the splendid characterization given by Rev. Kelly, of the main figure in the sketch.

Special musical numbers by members of the choir were presented during the evening.

FIND TOWEL OVER FACE

Autopsy Shatters Belief Victim Died Only As Result Of Fall Down Cellar

WINDSOR, Ont., April 28 (CP)—The death of Ethel Rickert, 22-year-old housekeeper in a Sandwich East Township home, was being investigated by police today with definite suspicions of foul play urging them on. Miss Rickert died in hospital yesterday from what was believed to be a fall in the basement of John Serafin's home. Post mortem examination showed the right side of the skull was pulverized, as if from a blow of terrific force.

In addition to the fractures, there was evidence of bruises on the back of the head and forehead and scratched lacerations on the chest. Dr. Asseline believes head injuries could not have resulted from a fall on the concrete floor of the basement.

Miss Rickert had been in hospital since Tuesday night and never rallied from an unconscious condition. She was discovered by Serafin when he returned from work.

Towel Over Face.

A thick pool of congealed blood remained on the floor to indicate position of the body. Nearby was a blood-soaked towel which Serafin said covered the face of the girl.

Police have a thin piece of metal pipe four feet long as a possible clue to the mystery. It was found to belong to the girl and was last seen lying near the furnace. There was no indication of a struggle.

Doors of the house were always locked, Serafin said, and he had told Miss Rickert on several occasions to keep it locked against intruders.

Serafin plans to bring his wife from Rumania to live with him, and he told newspapermen his son also in Rumania, had recently graduated as a lawyer.

Miss Rickert, he said, was a fine housekeeper, and a quiet girl. She had no male friends that he could recall during the 18 or 20 months she had been in his employ. He believed she visited her parents or her sister here on her two days off a week.

THREE OF QUINTS ADD TO HEIGHT

Yvonne Drops Half Pound She Can Afford While Suffering Cold

CALLANDER, Ont., April 28. (CP) Just a month from their third birthday, the Dionne quintuplets stepped on the scales to-day and laughed up at Dr. Allan Roy DeFoe as he marked up their weights and measured their height.

Three of the quints gained in height during the past month and four of them put on weight. Yvonne had a slight cold for a few days and dropped half a pound but she could well afford it.

Marie, smallest of the quints, produced a tooth, a quarter inch of height and four ounces of weight during the month. She and Yvonne lead the teeth parade, with 17 each now. The others have 16.

The gain brought Marie's height to 34 inches, the same as Emilie's. Cecile gained half an inch to reach 34.124 inches, Annette put on an eighth of an inch to hit 34⅜ and Yvonne remained at 34½.

The body has been taken to Ingersoll where Dr. Macdonald resided and where he had been medical officer of health for many years.

Twelve Doctors Aid In Red Cross Campaign To Avoid Epidemic

LONDON, Ont., April 28 (CP)—Officials moved to check appearance of disease in flood-ridden London today. Flood victims will be inoculated against typhoid fever, announced Col. M. M. Dillon of the Red Cross.

Twelve doctors will assist the Red Cross. They were placed at the society's disposal by the Academy of Medicine. Inoculations will start at two o'clock this afternoon.

"We are trying to discourage these people from going back to their homes until they have been inoculated," said Col. Dillon. "It may be we will have to continue looking after most of them for two or three weeks until their homes are again habitable."

"Inoculations start today and will be free but not compulsory," added the Red Cross official.

Water shortage situation became acute this afternoon as the 6,000 west London flood victims prepared to return to their homes, still mire and mud covered.

"The situation is extremely acute," said E. V. Buchanan, manager of the Public Utilities. "Unless we receive absolute co-operation we may have to discontinue all service this afternoon."

VICTIM OF WRECK SHELBURNE MAN

Papers On Body Of Transient Found In Baggage Car Identify Him

WOODSTOCK, Ont., April 28.—(CP)—Papers on the body of the transient who died in the train accident at Beachville Monday identified him as Harold J. Brett, 29, who worked in a Quebec lumber camp, and whose home is in Shelburne, Ont.

He was killed along with the engineer and foreman when the Canadian National Railways train plunged into a washout, caused by flood waters. His body was extricated from the wreckage of the baggage car. Two bank books, each showing a balance of a few cents, were found on the body.

The head was crushed, indicating this blow and not drowning caused death. An inquest will be held at Ingersoll May 5 into the three deaths.

Brett was riding with Alva Leblanc, another transient now in Ingersoll hospital with slight injuries and shock. Leblanc's statement he was with another man led to search for Brett.

National Industrial Head Sees Regime Aimed At System Of State Capitalism

WASHINGTON, April 28. (AP)—President Virgil Jordan of the National Conference Board contended to-day the Roosevelt administration has built "a vast political organization designed to maintain it in permanent power."

His general denunciation of President Roosevelt's policies, prepared for the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce, was the first of the meeting.

Asserting that government mechanisms forged by the administration are designed to bring about "a system of state capitalism", Jordan said:

"The most important thing to remember about this governmental juggernaut is that it is irreversible. No matter how many there are who may desire it reversed, no political leader or party to-day would try to reverse it.

"Receiving various administration governmental machinery "that has been operating during the past four years to undermine and destroy the (private) enterprise order.

"It is practically complete, but a few more gadgets are being forged and will be fitted into place as soon as all constitutional obstacles are removed.

LONDON, April 28.—(CP Cable.)—Liberal and Labor Opposition parties in the House of Commons this afternoon united in an indignant demand for a collective protest against the air massacre of Guernica. Correspondents of British newspapers widely charge it was the work of German machines.

Clement Attlee, Labor leader, raised the question. Would not Foreign Secretary Eden, he questioned, take immediate steps to address a collective protest to General Franco and Chancellor Hitler against the "bombardment of civilian populations now being conducted in Spain."

"His Majesty's government," Eden replied, "deeply deplore the bombardments of civilian populations in the Spanish civil war wherever they may occur and no matter who is responsible.

"We have in the past taken steps to make our attitude clear to both parties and to promote agreements to safeguard the civilian population. His Majesty's government will continue to examine the question to see whether further steps are possible, so as to prevent a recurrence of such deplorable events."

Sir Arthur Salter, Independent, asked whether it was correct the machines were foreign and had entered Spain recently.

Favors Fact By Both Sides

Eden said he had seen press reports that the machines were foreign. He thought the best course was to endeavor to reach an agreement under which such practices would cease on both sides.

"It was not a case of civilians being killed in the course of an ordinary bombardment but a deliberate effort to use air power as an instrument of massacre and terrorism," Sir Archibald declared. "Such being the case, will the foreign secretary not take some means to make an effective protest?"

"I think what I said represents

SCADDING HAILED AT MOOSE RIVER

Whole Nova Scotia Hamlet Turns Out To Greet Man Entombed There Year Ago

MOOSE RIVER, N.S., April 28 (C.P.).—Alfred Scadding hobbled out of an automobile to see once again this tiny mining community with which his name will always be linked.

Scadding was back at the spot where for 10 days a year ago he was entombed 141 feet underground with Dr. D. E. Robertson, Toronto, and Herman McGill, who died before gallant dragermen released them.

Scadding arrived in triumph here last night. Three miles from the mine the car in which he was driving with George Hunter, Toronto, and Phil Henderson, was stopped by a delegation including almost the whole population of Moose River.

The townsfolk demanded Scadding get out and show them how he could walk. His toes were amputated due to "trench feet" suffered in his long entombment. Scadding obliged and was then placed in another car—a Moose River car—and driven to town through cheering lanes of men, women and children.

Mrs. Simpson Asks For Final Decree

LONDON, April 28.—(AP)— Mrs. Wallis Simpson will be free next Tuesday, May 4, to become the Duchess of Windsor, if her divorce case keeps its schedule in the courts.

A final decree, making her divorce from Ernest Simpson absolute, will be granted on that date unless there is some last-minute complication which her lawyers believe is beyond the realm of probability.

Mrs. Simpson's attorneys filed notice in Somerset House today that an application for the final decree was being made.

When Mrs. Simpson and the Duke would marry remained their secret, however. A report in the Southern Daily Echo, a Southampton newspaper, that they might wed May 12, Coronation Day, was denied by the Duke's friends who even asserted such a possibility as "fantastic."

The newspaper said it learned "exclusively from most reliable sources" that a Coronation Day wedding was being considered but had not been decided on definitely.

Telegraph Service Foots 'Bill' As Aurora Borealis 'Steps Out'

Excess Current From Northern Magnetic Pole Grounds Wires Maritimes To Prairies

OPERATORS FRANTIC

TORONTO, April 28 (CP).—Aurora borealis, the enemy of telegraph services, struck in record fashion throughout the Dominion today. Not for ten years has the magnetic pole's interference been so widespread.

From the Prairies to the Maritimes and into the United States telegraph wires were gripped by the excess current radiated from the northern magnetic pole. Wires were grounded as operators in Canadian National and Canadian Pacific offices frantically fought to maintain connections.

Veterans of the services could not recall a time when the aurora borealis reached into so great a territory. From Halifax to the Prairie country the northern lights danced across the wires, cutting into news services communication lines for hours at a time.

Sudbury Shuts Down.

Excess current became so great in the Canadian Pacific operating room at Sudbury all circuits were disconnected to prevent blown fuses. It extended to North Bay, Timmins, south to Sault Ste. Marie and into Western Ontario where wires to

2 Cars Collide Woman Is Killed

NEW HAMBURG, Ont., April 28. —(CP)—A preliminary inquest was scheduled for to-day into the death of Mrs. Joseph Schwartzentruber, victim of a traffic accident last night.

One other woman, Mrs. H. Saltzman, injured in the crash, was taken to Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital for treatment but was not admitted.

Mrs. Schwartzentruber, a resident of Pine Hill and Mrs. Saltzman, were passengers in a machine driven by Joel Saltzman, St. Agatha, when it collided head-on with another vehicle driven by W. A. Bailey, London, two miles east of here.

JANNETT RECALLED

Hepburn Likely To Take Hand In Sestling Strike.

SARNIA, Ont., April 28.—(CP)—Recall to Toronto of O. C. Jannett, Ontario Department of Labor conciliator, gave rise locally to the belief Premier Hepburn may personally take a hand in efforts to settle the strike of several hundred longshoremen at Point Edward.

Jannett interviewed Reeve David Ross of Point Edward, Arthur Hazlip head of the local union and Canada Steamship Line officials during his stay. He also obtained a copy of the wage schedule.

Enjoying Scenery Costs Motorist $5

Port Credit, Ont., April 28. (CP) ENJOYING the scenery on a drive through the country east George Cairns, Toronto, 25 to-day when he was fined by Magistrate W. E. McIlveen for driving too slow and impeding traffic. Port Credit is 12 miles west of Toronto.

"He just gave me a sarcastic look and refused to step up his speed," Traffic Officer J. M. Hinchcliffe told the Magistrate.

"It was a beautiful day and we were enjoying the scenery," Cairns said. "How can a person get any pleasure out of a drive in the country if he doesn't take it easy."

"Of more importance are the other persons who get no pleasure from driving if you persist in impeding their progress," Magistrate McIlveen replied.

DEFENCE FADING BILBAO APPEARS AS DOOMED CITY

Durango Surrounded And 20 Villages On City's Outskirts Captured

10,000 CASUALTIES, 3 DAYS

MARQUINA, Basque Spanish Front, April 28 (A.P.). — Bilbao apparently was doomed by three insurgent columns, lieutenants of Generalissimo Francisco Franco said to-day as they resolutely screwed up the land side of a steel vise gripping the Basayan capital.

Rainstorms and mud gave the harrassed Basque soldiery scant relief from the drive which carried the insurgent front forward nine miles on a 12-mile line east and south-east of Bilbao.

More than 20 villages were wrested from the stubborn Basques, allies of the Madrid-Valencia government, in the last four days.

One Franco spearhead was reported to be within 15 miles of Bilbao in the continuing drive to force the semi-autonomous Basque government's defenders back into the refugee-packed city already menaced from the sea by an insurgent naval gordon.

Marquina, noted as a centre of Basque nobility, about 20 miles east of Bilbao, was occupied yesterday almost without fighting. The aristocratic villas were protected by sanding walls.

Durango Surrounded.

The official overnight insurgent communique said Durango had been encircled, but did not mention the advance down the Bilbao road.

Mother Leaves Home To Aid Daughter With Baby, And Is Unable To Return

LITTLE FIT TO USE

WINDSOR, Ont., April 28 (C.P.). —Stripped of all possessions except the clothes they were wearing when the Thames Rover went on its rampage, first refugees from flood-stricken London were in Windsor to-day. Behind them they left their homes submerged in muddy water.

Mrs. Leo Bathgate, her 19-year-old daughter Jean, her married daughter, Mrs. Frank Telfer, and 20-months-old Patricia Telfer, were brought here last night by Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Telfer, Windsor.

"We've lost everything," was the way Mrs. Bathgate and her daughter, Mrs. Telfer, summed up. Their husbands are still in London, hoping to salvage as much as they can. They are not hopeful of finding much of their possessions still fit for use.

Ironically, Mrs. Bathgate left her home on Monday and rushed to the home of her daughter when she heard the river was rising. She believed her daughter would need assistance because of the baby. But Mrs. Bathgate never imagined that an hour later when she endeavored to return to her home she would find it under water.

So quickly did the waters rise, Mrs. Telfer had no chance to save anything except two small pieces of furniture which she moved into the upstairs part of the two-family

City Of London Assumes Hues International Melting Pot

ALL SIGHT-SEEING

By Edwin S. Johnson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 28. (CP).—Some idea of what is in store for Londoners in the way of color and picturesque personalities is afforded by the advance guard of visitors from the corporate of the Empire, here for the coronation.

Every incoming ship disgorges its quota of the incoming influx. Streets which normally resound to the tread of milling thousands of business people and shoppers are packed with visitors, many in colorful native garb, and all on the same mission—sight-seeing.

Although the official Canadian coronation contingent is not due to arrive for several days, thousands of "early birds" from all sections of the Dominion are here.

The city presents the aspect of an international melting-pot. Brown skinned East Indians with their flowing turbans mingle with khaki-clad Australia, South Africa, New Zealand and Rhodesian troops. Occasionally bearded figures in flowing Oriental robes venture into the throngs of ex-wags, while a proud ze-

Rivet Of Pure Gold Finishes Huge Span

San Francisco, April 28. (AP)

THE last rivet—wrought of the gold that was the precious heirstone of California's pioneer days—was placed yesterday in the $35,000,000 bridge that spans the golden gate. Arching 4,200 feet across the harbor entrance, the new bridge is the greatest single suspension span yet built. With its approaches, the structure totals 8,600 feet in length. It links the Redwood Highway and the North, to San Francisco and the South. The bridge, for which ground was broken in 1933, will be opened to traffic May 27.

2 DAYS' RAMPAGE TAKES STING OUT OF RIVER THAMES

Crest Falls Rapidly Despite Rain And Danger For Chatham Eases

TWO BODIES RECOVERED

TORONTO, April 28.—(CP). — Crest of the Thames river flood rushed on toward Lake St. Clair today with danger definitely past in the upper reaches of the river where five lives were taken and damage estimated at more than $3,000,000 caused in two destructive days.

Chatham was in the path of the flood crest but the river had spent its force in flooding London and other communities and authorities were confident there would be no serious flooding around Chatham.

London gradually emerged today from the grip of the flood with industries that had been closed to conserve power, re-opening and many of the 6,000 persons forced from their homes returning to them.

It will be weeks before the total water can be cleared from cellars of hundreds of homes to make them habitable.

The Thames began to drop last night despite intermittent rains, and authorities were agreed the danger was past in London.

It will be weeks before the total cost of the flood will be known and it may never be officially compiled. Thousands of homes were damaged and household goods were destroyed by the rushing waters.

2 Bodies Recovered.

The bodies of two of the flood's five victims were recovered last night. One body was that of the unidenti-

Meat Carriers Want Double Pay For Coronation Night.

LONDON, April 28. (C. P. Cable) Meat carriers at Smithfield Market, which supplies $200,000,000 worth of meat to London's 9,000 butcher shops each year, threatened to-day to strike coronation night unless they are paid double time for the night.

The situation failed to alarm officials of the market, however, and the feeling was the dispute would be settled without any strike during the Coronation season.

Thames Jumps 24 Feet Over Night In Worst Rampage Of Thirty Years

ALL BUSINESS SUSPENDED

Chatham Prepares For Invasion—Water Rising Again In Stratford, Brantford

CHATHAM, Ont., April 28. (CP), Boats and motor trucks were used to evacuate people from their homes in Thamesville to-day as flood waters of the Thames, which rose 24 feet since last night, filled low lying streets as the rampaging river surged towards Chatham and Lake St. Clair.

Belief was held worst of the flood situation which has caused untold damage in the Thamesville area, would be passed during the afternoon.

The flood at Thamesville was described by residents as being the worst in 30 years. Business was suspended as people flocked to vantage points to watch the turbulent stream, carrying timbers and sections of buildings swept from their foundations in its upper reaches. Telephone operators were worked to a point of nervous exhaustion as they kept pace with the deluge of calls on their switchboard. No serious accidents, however, had occurred this morning.

Several Feet of Water in Stores.

The section of the village first to be affected by the rampaging stream was Victoria Street, connecting link of Number 21 Highway. Stores and business places under several feet of water were those of Albert Campbell, David Black, Austins, J. S. Howatt, and Mrs. Hardey. The Post Office was also under water.

As the river broke its bounds in the early morning hours, water flowed over extensive areas of farm lands, causing damage to barns and buildings, and creating a serious problem for farmers in the removal of live stock.

Parts of the district resembled a lake.

As the flood waters rushed toward Chatham, Kent Bridge, 10 miles north, was struck. No. 2 Highway, three miles east of Kent Bridge, was blocked.

"The river is steadily rising and I look for the situation to be bad here," said Vanstone.

Chatham Uneasy.

Chatham officials watched the situation closely. The river at noon reached 13 feet above normal. Dockyards and a section of Tecumseh Park were flooded while water entered basements of stores.

Flood waters slipped over the breakwater at Tecumseh Park in Chatham. Across from the city waterworks, fields were inundated and the water poured over the road leading to the city dump. Steadily the flood crept to the rear of fine residential homes on the river embankment at Water and William Streets.

Chatham officials said the river

60 BODIES BURN IN CHAPEL BLAZE

Only Blackened Bones And Casket Ornaments Remain As Mortuary Is Destroyed

CHICOUTIMI, Que., April 28 (CP) Fire which consumed the little mortuary chapel in the neighboring parish of St. Joseph D'Alma, destroyed 60 bodies awaiting burial, it was learned to-day.

The flames broke out yesterday and destroyed the small building in which the bodies had been housed for burial in warmer weather.

Ruins of the wooden building still smouldered today as villagers began combing the debris for remains of their relatives who died in the district during the winter. Blackened bones and casket ornaments were all that could be recovered.

A discarded cigarette butt was blamed for the fire which originated in long, dry grass surrounding the chapel. The flames had reached the building before they were discovered by workmen who summoned villagers by tolling the church bell.

Workers could do little more than prevent the blaze from eating its way through the grass to neighboring homes.

Clerical records showed the building housed at least 60 bodies of men, women and children, to have been interred this week.

Factories Reopen Told To Conserve Water And Power

Streets In Western Area Expected To Be Clear Of Water Today

MASS OF WRECKAGE, SLIME

Red Cross Calls For Aid To Supply Food—City Property Loss Million Alone

LONDON, Ont., April 28.—(CP).—Danger of further floods definitely passed, London's municipal authorities, viewing damage estimated at $3,000,000, marshalled resources to combat any outbreak of disease in the wake of receding waters of the Thames river.

In addition to the health menace, officials had to contend with a shortage of water and electric power, provide for welfare of hundreds of refugees, guard against looting of abandoned homes and carry out the clean-up of slime-covered, wreckage-strewn streets.

City Engineer William Veitch said streets of West London should be clear of water to-day. About eight inches of water remained there to be drained off.

The body of London's sole casualty in the flood, Joseph Britton, was found last night by two youths 100 yards from where his boat capsized at the height of the flood Monday evening.

Factories ordered to remain idle yesterday as a means of conserving water and electric power, were allowed to resume operations today but only on condition the supply sources are not overtaxed. If necessary, said E. V. Buchanan, general manager of the public utilities, factories will be asked to close again.

Patrols Put On Guard.

Chief of Police W. H. Down used the full resources of his department to forestall looting of flood-swept homes. Patrols were established and provision made for swearing in of special constables if emergency arises.

It was estimated city-owned property suffered $1,000,000 loss in the $3,000,000 total.

Water in both the north and south branches of the Thames receded last night despite continued intermittent rainfall. South London, isolated for six hours, again was accessible when York and Richmond

3,000 VETERANS PLACED IN JOBS BY COMMISSION

Some 33,000 Of Whom 20,000 Were On Relief Registered When Drive Opened

11,531 IN ONTARIO

OTTAWA, April 28.— Approximately 3,000 Canadian veterans of the Great War have been placed in permanent or semi-permanent positions by the Veterans' Assistance Commission which a few months ago undertook the task of re-establishing more than 20,000 ex-servicemen who found themselves in a difficult plight during the depression through no fault of their own.

Some 33,000 men — as many as were in the first Canadian Expeditionary Force, which was the largest ever to cross the ocean at one time—registered as unemployed in a census taken by the commission. Of that number 20,000 were on relief, including pensioners and non-pensioners. A distressing feature was that 6,000 of the unemployed veterans were under the age of forty, indicating that they had gone to fight for their country before their school days were over.

11,531 in Ontario.

The registration showed that 11,531 of the veterans who were workless were in the Province of Ontario in the following age groups: 35 to 39 years, 2,300; 40 to 44, 3,900;

FAREWELL PARTY WARSAW RESIDENT

Mrs. Herman Payne And Daughter Muriel Moving To Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 28—Mrs. Herman Payne's house was crowded last Wednesday evening with relatives, other friends and neighbors who gave her a farewell party as she and her daughter, Muriel, have moved to Lakefield. The evening was spent in music and games. In due time, Mrs. Payne with her son and daughter, were led to a central place. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson gave a short speech and on behalf of those present, presented a pack-a-way and over-night bag to Mrs. Payne, a coronation parasol to Muriel, and a brush and comb set to Elwood. Mrs. Payne, to whom the whole evening was a complete surprise, thanked the donors very gracefully. Refreshments were served and soon a very happy party broke up.

Mrs. Payne will be much missed in the neighborhood. She was a splendid neighbor, a great church worker, whose life showed in her works. She was also a Sunday School teacher. The public school which the children attended contributed towards the gifts for Elwood and Muriel. Mrs. Payne has rented the farm to her brother, Mr. Ernest Dunford, and Elwood is remaining on the farm with his uncle.

Wedding Shower

On Wednesday evening, April 21, the girls of Mrs. O. H. Crowe's Sunday School Class and a few of their friends met at her home to honor one of their number, the bride-elect, Miss Eva Hendren. A social hour was spent in crokinole, after which an amusing mock-wedding ceremony was performed. This was the most enjoyable event of the evening. Many wedding garments of by-gone days were displayed to the amusement of all.

The bride was then presented with a dozen sherbert glasses as a token of the esteem in which she is held by her class-mates. On behalf of the class, Miss Eva Clifford read the address and Miss Jean Munroe presented the gift. Miss Hendren thanked the class in a pleasing manner. All joined in singing, "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Refreshments were served and a very happy party broke up; all grateful to their teacher for the happy evening.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

The Queen, a charming mother, and Princess Elizabeth

IN the years that she was known to England and the empire as the Duchess of York and not as the future queen, her majesty made the first and foremost interest of her life the welfare of her family and the upbringing of her daughters, Queen of England now, with Princess Elizabeth her elder daughter the heir presumptive to the throne, and slated perhaps some day to follow in the footsteps of her namesake of centuries ago, the task of rearing her growing children has become all even more vital problem for Queen Elizabeth.

A royal mother faces many difficult problems that do not come to the average mother, but if throughout the empire Queen Elizabeth is known for one outstanding characteristic, it is for her success as a homemaker. Reared in a Scottish family, she was taught early the many duties of a housewife and all that is implied in the job of building a home. When she became the wife of a king's son, her entry to the royal circle did not take from her the deep respect and love she had acquired for home life, and from then until the day she became the queen she has been an example to the world. As queen her duties increase manifold, with the spotlight more than ever upon this simple charming Scottish girl and the household under her guidance.

The little princess was only a few months old when her parents left England for their first extended empire tour and the young mother was separated from her child for six busy months.

Queen Mary took the supervision of the royal infant, who was already the brightest jewel in Britain's royal treasures to loyal thousands under the British flag, and the queen mother has had much to do with Elizabeth's training.

'Tis said that the queen is a strict, if kindly mother; there is no spoiling of the two princesses. Her majesty appreciates deeply the place they must fill in later life and governs her household accordingly. She herself taught Princess Elizabeth and later Princess Margaret Rose their alphabets and the first elementary lessons, as well as the nursery ballads and stories that every child loves, and joined in their little problems and their pastimes as they grew older.

With a multitude of duties making calls upon her time, the duchess, and now the queen, made time for the greatest job of all—building a family that has become an example in home life to the empire.

SOCIETY DISCUSSES DECORATING KIRK

Ladies' Aid Of Ballyduff Presbyterian Church Plans Annual Clean-Up

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BALLYDUFF, April 28—The Ladies' Aid in connection with Ballyduff Presbyterian church were hospitably entertained on the occasion of their April meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ward, eighth line, Manvers, on Thursday evening, this event being necessarily postponed from the previous week.

The President, Mrs. Albert Farrow, occupied the chair and was assisted by Rev. V. Walker in the conduction of regular devotional exercises. A business session followed, during which annual fees were paid by several members. The question of re-decorating the church was forwarded for discussion and a special committee was named to give detailed consideration to this particular item of business.

At an earlier meeting the Ladies' Aid had decided to commence making a quilt in the Dresden Plate design to be sold in connection with their autumn bazaar. For an enjoyable period of time the ladies were busily engaged in cutting sections for same. At the conclusion of this pleasant and profitable period the meeting was closed with a hymn and the benediction pronounced by the pastor.

Before departing for home the guests, numbering fifteen, were served a dainty luncheon by the hostess and an assisting committee previously appointed to participate in this capacity.

Mrs. Fred S. Gray extended an invitation to the ladies to meet at her home for their May session and her offer was gratefully accepted.

Fleetwood Y.P.S.

The Young People's Union of Fleetwood United church sponsored a jolly crokinole contest at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Finney on Thursday evening, April 22, with a good attendance of local members and friends, in spite of disagreeable weather conditions. Seven tables were occupied for a series of games, while several others enjoyed sociable conversation. At the conclusion of interesting and highly contested games, the scores were counted and the winners declared to be Miss Thelma Davidson and Earl Shea, who were suitably awarded for their success. At this period in the evening's proceedings the hostess family, with volunteer assistants, served a dainty luncheon.

A happy recreational period followed during which games in variety were much enjoyed. Miss Evelyn Finney entertained with several harmonica selections. As the busy season is fast approaching in farming communities this social event will be the final one of its type for this season, many such gatherings being much enjoyed during the winter months.

The Finney family were heartily thanked for their kindness in providing so enjoyable a social get-together for the young people and their friends.

MADRID'S PRESS DEMANDS SPEEDY RELIEF OF BILBAO

Urge Attacks On Other Fronts To Ease Basque's Serious Situation

SHELL HITS NEWS OFFICE

MADRID, April 28. (A.P.).—Madrid's newspapers, unallowed by an insurgent artillery attack on their plants, blazed to-day with demands that the government "save our Basque proletarian brothers" in besieged Bilbao.

They insisted strong attacks should be launched on other fronts to relieve the pressure on the city of Bilbao city, where insurgents converged from east and north-east.

Insurgent gunners tried to still the Madrid newspapers yesterday; they succeeded in hitting only one office, although shells fell around three other plants.

The city counted 30 dead in the bombardment, and the toll in 16 days of heavy shelling rose to at least 260.

Government accounts of the situation on the Basque front, the principal theatre of active warfare, related:

Basque militiamen and government soldiers struck at insurgent lines in the Marquina sector, east of Bilbao, in an effort to prevent the insurgents from outflanking another of their columns at Ondarroa, on the coast.

An insurgent force assaulted government trenches at La Rebolladia, but failed to drive out the defenders. The attackers apparently hoped to prevent the arrival of new government reinforcements from the Asturias, the region to the west of Bilbao.

Basques were incensed at the bombing and burning of their "sacred city," Guernica, by insurgent air-raiders yesterday.

Ireland's Tribute To War Dead Nearly Ready After 19 Years

Beautiful Public Park On Banks Of Liffey Supplants Original Merrion Square Idea

PARTIES UNITED IN IDEA

By Joseph Dunigan
(Canadian Press Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, April 28 (CP).—Nineteen years after the armistice, Ireland's memorial to her 60,000 dead in the Great War is approaching completion.

The memorial takes the form of a public park laid out by the government at Longmeadows on the south bank of the River Liffey in full view of Magazine Hill and the great Wellington monument in Phoenix Park. Included in the park is a garden of remembrance designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens and paid for out of the trust fund created in Ireland at the close of the Great War.

The scheme to commemorate the Irishmen who fell in the Great War by a suitable memorial in the capital of the country has not been brought to this stage without its difficulties and delays. William Cosgrave's government in 1927 vetoed the original proposal to purchase Merrion Square, near the government buildings, and erect in it a memorial centrepiece and gates, but arrangements were made in 1931 to provide the present site at Longmeadows, the state to bear the cost of the public park.

Half Irish, Half British Workers

The work has been carried out by workmen drawn 50 per cent from British ex-servicemen and 50 per cent from ex-servicemen of the Irish Free State army.

Progress was reported to a meeting of the original executive council of the Irish national war memorial held in Dublin, Sir Dunbar Plunket Barton, the chairman, said that never for a moment had the scheme been made the subject of party controversy. Since its inception there had been a change of government but there had been no change of attitude of the government to the undertaking. The generous attitude of leaders of Irish opinion, he said, offered a fine example and happy augury for the future.

Help from the north, which contributed to the fund, came from Sir Herbert Dixon and the late H. M. Pollock, Minister of Finance in the Northern Ireland government.

Changed Her Shoes Five Times a Day

Suffered For 20 Years With Rheumatism

Try and picture the life this woman led for twenty years—changing her shoes several times a day in a vain endeavor to attain some relief from the rheumatic pains that were constantly troubling her. Then imagine her joy when she found that Kruschen was driving away the rheumatism. This is what she writes:—

"I have been using Kruschen Salts for four years. For twenty years previously I had suffered with my feet, sometimes changing my shoes five times a day, and frequently sitting without any as the pain was so great. Now I can wear the same pair of shoes all day with comfort. I cannot speak too highly of Kruschen Salts. Only those who had been in constant pain with their feet for years can realize what it is to be free."—(Mrs) E. A.

It is deposits of excess uric acid, lodging between the joints, which are frequently the cause of rheumatism. Kruschen Salts contain two ingredients—sodium and potassium—which are effective solvents of uric acid.

WAGES ARE INCREASED

Tobacco Industry In Quebec Boosts Wages Of Employees.

MONTREAL, April 28 (CP) — Chairman Gustave Franco of the Quebec Minimum Wage Board announced today a conference of workers and employers in the province's tobacco, cigar and cigarette manufacturing industry approved new wage rates ranging from one to four cents an hour higher.

The agreement, effective Aug. 1, cuts two hours from the industry's 50-hour week and provides that at least two-thirds of all employees, instead of only 50 per cent as at present, must receive a $12.50 a week wage paid workers with two years' experience.

FAMOUS SPOTS PRESERVED IN PEN SKETCHES

Ontario Artist Presents Group Of Pen-And-Ink Sketches Of Nova Scotia

TO HALIFAX ARCHIVES

HALIFAX, April 28 (CP)—Even if time does not deal favorably with them, many of Nova Scotia's historic landmarks will live for years to come through a collection of pen-and-ink drawings in the Nova Scotia Archives here.

The old Ordnance Building of Halifax in which with its freestone walls and famous clock-tower just as they existed from 1819 until the building was condemned as unsafe and torn down recently. The sketch is one of the group of originals presented to the Archives by Wendell Lawson, M.Arch., of Leaside, Ont.

Other forts play a prominent part in the collection. One sketch shows the old Sally Port of Fort Anne at Annapolis Royal, with the officers' mess in-sight through the archway as it was visible to early settlers in 1798.

There is old Martello Tower in Point Pleasant Park, Halifax; that squat, un-English structure unique in Canadian fortifications — a low circular building of stone, built in 1796, exceedingly heavy in detail and medieval in appearance. There is Windsor blockhouse, last of its kind in the province, erected in 1750, and now towering commandingly over the town of Windsor.

But not all the sketches are of forts, for not all the historic places in the province are connected with military activity. The Old Meeting House at Barrington has been depicted with all the simplicity that marked the straightforward and unassuming character of the settlers who made it the first church in Nova Scotia back in 1756.

One of Oldest Houses

There is the house of Captain Silvanus Cobb at Liverpool, built in 1130 of materials brought from Plymouth, New England; the pen drawing of this, one of the oldest houses in the province, reveals it as a fine example of the simpler type of Colonial Architecture.

A group of Nova Scotian sketches would be incomplete without pictures of the sea and of things pertaining to the sea. The collection includes a view of Louisburg lighthouse as it stands today guarding the rugged and stormswept coast of that part of the province. Beside it is the piled remains of what was the first lighthouse in British North America.

Another sketch shows Cape Smokey in characteristic mood, surrounded by the low-lying clouds that gave it its name. Lunenburg harbor is depicted, with its schooners' masts, its ropes and spars and the "interesting confusion" of houses straggling back from the waterfront. Arichat, too, is there, with the sketch showing a typical portion of the wharves, the church on the hill, and the road winding away into the distance.

St. Peter's Canal is known, connecting the Bras d'Or Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean, with its four sets of gates made necessary by the change of flow in the water as the tide rises and falls. Another scenic picture is of Grassy Island and the entrance to Canso harbor.

Two other sketches of Halifax show historic St. Paul's oldest Protestant church in Canada, and a group of old houses on Hollis street with their great chimneys and typically Nova Scotian dormer windows.

McGILL LOSING VICE-CHANCELLOR

Noted Englishman, Arthur E. Morgan, To Resign Due To Split With Board

MONTREAL, April 28. (CP). — Twenty-one months as principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University will end May 31 for Arthur E. Morgan, the tall, 31-year-old Englishman who succeeded the late Sir Arthur Currie as head of the century-old university.

Then, a staff member will take the place of Mr. Morgan, whose resignation was revealed yesterday through publication of a final exchange of letters between Mr. Morgan and Chancellor Sird Edward Beatty. The staff member will act until a successor is chosen next fall.

The noted educationist - author resigned, his letter to Sir Edward said, because it was apparent that "you and other members of the board did not see eye to eye with me in regard to the relation of the principalship to the governors."

His request to be relieved of office was sent "in the best interests of the university."

The chancellor's answer, dated April 23, said the resignation had been accepted as from the end of May. Sir Edward's letter declared the board executive committee's regret and indicated the action was in accordance with their views previously expressed in interviews between Mr. Morgan and Sir Edward.

Called from the principalship of University College in Hull, England, to succeed the dead Sir Arthur, Mr. Morgan made extensive re-organization of McGill for economic reasons. He travelled widely, almost from coast to coast, seeking finatcial support from graduates.

Previous to going to University College, Mr. Morgan had been Professor of English Language and Literature at University of Sheffield. His books mostly were about English drama, his many articles on literary subjects.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons are into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

"EDDIE" MACKLIN LAUDED FATHER CANADIAN PRESS

President Of Dailies Association Regrets Resignation In Review Of Past Year

NEW DEMAND WELL MET

TORONTO, April 28 (CP)—Addressing today the annual general meeting of The Canadian Press, the Co-operative News Gathering Association of the Daily Newspaper Publishers, the president, W. B. Preston of Brantford Expositor made an interesting survey of the world situation during the past year. "European complications," he said, "preempted the front pages of the newspapers and there were many times since last we met when another world conflagration seemed practically unavoidable. The threat of war almost continuously upon us brought the nations to the very brink of another struggle.

"Demand from the newspapers for the latest information has seldom been more intense and the responsibilities resting upon news gathering organizations have been most severe. I am glad to say that The Canadian Press, through its London bureau and its alliances with The Associated Press, Reuters and Havas, has lived up to its best traditions and performed a great public service by giving a very complete coverage of all the news, while maintaining its reputation for speed, accuracy and the general reliability of its reports."

The president went on to refer to the careful coverage of the difficult political situation occasioned by the Social Credit experiment in Alberta, to the reorganization and enlargement of the London bureau last winter, resulting in a much expanded and more intimate report of the news of the Old Country and the empire, and to the successful experiment last summer of a Canadian Press pictures service, whose logical development in time would be the carrying of an all-Canada service by telephoto alongside the news.

Praise For Macklin

Referring to the resignation from the board of E. H. Macklin, Mr. Preston said: "I would like to remind you that the beginnings of our co-operative association go back 30 years to the establishment of the Western Associated Press in Winnipeg in 1907. That young organization owed much to E. H. Macklin of the Manitoba Free Press, first its treasurer and from 1913 its president. A man of vision, he never lost sight of the ideal of a national news association. That doctrine he steadily preached to his confreres in the east with an eloquence of phrase so characteristically his own. Four sectional news associations were knit into one which has become The Canadian Press of today.

"Mr. Macklin gave the new organization his warm-hearted support and on every occasion he has taken the long view of the future of our co-operative association. He could have been president any time these score of years but he preferred to remain in the background, though even his modesty could not refuse the office of honorary president, created in 1924 to do him honor. History will acclaim him the 'father of The Canadian Press.'

"Very regretfully his friends and comrades of your board of directors have been compelled to accept his resignation, for a meeting without the colorful and winning personality of 'Eddie' Macklin seems bare and unnatural. We wish him long happy years in his retirement, where he will have the satisfaction of knowing he has wrought himself a monument more lasting than bronze."—The Canadian Press."

TORONTO DIOCESE WILL CELEBRATE CENTENARY IN '39

Toronto Synod Of Anglican Church Plans To Raise $750,000

12 NEW CANONS

TORONTO, April 28.—Tentative plans for the celebration in 1939 of the centenary of the Diocese of Toronto which will link spiritual, historical and social aspects to a campaign for $750,000 to rehabilitate five main needs or obligations of Church work were discussed yesterday at the eighty-fifth session of the Synod of Toronto.

Referring to the suggested campaign, Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of All Canada, in his charge to the Synod at St. James's Parish Hall, outlined the five main aims as follows:

Five Chief Aims.

1. To assist the capital fund for superannuated clergy and widows and orphans of clergy.
2. An endowment to provide for an assistant Bishop, including salary and house.
3. A fund to assist country clergy in travelling expenses, which his Grace explained to have risen greatly since "horse-and-buggy days."
4. Pay off the indebtedness of the Synod House.
5. Lower or pay off the indebtedness of churches and parish buildings so that the money now used for interest charges can be devoted to "a great missionary responsibility and opportunity" among Anglicans whose allegiance is "merely nominal."

"We must set our own financial house in such order that our diocese, which is looked to as the mother diocese of Canada, can be set free to help more fully and more effectively in the expanding life of the Canadian Church," Archbishop Owen declared.

Work As One Family.

"I am sure that so long as there is a crippling of our work here at the centre by reason of inadequate support, so long shall we be prevented from doing the work further afield," he said. "We must work parish with parish, as one family, helping one another in our needs and obligations.

"We have no business being discouraged because Canada is beset with difficulties. I have faith in Canada. And I have the same faith in the Church, even if we have a big job ahead."

His Grace announced that special services, of a uniform nature, would be held throughout Canada on Sunday, Sept. 5, to mark the 150th anniversary of the consecration of Charles L. Inglis in Halifax as the first Bishop of the Church of England in Canada.

May Break Out Again

The employees of General Motors are employed again at Oshawa. They are working a shorter week at an increased rate of pay, but it does not appear from available information they are making as much per week as previously. It may be the shorter week will provide more improvement, and if it does a good purpose will have been served.

There was one statement made by the C.I.O. organizer after the agreement had been signed, and it was "Watch June 11." The workers were informed the agreement could be terminated on that date, and offered the suggestion that the final showdown had merely been postponed until that date.

The significance of that date, June 11, is that the United States General Motors agreement was signed for six months from the 11th of February, terminating on August 11, and if it is the desire to terminate that agreement then notice must be given by June 11, and the Oshawa agreement, we believe, coincides in that particular with the one in United States

That makes a species of question mark over the Oshawa settlement, particularly in view of the statement of the C.I.O. organizer that it will be well to watch June 11, as the actual showdown —whatever that may mean—is going to come then.

In this country the rule has generally been that the signed settlement of a strike marks the termination of trouble and the beginning of activity on a new basis. As a rule such agreements are extended over the period of at least a year. There is something not at all satisfactory in having settled a strike with the feeling left in existence which finds audible expression in: "Just wait until June 11." That is not the spirit of a good and wholesome working arrangement because it indicates too plainly that much is being held in reserve. It is a matter about which the workers themselves should think seriously and well. If they are going to be committed to a form of unionism which is likely to keep them embroiled in frequent industrial disputes and strikes then their working hours and working weeks are going to be shortened and they will be at all times living with the shadow of another industrial war over them.

When the Floods Come

Flood conditions seem to play no favorites in Western Ontario. It may be the unusually prolonged rains found much of the earth unable to absorb sufficient water because the frost is not yet entirely out. London has been flooded before, but not as has been done this time. When the Thames goes more than 30 feet above normal, then there is going to be a good deal of damage done. For the most part it is a crooked and harmless looking stream as it makes its way through London. London is in a hollow and at the extreme north and west it is flat. It must be almost fifty years ago since West London was so seriously flooded that a dozen or more lives were lost. Since then there has been a great retaining wall built behind which West London folk were supposed to live with a feeling of security. But the people behind the wall were warned to move and move quickly. In the north of London between the buildings of Western University and the city limits is Broughdale, a strictly residential section. It has been flooded as there is nothing to prevent it once the river goes out of bounds.

Stratford is an unusual place for a flood of serious proportions. The Avon river is not a dangerous stream. Most times it is as pleasant as the sound of its name indicates. But it became mighty and mad and entirely unreasonable when swollen by recent rains. The artificial islands in Stratford's man-made lake were submerged and a good deal of landscaping has been damaged. We read water poured into streets there from the sewers which were not able to carry away the downfall and in that way streets were flooded and no blame can be attached to the Avon.

The town of St Mary's is on hills and valleys and a flood condition could be quickly assertive there in such a way that damage would be immediate and general.

Towns and cities can build a good deal of preventive work, and they can be equipped with engineering facilities for community life and all that, but when it rains more than usual a good many of these things do not seem to amount to much. When Nature turns to the assertion of its might there is not much to be done except to get out of the road if possible—and do it quickly.

A Moral Obligation

The last shadow of pretence that the character of the Bowmanville Boys School has not been completely altered vanishes in the announcement that the control of the institution is being transferred from the Welfare Department to that of the provincial secretary. That means that henceforth the Bowmanville school which was established with the assistance of the service clubs of the province for the purpose of preventing wayward boys from becoming juvenile delinquents will simply be one of the penal institutions of the province, the kindergarten in the criminal educational system.

Economy is given as the reason for the transfer, but if the Ontario government had a code of ethics there would be little saving in the change inasmuch as the first step that would have been taken before transforming the school into a place of detention for youthful criminals would have been to repay to the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs the large sums subscribed by them toward the establishment of the Bowmanville boys farm. That money was given for a specific purpose and on the assurance of the government of the day that it would be spent to keep boys from drifting into a life of crime.

Now that the setup has been completely changed and the original purpose has been lost sight of there is a moral obligation on the part of the Queen's Park administration to hand back to the service clubs the amounts donated. They could be used to advantage in expanding the social service work so splendidly carried on by Rotary and Kiwanis.

Challenging Sportsmanship

The suggestion is made by a local sportsman and we are glad to pass it along to all the enthusiastic fishermen who can hardly wait for Saturday to come so they can start in upon their favorite stream, that the anglers of this district prove their sportsmanship and their genuine interest in conservation by refusing to keep trout that are smaller that 10 inches. It is true the regulations permit seven-inch fish to be taken but now that the government is following the policy of re-stocking trout streams with yearlings of legal or nearly legal size it seems short-sighted for our anglers to start right in yanking them out of the water almost as soon as they have been put in. To be satisfied with a limit catch of small trout when there is far more sport in taking two or three fish of a pound or more in weight is to lose much of the real thrill of trout-fishing and besides it stamps the fisherman who makes such a catch as an individual who is more concerned with numbers than he is with quality, and who would rather fill his frying pan than keep the streams stocked.

In short this suggestion from one of their number appeals to The Examiner as a very interesting challenge to the sportsmanship of the fishing fraternity of the district and we believe that if it were to be acted upon generally it would be a material contribution to better trout-fishing conditions.

As It Was on the Tenth

There was something in the paper a few days ago about housecleaning, and a firm which makes cleaners and other things had caused it to be written:

"The homes of the past are not as clean as the homes of today because never before have there been such equipment and facilities for cleaning the house."

We dare say there are a good many contraptions for cleaning the house today, but it is wrong to state facilities of one kind or another never used to exist, and we do not like too much slighting reference to the way in which they used to clean houses. Especially on Lot 4, Concession Ten.

The thing used to break as regularly as could be. The season for sulphur and molasses and spring tonic used to get through just about the time when they finished boiling down in the bush, and just before the seeding started. And right in there came the time for house cleaning. Grandfather was a good manager and he always found something around the barn that needed fixing or there were some fences going to pieces that had to be attended to, and he was always able to appear busy. Being a man of sterling character no person ever seemed to doubt his word, so he was counted out on housecleaning.

We do not believe there are any rooms called parlors now, but there was one on Lot 4, Concession Ten. The carpet there was mostly red and it was tacked to the floor close to the walls. Before that carpet came up it was necessary to take the heater out of the room and it had to be handled carefully because there was an Indian figure standing on top, and of course before the stove went out the pipes had to come down. Then the melodeon had to be moved out from the wall before the tacks could be taken up.

There was just one tack lifter in the house and so the screw driver had to take part. It was always kept in the drawer of the kitchen table. Some of the tacks seemed to have been driven in to stay for all time, and they all had to be placed on a saucer because they had to be used over again. There was generally a good deal of shoving and lifting after the tacks were up before that great carpet could be taken out to be whacked. If the wind was in the right direction it became evident there had been quite an accumulation of dirt and dust in that nice red carpet. A good whack in the early stages of the clearing produced most satisfactory results and it actually gave one a feeling of accomplishment. A small cloud would drift off toward the lane. The red carpet was hammered and beaten and swept until no more clouds could be seen rising from it, and then it was returned to the place from whence it came.

There was always a new set of newspapers to be placed on the floor before the red carpet went down, after which came the occupation which was meanputting the tacks back. Some of them were hooked; others were more so, and often enough the thing had to be done at night by having a lamp on the floor and pushing the saucer of tacks around as the work progressed. Grandfather used to come in then and remark that things were getting along well indeed, and then he would retreat. He never did participate in housecleaning but he suffered from it. He had to take his meals when and where he could get them and when anything interfered with grandfather's victuals the man wore a pained expression and he was given to mumbling and saying things to himself which would not sound well if spoken openly. Nothing escaped at that season. The picture of the queen came down and was scrubbed, and "The Stag at Bay" received similar treatment, and the yarn-worked motto over the parlor door was carefully dusted. There were not so many new-fangled contraptions for cleaning house; in fact there were none at all. But there was a great deal of physical energy available; there were barrel staves for beating carpet, the broom, the tack lifter and the screw driver, the mop and the home-made soft-soap. And also there was the saucer where they used to put the carpet tacks.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Montreal dress makers are still on strike and apparently the industry seems to be rather effectively sewed up.

Great Britain is asking her people to buy $493,000,000 worth of defense bonds and it is safe to predict that the whole issue will be subscribed promptly.

Winnipeg fire-fighters had to answer 86 calls in 48 hours, which does not seem to have left much time for checkers in the fire halls.

Canada's largest family has been incorporated as a limited company. Evidently however it is not limited in the matter of production.

St. Mary's reports the largest sale of rubber boots in the town's history. This time it is the flood and not the opening of the trout season that gets the credit.

The finances of the Nazi regime are said to be in bad shape. Not even a Hitler can build up a great army without spending money.

The events of Coronation day are to be broadcast for twenty-three hours in a row which we venture to point out leaves very little time for meals or repose.

Toronto may face a milk famine as a result of the Western Ontario floods. When there is too much water even for the milkmen the situation is undoubtedly bad.

And now the Globe and Mail wants Section 98 restored. The charge has always been made that it was only Mr. Bennett that saw any useful purpose in that particular piece of legislation.

President Roosevelt has warned civil servants that speculation on the stock market may cost them their jobs. In many cases it has already cost them their shirts.

Grocers may have to go on a sit-down strike according to the president of their association. At that it would be something new for a grocer to have a chance to sit down.

Winnipeg electric railway employees are asking for a Federal board of arbitration to consider their request for a restoration of the 13 per cent wage cut made some years ago. That is a more sensible way of seeking redress than the American sit-down strike idea.

WORRIED

(By A. B. K.)

¶ A little book came in today, to tell what men should wear in May, told how they should be dressed; it told how suits should all be cleaned, and emphasis was placed, it seemed, on how they should be pressed.

¶ A man who wears the sloppy clothes, is marked most everywhere he goes, folk think he is in need; they mark him as a shiftless guy, who has disaster in his eye, they're sure he's gone to seed.

¶ A man should have six suits they say, when comes the merry month of May, and outing costumes too; I learned about the color scheme, that runs from grey to brown and green, likewise three kinds of blue.

¶ It tells about men's ties and shoes, gives hints on how to pick and choose, in daytime or at night; if I gave heed to all I read, no doubt I could go straight ahead, and always be dressed right.

¶ But like a lot of books I've tried, it left me much unsatisfied, some things it did not say; for raiment that I'm wearing now, I know twill have to do some how, when we move into May.

¶ If they would tell me what to do, so last year's suits would look like new, how pleasant I would feel; my trousers bag around the knees, they look like stovepipes or great trees—and fringe about the heel.

Why Wild Life Needs Guarding

I do not believe the man exists who would not get a thrill to have a trout or pickerel or any other species of fish on his line and bring him in. I have been told that a few years ago fishermen used to go out and slaughter hundreds of pounds of fish and ship them to different points around the globe. Such a catch could only be conceived in a nightmare or a bad dream. What has become and is becoming of our fish? This is a very serious question and I do not believe I can answer it completely but I can give my opinion.

Take for instance dams; they cut fish off from their spawning ground and thousands of young never develop into fish. Then, too, gaffing in the spring often cuts and kills many fish containing spawn. Such a practice should be stopped. Also many people catch spawning fish and destroy thousands of invaluable fish. Our fish are invaluable to us. Last year in Canada there was spent enough money to give each person five dollars and that's a lot of money. When you catch fish out of season you are not only cheating your fellow fishermen but the government. The money collected from the fishermen in various ways helps the government to carry on road building, reforestation, re-stocking streams, hiring wardens and protecting our remaining fish.

Hunting Is Popular

Another sport almost as popular is hunting. It is a sport that most people enjoy a great deal. Take the men who every year go deer and big game hunting; every year thousands of people go to their favorite hunting grounds to get a shot at a deer or moose or whatever good fortune should bring them and they do not mind paying well for it.

Trapping is not just a sport but an important occupation. Every year many men make their living at trapping; beaver, racoon, mink, otter, muskrat, etc., are trapped and sold. Men earn their living at it and people enjoy the luxury and necessity of its products. Our fur-bearing animals must not be slaughtered but protected.

It is a good job nature provided our game with a cunning and crafty means of protection. It is scarcely a necessity to shoot a partridge, for that reason and because of the fact that they are becoming extinct, a season has not been put on them in this district for many years. But that doesn't stop some selfish hunters from shooting them. I think it is a mark of very poor sportsmanship to hunt and kill partridge or any other game out of season.

They Are Still Here

I know of several places close to Peterborough where you can still find a few partridge and pheasants, but if they were not the cleverest birds that ever flew they would have been killed long ago. The farming men with these haunts help a great deal also. You read about pheasant and partridge hunts where a good hunter gets anywhere from four to ten of these birds. Who would not pay plenty for such an opportunity?

I have been told that every year millions of dollars is spent by tourists both fishing and hunting, for liquor. The government collects large sums of money every year from tourists and sportsmen. Gasoline, licenses, equipment, accommodation, etc., are needed by these tourists and they buy them here from our own people. Indians depend upon the money they make in the summer guiding, selling bait, renting boats and cottages, to help them through the winter.

Partridge and other birds do a large share in insect killing. The value of our livelihood is realized by few but profited in by all.

Of course there are disadvantages in everything, and the fact that some tourists cause forest fires is a shame. Forest fires destroy the haunts and also the game that live in them, to say nothing of the great wealth in lumber that is destroyed. Why not force tourists to employ a licensed guide or force them to stay out of the forests? Should we lose our fish and game, the business of guiding, etc., would go with it. If wild life is to be maintained at its present level it is up to the guides and us to do our part in protecting it. We should have a better understanding between ourselves. Such men as Grey Owl are the best friend of wild life and should be acknowledged so.

The government can and is doing its part in stocking streams, enforcing and making laws and advertising the fact that our fish, fur and game is so valuable to the public in common.

CHOOSING A WIFE.

(Smiths Falls Record-News)

"What is your ideal of a wife?" was in conversation with a local young unmarried man and in the course of same the question of marriage arose. The young man seemed to be badly bitten by the matrimonial bug. He longed to be married but claimed he could not afford it. We encouraged him by stating that if every man waited until he could afford to join the benedicts there would be a great decline in marriages. His countenance immediately brightened up. We could not resist asking him what he considered was an ideal wife. "Let me see," he said, quite seriously, and after a few moments' thought continued with, "Well, every man's ideal should be to marry a good cook, a witty companion, a skilful housekeeper and a devoted mother." Not bad for a young man —(wonder where he read that). Perhaps some husbands would have disillusioned him by stating that polygamy was against the law.

"A SUFFERER" WRITES

Editor Examiner.

Sir: Judging from the activity around the Brock Street Rink, it seems quite evident the management are making preparations to blossom forth with their annual nightmare in the form of a Dance Hall.

In spite of numerous protests, petitions and deputations to the Mayor and City Council, just why no action has been taken to carry out the wishes of the residents of this district, it is hard to understand.

Surely as decent, orderly, respectable citizens they have some rights. Instead of having to endure six nights of uproar every week from early spring until late in Fall, are they not entitled to the same peace and quietness that residents of Homewood Ave. or Park St. for instance, enjoy?

We are called on to pay heavy taxes just as they are, so why the discrimination?

Trusting something can and will be done at once to eliminate this nuisance, I am,

Yours very truly,
"ONE OF THE SUFFERERS"

ANSWER—NO 8-HOUR LAW

Editor Examiner.

Sir: Is there any law or justice for working hours where a firm works on 8 to 12 noon and 1 to 5 o'clock, and noon hour, and also work before 8; labor put in on the 8-hour day. Or again can a man be expected to put out as much work in 8 hours as the man does who goes in to work before he is supposed to be working? These men know they are working out of schedule. Why not some of the heads of the firm go early and investigate. The truth will win out. No man should have to work in between hours scheduled to make a fair living and, seconds in clothing. Does this build good Canadians of good citizenship? Awaiting reply through medium of your paper.

WIFE OF RETURNED SOLDIER.

INTERESTED IN REPORT

Editor Examiner.

Sir: I was very much interested in the report of Mr. White, the acting Sanitary Inspector, that his efficiency is unquestionable and efficiency in civic affairs should be considered first, especially such offices as sanitary inspector and city engineer, no matter where the application comes from, for a few dollars saved in salaries generally results in many dollars lost in results, and places our city in the same category as the farmer who steps into the store and picks up a bushel of clover, government standard No. 2, with a minimum germination of 80% for $10.00, when there was at his hand the clover seed. Government Standard No. 1, with a germination 99% for $20.00. It pays the farmers to buy the very best seed, regardless of cost, so it will pay our city to obtain the very best officials from the school teacher down to the man that sweeps the streets.

I was very much pleased a short time ago in talking to the reeve of one of the most outstanding townships of Central Ontario, when he said that Peterborough County had the most efficient Clerk of any county in Ontario, being the young lady from the farm, the only lady county clerk in Ontario.

Coming to the pasteurization of milk. Without a doubt pure raw milk outclasses pasteurized milk. Some years ago a man in this county put three calves for three months on pasteurized milk at a temperature of 160 degrees, and three calves on the natural milk as it came from the cows for the same length of time, and those fed on the natural milk outclassed the others by far.

And I, myself, took four pigs and put them on pasteurized whey for 2 months and four pigs from the same litter and put them on the natural whey as it came from the vat, for the same length of time, and those fed on the natural whey outclassed the others at least 25 per cent.

A number of years ago I had a grand-daughter in the Sick Children's Hospital, in Toronto, afterwards in Dr. Robertson's own private hospital. When the parents took the child home the doctor said for them to give the child all the pure raw milk that she would take and be sure and not give her pasteurized milk.

Personally, I am on the eve of seventy-six years, and three dollars will cover all my doctor bills and medicine. I have always been able to relish my three meals a day and sleep each night so loud that others in the house could not sleep. I put the blame on that good old butter-milk from the old wood churn, powerful with its lactic bacteria, for breakfast, and through the hot days in summer time from that old gallon jug sitting in the old spring of real cold water, on that old square hundred on Creekside farm, on the fifth concession of Sidney. There should be no discrimination in the sale of pasteurized milk or raw milk.

I feel that Mr. White will help our raw milk vendors over the hard spots. Our raw milk vendors are good fellows, and what they need is a Sanitary Inspector who knows and is able to give them the knowledge they require, and they will follow. Thanking you.

I remain,
W. H. MERRELL,
218 McDonnell St.

The Trucks On the Highways.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

LONE spring days. Clean, dry pavements. The procession of motor vehicles gaining numbers—trucks prominent in the line that never ends. Trucks with big square bodies like cottages. Powerful fellows with a trailer or two—the "freight trains of the highways." Trucks carrying tons of merchandise. Trucks loaded with wood and with gravel and horses. Modest little trucks carrying the farmer's produce to market. Trucks of all weights and lengths and sorts.

Watching this branch of the commercial world take to its Summer wheels one is reminded that for 1938 Premier Hepburn promised in his budget speech a flat reduction of 25 percent. in the license fees on all commercial vehicles and commercial trailers, estimating that this would mean a saving of approximately a million dollars a year to 80,000 owners. He said it would give "a distinct impetus to business generally," and in particular to "those engaged in farming, and in small enterprises where the margin between profit and loss has been small."

Thus we have every reason to expect that a year hence there will be more trucks on the highways, heavier and longer trucks—and going faster under the fifty-mile speed law that becomes effective next month. More trucks will carry more goods as truck transport is given its impetus at the expense of the railways. The commercial trucks will make more money, while the railways will make less—and the people, receiving less in license fees from truck-owners, dig down into their pockets to meet a deficit on the National system greater than it would have been if the railways' competitors were regulated as the railways are regulated.

A good case could be made out for cutting the license fees on small trucks used by farmers for handling their own produce or by merchants in local delivery. But to cut by one-quarter the fees paid by the huge contraptions that thunder over country roads and city streets, that haul goods hundreds of miles in direct competition with the steam lines; to encourage "congestion of the public highways by a type of heavy traffic in which passenger cars move at their peril—this is a proposition that will not, we think, find much public favor.

Mr. Hepburn's kindness to the trucks, his generous treatment of them, pass the bounds of fairness to the public interest. He scorns the proposal of the Dominion Government that truck transport should be regulated by the Railway Board as railway transport is controlled to the last tiny detail. He gives trucks a cut in license fees which may or may not be extended to passenger cars. He includes commercial vehicles in the extension of the legal speed limit. His welcome extension of the motor transport business, and if the railways suffer it's just too bad for the railways!

Mounties For the Tourists.

(From the Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

NIAGARA Falls Review calls for "a few Mounties in full uniform" to stroll along the River Road and in the park in order that U.S. visitors may not be disappointed when they come over expecting to see members of the famous force. They have been accustomed, the Review says, to seeing the scarlet and blue uniform in motion pictures.

Well, it may be all right to cater to the tourist trade, but it would hardly be practicable for this country to live up to the high-power fiction presented in film plays. To have detachments of Royal Canadian Mounted Police at border points, without substantial reason for such outlay of the taxpayers' money, would be merely encouraging those dim-wits who come across the line in summer with snowshoes, expecting to run out to the Rocky Mountains and back before evening.

The R.C.M.P. get a great many miscellaneous jobs in these days, such as guarding income tax offices and running down illicit stills. With extensive mechanization of their transport, much of the old romance has gone. In the East, there are now many assignments in which the display feature predominates, such as New York Horse Shows.

The great traditions for which the force is famous are mainly associated with the record of the Royal North West Mounted Police in the West in pioneer days. The field remains, however, that R.C.M.P. personnel is chosen as carefully as ever, and trained and equipped to perform difficult tasks—which, indeed, it still performs in at least a part of its original territory. Physical and educational requirements on enlistment are exacting, and men of excellent character are liable to discharge if found unsuitable for police work. According to the regulations, R.C.M.'s and constables "have, by law, large powers and responsibilities placed upon them." They should be possessed of "intelligence, discretion, firmness, active habits and good temper," in the performance of any duty connected with an arrest, they are required to "proceed, even in the face of threats or danger," and any breach of discipline is severely dealt with.

An excess of ornamental duties is not appropriate for a force of the character of the R.C.M.P., and one cannot wholeheartedly concur in the suggestion that a detachment should be designed to stroll through the park at Niagara Falls for the edification of U.S. visitors.

LEARNING CIVICS.

(Brantford Expositor)

THOSE who have an ambition to serve the municipalities in public affairs should esteem it an honor to be qualified for efficient service. Perhaps if more attention were paid to this question there would be better and more economical municipal administration in many places. The embarassed condition of various municipalities during the long years of the depression was a warning that there was much to learn in civic government. If the University of Toronto has stimulated a real interest in these subjects in its course of instruction it will deserve commendation.

THE ROYAL CITY.

(St. Catharines Standard)

ONE hundred and ten years ago yesterday someone, buried now in the mist of the past, took an axe and cut down a giant maple where the Guelph C.N.R. station now stands. It was the beginning of a clearance which is now the City of Guelph, a city of fine homes, churches, schools and busy factories. It is also a city nourished with its share of government institutions, and it has furnished some splendid men to the public life of Canada. Each Canadian city has an individual history of its own and Guelph may be said to have been built largely, from its very inception, on Scotch thrift.

A CONSEQUENCE.

(Philadelphia Bulletin)

TO say that the "foreign relations" whom Premier Hepburn charges with invading Canada have created chaos in the United States is exaggerated. But it shows the strong impression that the little checked use of the illegal sit-down, the disregard of the orders of the courts, and the failure of responsible public authorities to meet the situation with firm mood and action have created among the border.

UNDER DISPUTES ACT

Striking Ontario Longshoremen May Demand Conciliation Board.

OTTAWA, April 28 (CP).—As they are engaged in transportation services, striking longshoremen on the waterfronts at Toronto, Hamilton and Point Edward, Ont., come within the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, Labor Department officials said today. The Act empowers the Labor Minister to set up a conciliation board if it is required. Longshoremen said yesterday they would ask for a board if the steamship companies refused to deal directly with the strikers. No request for mediation by such a body had been received at the Department today.

STEEL DROPPED $7.00 A SHARE

Fresh Selling Onslaughts Opened Wide Wall Street Market

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP). — Speculative markets bent under a fresh selling onslaught in trading today, paced by a wide break in United States steel shares.

U.S Steel dropped as much as $7 a share on a general retreat in stocks attributed by brokers partly to the news from Washington focusing attention on United States Govt ernment efforts to put the brakes on advancing wholesale and retail prices.

Bethlehem Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and other steel shares also fell sharply. Many other industrial and rail shares were off $1 to more than $7 in one of the steepest declines in the last year.

TELEGRAPHS FOOL

Stratford, Kitchener and Guelph were disrupted.

Between Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal the mirrors had its fling, delaying transmission of news reports and tying up commercial services for a while. An unusual feature was the appearance of the interference on the short-distance circuits in Ontario and Quebec and down to Halifax.

"Clock aurora" was the description given by the telegraph officials to the latest attack. It changes the wires and appears with pendulum-like regularity, they said, especially severe on high-speed signals of the mechanical telegraph systems.

Wires running from east to west generally bear the brunt of the aurora, but today it hit the north-south communications also.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 28. — Indications of an oversold market following Monday's five-cent crash were revealed when brokers staged a last-minute rush to even their holdings on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in face of skyrocketing corn prices at Chicago.

Good export demand and unfavorable weather reports kept wheat prices on an even keel until the final spurt left values 2½ to 3¼ cents higher.

Export purchases of Canadian wheat, estimated at 500,000 bushels, were made in early trading, and then periods of dullness following some belated liquidation in May reduced opening gains, but July and October generally held to two-cent advances, being aided by inter-market spreading against sales of September wheat at Chicago.

Bullish factors were reports of dust-storms in Saskatchewan's southern drought areas, high temperatures in South-western Alberta, and generally no beneficial rains in the United States winter wheat belt. Firm overseas markets and renewed Continental buying from other sources than Canada were encouraging factors.

CHICAGO GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 28. — (C. P.) — Widely moving wheat prices recovered from early losses on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today in light and erratic trading. Prices broke sharply in early trading in sympathy with overseas weakness, lower security markets and absence of export buying.

Insurgent Armed Cars Close In On Bilbao

Hidden in the ruins of the village of Ochandiano, these armored cars belonging to the insurgent Spanish troops led by Gen. Emilio Mola, are being mustered for the final drive on the Basque capital of Bilbao, reported about to fall to the Fascist chieftain. Attacked by land and harassed by sea, Bilbao was placed in imminent peril of capture when the towns of Durango and Eibar were taken by Mola's troops. The civil governors were reported attempting to negotiate a peaceful surrender to the northern rebel general. Loyalist resistance to the insurgents was reported crumbling on a wide crescent shaped front.

Toronto Kiwanians Lease Casa Loma

Toronto, April 28 (CP)

BOARD of Control authorized the lease of Casa Loma, Toronto hillside castle, to the West Toronto Kiwanis Club to-day under a plan in which the public will be permitted to inspect the buildings for 25 cents, the city to take 25 per cent of the gross receipts. The plan goes to city council for approval.

Graham Bland, property commissioner, recommended acceptance of the club's offer and pointed out the city would derive revenue from the giant structure taken over from Sir Henry Pellatt for back taxes.

Terms of the lease said there would be no cost to the city. The club is to bear any cost of repairs to put the palace in condition for the supervised tours. The agreement can be terminated "upon reasonable notice."

WATER SITUATION BECOMES SERIOUS

000-gallon supply is out. The north wells with 1,000,000-gallon supply are out and the lower wells at Springbank, which supply close to 1,000,000 gallons daily are also out.

"We are hoping we may get something started at the north end pumping station but we are not sure. Some of the motors were wet there. We have a 1,000,000-gallon supply south of the city but it is pumped through the Ridout station and we therefore can't get it.

"We have gang of men working there now, digging out the main from the south to install temporary pumps out on the street near the Ridout station but it will be two or three days before we get it going. The Ridout station itself will not be in operation for a couple of weeks."

All Civic Employees Out.

Several hundred Department of Works employees and firemen joined flood victims to-day in clearing London's flood zone as the waters of the Thames river receded.

In West London muddy ooze covered floors of stores, homes and business establishments. The mud was six and eight inches deep on floors close to the river and a foot thick on some streets.

Motorized snow plows were brought into service to shove the mud and slime from the streets while men wielding shovels completed the task.

The water ruined radios, refrigerators and other electric appliances in the homes and stores swept by the flood which has gripped the city since Monday. Buildings were flooded to a depth of 10 ft. after the swollen Thames, 30 feet above normal, plunged over the west London breakwater, sweeping one man to his death and causing $3,000,000 property damage.

The river dropped 26 feet from its high mark but bridges into the flood area remained closed although motorists with business visits were permitted to enter. Pavements were undermined and warning signs erected at danger zones.

Large sections of sidewalks were swept away. Garages collapsed. The new bleachers from Labatt park floated over the fence and stopped two blocks away, leaning against houses. Part of the park grandstand was wrecked.

Home Is Wrecked.

The side of one new brick house in West London was torn out, exposing rooms on the first floor and the basement furnace. Tow trucks were busy hauling to garages autos stalled in flood waters and buried in the muddy flow.

One car stalled apparently as its owner backed from his home with his family as the flood approached. Personal possessions they attempted to save were lying to-day in the back of the mud-covered car.

Doors were torn off houses and stores and drifted along with the current. Gravel roadways were completely washed away. Foundations in buildings showed large cracks.

Store owners and assistants shovelled the thousands of dollars of ruined food stuffs and other produce into the streets. Fruit, vegetables, packaged goods and supplies were ruined.

Menfolk were busy at repair work in West London, noted for the number of children playing on its streets. To-day not a child or woman could be seen. Men working in the homes, unfit for meals, went outdoors to eat their lunches.

The worst damaged home in Broughdale, North London suburb, was a $25,000 structure. It was only recently completed, and had not been occupied. To-day it was wrecked, the entire front torn away by the pounding waters of the north branch of the Thames. A six-foot hole was gouged in the front yard.

Firemen and workmen pumped water from cellars and from under the pavement on the streets. Preparations were made to fill in dangerous washouts.

Ten feet of water still covered Springbank Drive leading west from South London, and a half-dozen cars were submerged. Houses were half-covered with the water.

Railways Threatened.

LONDON Ont., April 28.—(CP)—With the Canadian National Railway's only artery to the west of the city threatened by flood waters at the Cove bridge and a settling of the Canadian Pacific Railway track along the Otter Creek near Port Burwell on the Port Burwell Subdivision, the flood and washout condition on railway lines in Western Ontario was worse today.

With an extra gang of workers unloading 30 cars of ballast material at the Canadian National Railway Cove bridge and trains backed up beyond Hyde Park waiting to crawl over the westbound track into the city, the situation at this point is regarded as extremely serious.

No Time For His Own Trouble.

LONDON, Ont., April 28.—(CP)—Captain John T. Gore, manager of the Red Cross, and one of the busiest men in the city, is himself a refugee, his house in Cove Ranges was nearly under water; it is largely a loss.

While Captain Gore Monday was in the midst of feverish organization to care for refugees, his wife and child were being taken out in a rowboat. The family have nothing left but their clothing.

RAIN FALLS AGAIN

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 28 (CP) —Flood danger appeared again today as heavy rain started falling in this district. When rain stopped last night the Grand River flood peak appeared reached but renewal of the downpour might bring further flood waters from the river's upper reaches.

Brantford has been protected by its $500,000 dyke system which kept the river within its bed through the city.

STRATFORD WORRIED

STRATFORD, Ont., April 28 (CP) —Danger of a recurrence of Monday's flooding which caused at least $20,000 damage here and isolated half a dozen homes on Monday was seen today if the steady rain which started early today continued. The fact the dam embankment is out, which would allow the water to get downstream faster and possibly prevent it from backing upstream as it did on Monday, was seen as a favorable factor for Stratford, but not for those places downstream which suffered from Monday's flood.

NITH RISING

PARIS, Ont., April 28 (CP)—Waters of the Nith River here rose today to the highest level in 40 years but serious damage is not feared. It is believed the danger is over.

STEADY DOWNPOUR AT GALT

GALT, Ont., April 28 (CP)—Fifth day of rain here, a steady downpour started at midnight and has continued since then. The wind changed to the west and temperatures started to rise. The precipitation had no effect on the Grand River here which has dropped about a foot since yesterday. District farmers are becoming impatient with the delay in getting back to work on the fields.

Fort Frank Menaced.

SARNIA, Ont., April 28.—(CP)—Village of Port Frank, Bosanquet township in the north-east corner of Lambton county, was menaced again by flood waters to-day.

Reports received here, were to the effect summer cottages had been washed from their foundations by the waters of the Aux Sauble river, swollen above normal levels by continuous rains. Six other cottages were said to be in danger.

Port Frank, a summer resort, has a population of about 300. Floods are almost an annual affair.

A washout on the Canadian National Railway line east of Thedford was also reported. The relay system is being used to maintain traffic.

Trying to Save Bridge.

LONDON, Ont., April 28.—(CP)—A Canadian National Railway bridge and building gang worked feverishly for hours to-day piling 1,500 sand bags against the west abutment of the railway bridge on the south branch of the Thames river.

Just as the last bag had been placed and the workmen stepped back, the entire barricade of sand bags was swept away into the river.

Workmen had to start all over again to try and strengthen the abutment.

SIGNS $500,000,000 BILL.

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP). — The White House announced today that President Roosevelt signed the $500,000,000 naval appropriation bill for the 1938 fiscal year before leaving early this morning for a fishing cruise in southern waters.

AIR MASSACRE STIRS WRATH

the feeling of both sides of the House," Eden replied.

Cheers from the ministerial benches greeted this statement.

"If anything can be done we shall do it," Eden went on. "I do not think the House will expect me to say more today."

"Is it not possible for the council of the League of Nations to take action in respect to the massacres which have taken place?" asked Arthur Henderson, Labor.

"I think the House would prefer, so far as this government are concerned, that we should leave the matter as stated," Eden said. "There have been air bombardments by both sides in Spain."

The Labor benches protested loudly.

Eden declared that papers which reported the bombardment of Guernica had also reported the air bombardment of an open town by Spanish government planes.

"The Duchess of Atholl, Conservative, who returned from Madrid a few days ago, observed Guernica was not just a question of bombing planes seeking a definite objective but also a case of deliberately machine-gunning the civilian population.

Haughty Buckingham Duchess Sold Palace To George III

Victoria Was First Monarch To Make Palace Chief London Residence

ADDITIONS MADE

LONDON, April (C.P.)—King George and Queen Elizabeth, who will be crowned on May 12, have already taken up residence in Buckingham Palace, amid surroundings vastly different from their comparatively modest home at 145 Piccadilly.

Buckingham Palace, the chief London residence of the sovereign for exactly 100 years, is much older than that. It was on July 3, 1837, less than a month after she had been proclaimed Queen, that Victoria drove there in state from Kensington to take up residence.

More than a century earlier the then Prince of Wales, later George III., opened negotiations for lease or purchase of the building from the Duchess of Buckingham, a formidable widow who lived in high state and who is said to have been able to bargain "with the haughtiness of a Shrodite and the shrewdness of an estate agent."

The building was sold in 1762 for £28,000 ($140,000) to George III. as a dower house for the Queen, but the King eventually decided to enlarge it and make it a Royal palace.

The great architect of that period, Nash, who had designed the famous Regent Street quadrant which those of the older generation will remember, was entrusted with the work. But there were so many complications in connection with the project that nearly £750,000 were expended before ever a member of the Royal Family came to live there.

When Queen Victoria took up residence many additions were made. One improvement was the provision of a private chapel, which was built on the site of a conservatory. The Marble Arch, which used to stand in front of the palace as a memorial to Trafalgar and Waterloo, was removed to its present site on the northern side of Hyde Park.

Little of the interior of the palace is ever seen by the people at large. For the great garden parties the company passes merely through the lower apartments, which, though spacious, are not otherwise very impressive.

Rooms of Splendor.

Those bidden to evening courts naturally traverse the state apartments. Most sumptuous of them all is the ballroom, where the courts and state banquets are held. For an evening court the King and Queen, members of the Royal Family, their guests and the principal officers of the household pass into the ballroom by way of the blue drawing-room, the state dining-room, and the music room.

Six vast chandeliers illumine the scene as Their Majesties take their places on thrones on a dais at the west end of the ballroom. Above the thrones is a gorgeous canopy of crimson velvet embroidered with gold, made from the hangings of the Imperial Shamiana, beneath which the sovereign and consort sat at the Durbar in 1911. The Imperial Crown, carved and gilded, surmounts it.

The ballroom is 123 feet long, 60 feet wide, and 46 feet high. The [illegible] and the reception of official deputations is almost as impressive in size and stately appurtenances. The green drawing-room is used as a supper room for evening courts.

The most celebrated of private Royal banquets is the King's annual dinner to the Jockey Club, when the King takes his place in the centre of the dining table, which is 70 feet long. The Queen sits opposite. King, Queen, and all the guests use gilt chairs of the regency period.

During the last 36 years the state rooms of Buckingham Palace have frequently been enriched by the intimate knowledge which Queen Mary possesses of the treasures within this great building. There are magnificent paintings of Royal personages ranging from works by Gainsborough to the fine full-length portraits of King George and Queen Mary by Richard Jack.

English and foreign furniture of the rarest type is arranged in well-nigh inexhaustible variety. Hundreds of clocks and barometers comprise a collection founded by George III.

'Gone With The Wind' Is The Theme Of This Season's Romantic Taffeta Gown

Civil War Days Suggested By Silken Frock.

By LISBETH.

Style creators must be constantly alert for new ideas. Everything that happens and everything that just is, may be incorporated by them into motifs for madame's costumes.

The coronation influence is naturally very strong this year, and with it have come the Victorian and Edwardian themes. Various exhibits of pictures by famous artists have their influence on fashion, as do various periods in French history and numerous peasant costumes. Even books may bring out new, or revive old, styles.

This latter was the case in that popular seller of last summer, "Gone With the Wind", which appears the theme for this evening dress in black silk taffeta, with a deep fichu of white lace ruffles which crosses in front and is finished with a tiny old-fashioned nosegay at the point of the V. Notice the dainty handkerchief, and the white organdie and lace petticoat flounce and cording which makes the skirt stand out like a hoopskirt.

Lamp Shade Silhouette

This is the lamp shade silhouette, which is the modern version of the hoopskirt, usually done in heavy taffeta, with yards and yards of swirling skirts accented with wide ruchings.

Silk taffeta ranks high for evening, especially for this romantic type of gown. In addition to the plain taffetas there are warp-printed versions, stripe and floral printed silk taffetas. The newest looking warp prints are on white grounds, sometimes jacquarded, and with a decided pompadour effect. Black taffeta is a popular choice for the domino evening wrap, as well as for the lamp shade type evening gown.

Another characteristic of the late spring and early summer evening mode is the tendency to combine different silks in the same costume. Take the redingote theme, for instance, which is popular for both daytime and evening and you see it developed in combinations of rich silks. Silk taffeta is suggested for redingotes over satin foundations.

Evening gown has a "gone with the wind" motif in black silk taffeta, with a deep fichu of white lace ruffles, and a white organdie and lace petticoat flounce and cording which make the skirt stand out like a hoopskirt.

EVERY QUESTION CONCERNS WOMEN

Mrs. Joseph A. Lyons Of Australia Tells Part They Must Play

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 28 (CP) — Before leaving with her daughter, Miss Sheila Lyons, for the Coronation, Mrs. Joseph A. Lyons, wife of the prime minister, in an address, spoke of references that had been made to the impressions and the friendships she had made during her visit to England for the Jubilee in 1935. "If I made any impression upon people I met," she said, "it was only because I believe that friends are everywhere throughout the world for people who feel friendly."

Every question is a woman's question, she said. "Women in general are not particularly interested in national questions. A band of women gathered together as you are in an organized body to study questions of public importance can give a lead for women who do not take the interest in public affairs that they should.

"The result of the recent referendum provided overwhelming proof that the majority of people did not give the question any consideration whatever. They merely decided, as they did not know what it was all about, the safest thing was to vote no. That is how I believe most people regard national and international questions today. Why bother themselves personally about issues in which they cannot definitely see some connection with their own lives."

Mrs. Lyons is president of St. Joan's Alliance in Australia. She remarked: "Upon us as members of this alliance, as Catholic suffragettes, as Catholic feminists, there devolves a very great responsibility indeed in helping to formulate the opinions of women on questions that are of great moment to them, to us, and to the world at large. You have got to carry that responsibility whether you like it or not, particularly in questions that are commonly called women's questions."

MAKES CABBAGE FIT FOR KINGS

American Hostess In Ottawa Reveals Catchy Recipes Of Many Lands

HAS LARGE COLLECTION

OTTAWA, April 28.—(CP).—During her key visits in foreign lands, Mrs. Ely Elliott, Palmer, wife of the counsellor of the United States' legation here, collected a variety of recipes designed to tempt the most jaded spring appetite.

For the homely cabbage Mrs. Palmer has one from Roumania that continues where the walrus ended in his "talk of cabbages and kings." Here it is:

"Select a fine, firm head of cabbage. Scald with boiling water and let stand for one-half hour. Drain and dry with a soft cloth. Take two teaspoons of rice, one-half pound of sausage meat, a little chopped onion and parsley and mix well.

"Open the centre of the cabbage and carefully put in a spoonful of the mixture between the leaves until each layer is stuffed. Press together, tie in a cheese cloth bag. Put in salted boiling water and boil for two hours. Serve hot with cream sauce and garnish with fried sausage."

From Spain she has a new dress for the cauliflower:

"Take one pound of cauliflower, cook well in salted water (cold) drain and wash by hand, add one cup of peas, one-half cup of butter, two whites of eggs well beaten. Grease mold, add bread, bake in oven one-half hour. Serve with white sauce to which has been added cream, grated cheese and an egg yolk."

Ramadan month in Palestine, somewhat similar to Lent, is a time of real hardship for the Arab, says Mrs. Palmer. From dawn to dusk he cannot take even a glass of water and that on a hot summer day in Palestine (for this month varies according to the full-moon periods) is no joke. At dawn and at dusk, if he can distinguish a hair held up to the sky the Arab can break fast and indulge in a meal. And, from Mrs. Palmer's description, the meals are huge.

Grilled mutton and rice are the favorite dish. For eight people, Mrs. Palmer explained, the Arabs will roast perhaps 30 pounds of sheep and put it on a huge tray piled high with rice. The eight sit around and pluck the desired portions with their hands. Then spiced meatballs of cabbage meat might be served. "Top it off with a mixture of pastry filled with honey and chopped nuts and then a large slice of watermelon as a digestive and feel that you cannot possibly eat any more ever."

As a close to her list of recipes Mrs. Palmer has a sweet, Papanari by name, from Roumania: "One pound of cottage cheese, one tablespoon of sugar, one egg whole beaten and lemon rind. Make into cakes. Roll in flour, fry and serve with cream."

U.A.W. STARTS RIOT IN INDIANA TOWN

Strikers Battle 500 Of Night Shift And Bar Entrance To Plant

CONNERSVILLE, Ind., April 28.—(AP)—Eyes blood-shot from lack of sleep, approximately 800 workmen marched from the Rex Manufacturing Company's plant here today amid hoots and cat calls of more than 300 United Automobile Workers of America who had patrolled outside the building.

Shouts of "we want a closed shop" came from U.A.W.A. pickets.

The exodus from the plant was in decided contrast to the hand-to-hand combat last night in which three men suffered injuries requiring medical attention. Dozens of other workmen were cut and bruised in the rioting which followed the calling of a U.A.W.A. strike. Black eyes and bloody noses were numerous.

Elmer Davis, U.A.W.A. organizer, announced a temporary truce had been ordered pending a conference with Thomas Hutson, state labor commissioner.

The rioting began when the U.A.W.A. pickets prevented approximately 500 night shift workers from entering the building.

Davis said the strike had been called "because the company discriminated against U.A.W.A. members and declined to confer with a grievance committee."

Norwood A. Y. P. A. Presents Program At Havelock Association Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 28. — At the regular meeting of St. John's Anglican Young People's Association this week, the program was presented by members of the Norwood A.Y.P.A.

William Baskin, president of the Norwood group, took charge of the meeting and presented a very entertaining program, which included a vocal solo by Miss Helen Baskin, entitled "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere"; a piano solo by Miss Poote; a vocal solo by Joseph Ray, and a descriptive talk by Miss M. Fleming, B.A., on her trip to France last summer.

Of especial interest to the members was Miss Fleming's vivid description of her stay in Paris and the several amusing incidents concerning the French ways and customs. She noticed in particular that the French surpass even the Scotch in the practice of economy, and as an example told of a Frenchman who gesticulated excitedly and exclaimed, "They must either be crazy or millionaires," when she happened to mention that some Canadians even buttered both sides of their bread. That the French have other peculiar ideas of Canada was made evident when one of the native Parisians asked in all seriousness "whether it was true if cats wear snowshoes in Canada," to which Miss Fleming replied, "Well, the dogs have sleighs." Among other places which she described were the theatres, hotels, departments stores, Notre Dame Cathedral, sidewalk cafes, and night clubs. Several French coins, theatre tickets and bus tickets were passed among the members for their inspection.

The Havelock group will conduct the meeting next week, at which it is expected T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., will be present to address them.

Coronation Day Marks Feast Of Historic St. Joan Of Arc

Order To Be Followed Has Been In Use For 900 Years

SUNDAY CROWNING

LONDON, April 28.—(CP).— The order of the Coronation of the Kings and Queens of England as it will be used for the crowning of George VI and Elizabeth May 12, has been in use for more than 900 years and is believed the oldest of such rites in Christendom.

The Church has undergone a Reformation, and the State many revolutionary changes, yet the chief guide to the Coronation ceremonies is still the "Liber Regalis," which the Benedictine monks of Westminster composed in the days when many a crusading knight and baron still trod the earth.

In former times the Kings, either before or after the ceremony in the Abbey, made a progress in state through the City of London, attended by the Lord Mayor. For many years it was the practice of the sovereign to spend the night before his Coronation in the Tower of London and proceed thence by barge along the river to Westminster.

Every sovereign between William Rufus (William II) and Queen Elizabeth was crowned on a Sunday. There is a precedent though, for the holding of the Coronation on any day of the week and in any month of the year with the exception of March within the Lenten season.

By tradition Coronations may take place only on holy days specified in the Liber Regalis. Selection of May 12 for the Coronation this year, is, indirectly at least, a compliment to the French nation, for it is the Feast Day of St. Joan of Arc.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Women, it is said, have clearer minds than men—perhaps because they change them oftener.

Canadian Militia Off To Coronation

MONTREAL, April 28 (CP).—Canada sent her militia forces of land and air to the Coronation today. Laden with singing, cheering troops, the liner Montcalm started off down the St. Lawrence River in the first departure of uniformed soldiery from this inland port since Great War days.

Thousands of Montrealers lined the riverfront as Canada's official military contingent to King George's crowning sailed away.

Besides the soldiers and fliers, hundreds of civilians also sailed.

Brig.-General Alex. Ross, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, left too, in his pocket an invitation to visit Berlin as a guest of the German Association of Front Line Fighters. A group of Legion officials, were to go with him to meet their one-time enemies of the trenches.

25th Anniversary Will be Celebrated

A very interesting affair of tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon will be the Silver Anniversary tea to be held by the 57th Regiment, Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire in the recently-decorated Officers' Quarters at the Armories.

This chapter was organized in 1912, twenty-five years ago, the anniversary date falling on March 12th of this year, when the Lenten season was considered an inauspicious time for the celebration, which is to be held tomorrow. It was the first I.O.D.E. chapter to be organized in Peterborough and was named after the famous old 57th Regiment which sent so many men overseas in the Great War. During the war, this chapter did splendid work, both for soldiers overseas and for the dependents left behind, and it is still carrying on the last-named piece of service.

The membership is confined to wives, mothers, daughters or sisters of the active and non-active officers and men of the various military units, the veterans, and the nurses who served overseas. Being a strictly military chapter, it has always been closely associated with the militia units in Peterborough, especially the 57th Regiment, which was lately known as the Peterborough Rangers and is now, under the recent re-organization, known as the Prince of Wales Rangers.

Names of ladies appearing on the charter of 1912 included H. L. Clegg, Emma L. Mills, Isabel McT. Eastwood, Minnie Riggins, F. M. Davidson, Georgie Eastwood, Ida E. Hounsell, Helen Hall, D. Langford.

Among the past regents of the chapter were the late Mrs. E. B. Clegg, who was the first regent and who occupied that position on three different occasions; Mrs. Joseph Mills, Mrs. J. C. Davidson, Mrs. Duncan Walker, Mrs. J. H. Eastwood, Mrs. C. Stapleton, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, Mrs. R. O. Cottrell, Mrs. T. W. H. Young and Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, who is the present regent of the chapter.

COMMUNITY HEALTH

A Column Conducted by the Department of Public Health, Peterborough, in the Interests of Peterborough Citizens.

"HOW COLD IS YOUR REFRIGERATOR?"

Cold storage is our most successful method of keeping food in good condition. Proper refrigeration is, therefore, very important during the entire year, and especially so during the summer months.

Tests with refrigerators have shown that if the ice chamber is kept constantly filled, it is easily possible to maintain a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees F. At this temperature food will keep in good physical condition and is safe for use for several days, although most people prefer to use food which has not been preserved for so long a time.

Keep Temperature Even

In a refrigerator in which the temperature is allowed to fluctuate, that is, one in which the ice is not replenished until the ice chamber is nearly empty, food will keep only half as long, even though the rise in temperature does not amount to more than one or two degrees. For every degree above 52, the rapidity with which food spoils is greatly increased and for every degree maintained below 52, a considerably improved refrigeration is possible.

A constant temperature is desirable and is possible under ordinary household conditions if the refrigerator is well insulated and properly iced, otherwise many iceboxes are really favorable to spoilage. As the physical senses are not delicate enough to detect early spoilage, food may become unfit for use although not apparent to the senses of smell, taste or sight.

How To Protect Food

In addition to the proper care of the refrigerator itself, all food should be in the best possible condition when it is placed in the refrigerator. Cooked food should be pre-cooled and put in covered containers; milk ought to be kept covered in the bottle in which it was pasteurized, and fresh fruits and vegetables, cleaned and dried to prevent excess moisture and possibility of mold growth.

Even in commercial storage the low temperatures do not destroy the organisms responsible for the spoilage, but merely check their growth. Cold storage can, at best, only maintain and not improve quality. Even more important, then, is the initial condition of food in the case of the household refrigerator in which the temperature cannot possibly be as low as in commercial storage.

King's Own Class Gives Church $100

The members of "The King's Own Class" of St. James United Sunday School were entertained at the home of Mrs. George Butcher, Prince Street last night, with an attendance of thirty.

Mrs. Hess carried out the devotional period assisted by Mesdames Harris, Balk, Crofts and Galbraith. The business session of this busy class speaks well for its loyalty to the church, for it was carried to vote to give one hundred dollars to the church, fifty of which goes to the Steward's Board and fifty to the Renovation Fund now being collected for much needed repairs to St. James.

A paper collection is also under way as well as a "Coronation Tea" to be held in May. A social hour with Mrs. Ivison as convenor was enjoyed in games and contests. On behalf of the class, Mesdames Watson and Meeks expressed their sincere appreciation and thanks to Mrs. Butcher for her kindly hospitality.

The Peiping-Suiyuan Railway will be extended from Paotowchen to Ninghsia, China, a distance of 300 miles.

Another Link In Far East Empire

Adding another link to the chain of friendship and relationship between Japan and Manchoukuo was the marriage recently, of Pu Chieh, younger brother of Henry Pu-Yi, emperor of Manchoukuo, to Miss Hiroko Saga, granddaughter of the Marquis Kinto Saga, loyal supporters of Emperor Hirohito of Japan. The bride and groom were pictured at Tokio, Japan, shortly after their marriage.

PRESENTS RIGHT TO EARN WAGES

Women At Montreal Meeting Give Reasons For Wanting To Continue

MONTREAL, April 28 (C.P.). — Woman's right to retain her present status of wage-earner in the province of Quebec was given an airing in a debate at a meeting of the Montreal Women's Club.

The affirmative led off by declaring that man, unlike the bee, is able to predetermine the sex of his offspring. Consequently, females continue to be born. Investigation failed to discover any fund or scheme for maintaining the unmarried woman of the small income family or the one without relations or friends. Should she seek support from private charity, or has she a right to earn her living if she can get a job?

The case was cited of a man earning $8.00 a week, having four daughters at school. Should they, she asked, remain at home and the whole family be on a near-starvation level? The mother had obtained work at $3.50 a week in order that her girls might go on with their schooling and fit themselves for remunerative employment.

The fact that women have "made good" in the many types of work they have undertaken indicates their ability. The Privy Council had declared women to be "persons," consequently as persons they have the right to be wage-earners and should be taught not only the domestic arts but some trade or profession.

If a law forbidding women to be wage-earners should go into effect, Quebec could give the world the finest example of a sit-down strike yet recorded, it was predicted. It would bring about a feminine millenium if men were put to work at women's jobs in factories, had to stand behind counters serving women who "have all day to shop," had to scrub back-breaking miles of office floors. How should a man feel having to take dictation from an illiterate employer—and that employer having to put up with bad spelling minus the compensation of a pretty face, it was asked.

MOREOVER, something is or seems,
That touches me with mystic gleams,
Like glimpses of forgotten dreams—
Of something felt, like something here;
Of something done I know not where;
Such as no language may declare.
—Tennyson.

Dear Friends:

Did you ever think of making a little patchwork pattern of some of the nice things that have happened to you, so that you could take them out and look at them in the years to come. Thank God, I early learned that things don't last, and so I have a whole memory full of patchwork happenings that gladden my heart these days.

The time my sister was to sing at a dinner-dance, and they both got all dressed up, had a hairdresser come to the house and fix them up, ordered a cab, (or the escort did) had a lovely corsage sent up from the same source, and then arrived at the hall to be told by the janitor that they were a week too soon. We never let it die, as it was always good for a laugh, and the oftener it was told, the more hilarious it seemed.

The other time my sister (the brave one) went to go from one room to another, and came back white-faced and trembling and said there was a man in the hall-way. And we all clutched a poker or the fire-tongs, or a stick of some sort, but not one of us would move from the room.

Mother and Dad were at the opera, and would not be home till late, my brother was also out, and how we waited in fear and trembling until he came home, then each tried to thrust her weapon into his hands, until we had him nervous as ourselves. Then tip-toeing along, shushing each other, him warning us to stay back in case the man had a gun, and after what seemed an age, find out it was the large stocking bag which someone had hung there when they were in a hurry. Oh, boy, did we howl and laugh, and the brave one never could claim any bravery after that without someone saying "stocking bag."

And the time when Dad had to make an important speech and had it all written down in case he would forget part of it, then found when he got up he had only brought the second page, and the first part eluded him; so that we children who were there to give him moral support, tried to prompt him with disastrous results, and how after all it turned out to be the best speech he had ever made.

The time we borrowed our host's best golf-clubs and went gaily swinging along with them, breaking the head off one, and finding later he was to use them in a tournament, and how cast down we all were until he himself saw the humour of it. Incidentally, he won the match, but we each had to get our own clubs after that.

The time my sisters dared me to ride a work horse bare-back, and then when I was up on the beast, the hard work I had to stay there, for its back seemed broad as a table to me, and I was just eighty-nine pounds. If I came off, or fell off which was more likely, then I lost my bet, and had to kiss a boy. But I escaped the ordeal, more by good luck than good judgment, for the horse almost lost its mane, and I was more on than off.

The time we had a big executive to see Dad from Germany, (long before they even thought of a war) and he kept us up the best part of the night singing mostly "After the Ball is over." And the time Dad fell off a bridge while he was inspecting it, and none of us could understand why he hadn't drowned. Ten girls and two boys in a family can cause a lot of hilarity, and what the one did not think up, the other did.

And so I have given you some of the brighter parts of my quilt of memory, and some day I shall give you some of the somber ones. Hoping I am worthy of being part of your quilt.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Several thousand Basques and allied government soldiers were reported virtually trapped in Durango.

Insurgent officials at Irun earlier had reported the city had fallen.

Troops commanded by the Franco aide, Gen. Emilio Mola, held eastern approaches to Durango, while on the Bilbao side of the town, insurgent shellfire cut off retreat. The town's defenders struggled to hold their lines with armored cars but, thus surrounded, faced slow starvation unless they capitulated.

Insurgent reports set government casualties in the last three days at 10,000 and the number of prisoners at 5,000.

Insurgent officers openly said one of the Bilbaoward spearheads included 3,000 Italians and Germans —mixed "just so the Italians will not repeat the Brihuega adventure," referring to the Guadalajara defeat.

(It was reported the British freighter Shearwater arrived at the Basque capital with the seventh cargo of supplies to reach its 400,000 inhabitants through the insurgent naval blockade.)

JOINT GATHERING OF YOUNG PEOPLE

Societies From Three Campbellford Churches Take Part In Social Evening

CAMPBELLFORD, April 28. — The Young People of St. John's, St. Andrew's and Anglican churches held a fraternal gathering in the basement of St. John's United church, when the St. John's Young People's Union were hosts to the combined organizations.

Gathering at the invitation of the St. John's Y.P.U., Miss Ruth Pallister, president of the organization, expressed a hearty welcome on behalf of that organization to the visitors. Following a few suitable remarks Miss Vera Wood, president of the A.Y.P.A., was asked to preside for that portion of the program presented by her organization, which included a piano solo by Mrs. J. O. Benor; dramatization, T. Kerr; vocal solo, R. C. Ramsden; reading, Miss Vera Wood; and violin solo, Bruce Elmhirst, accompanied by Miss Phyllis Elmhirst.

St. Andrew's Program.

Mrs. Mary McFarlane, Vice-President of the St. Andrew's Young People's Society, presided for their portion of the program, which included a piano duet by Charles Allen and Arnold Bates; guitar solo, Miss Susie Atkinson; piano solo, Miss Grace Labrash; vocal solo, Miss Francis Hendy; guitar duet, Josephine and Douglas Locke; vocal solo, Dorothy Reynolds; reading, Mrs. M. McFarlane. Following this was a dialogue, entitled "Waiting for the Doctor," in which the following cast took part: Miss Hanks (the nurse), Beth McCee; Mrs. Biggs (a fat woman), Mary McCulloch; Mrs. White (who recovers), Betty Adams; Mrs. McCulloch, Mrs. Lowe (who is deaf), Muriel McArthur; Mattie (who has a sore hand), Helen McCee; Tom (who stutters), Ralph Rutherford; Mrs. Watson (who gets them easy), Jean Hendy; Pete (with a heavy sail), Jack McCredie; Mr. Brown (who got mixed), Wilbie Phillips; Mrs. Hill (and her timid daughter), Lovey, Ruth McCredie and Francis Hendy.

Following remarks by Rev. R. Simpson Black of St. Andrew's church, Rev. T. H. Floyd of the Anglican church, and Rev. Harold R. Neale of St. John's church, the evening was brought to a close with community singing followed by a grand march during which partners for lunch were chosen.

Many flood victims remained in the armories and in private homes. It will be several days before many dwellings are ready for re-occupation.

The sewage disposal plant remained closed indefinitely because of water-soaked motors. City Engineer Veitch announced it would be necessary to continue dumping raw sewage into the Thames.

Warnings again were issued by medical authorities that all drinking water should be boiled.

With re-opening of a third pumping station it was believed three-quarters of a normal water supply would be available.

Authorities continued testing sidewalks, roadway and bridges before re-opening them to the public as fipol waters receded. As streets became visible a few big holes were found in the road surface but damage was not generally extensive.

Block by block the water fell back, leaving not a foot of buildings, lands and streets without an ugly coating of mud and slime two and three inches thick.

Five Dead And Thousands Are Homeless As Flood Wave Paralyses Western Ontario

With the Thames and Grand rivers and their tributaries swelled to flood heights by heavy rains and melting snows, a large area of western Ontario including a dozen cities, town, and villages was submerged, many thousands were homeless and at least five persons lost their lives. London, Ont., was the hardest hit with 6,000 forced to evacuate their homes as the Thames river rolled a flood crest, the highest in 40 years into the city over protecting breakwaters. Woostock was isolated with all highways reported under water and most of Oxford county submerged. Buses and automobiles strewed roads throughout the entire area marooned by the unprecedented flood wave. View of the wrecked C.N.R. express in which two of the crew were killed is shown (TOP LEFT), with water still lapping at the roadbed and wreckage. At (TOP RIGHT), an Ingersoll home, the family automobile still parked outside is completely isolated. A rescue scene in London is pictured (LOWER LEFT) with hip-booted rescuers carrying a marooned resident from his water-logged home. The main bridge over the Thames at Ingersoll, shown (LOWER CENTRE) with the torrent already washing at its flooring was carried away a few hours later, while the motor bus pictured at (RIGHT) was one of many stranded on the provincial highways.

Sultans On Way

Most of the splendor, however, is yet to come, with the arrival of several sultans, some of whom Londoners have never seen and heard but little. Among the most picturesque of this group is the Sultan of Transjordania, the bearded Emir Abdullah.

Son of the Sherif Hussein, who aroused his followers to revolt during the Great War and fought side by side with the British forces in the Palestine campaign, the Emir distinguished himself during the fighting.

He called the Turkish garrison at Taif to surrender, and was in command of the Arab army when Damascus fell. After the war he was placed in charge of the new province of Transjordania, where he rules under British supervision.

Another distinguished visitor, one of the few who attended the last coronation, will be Seyyid Sir Khalifa Bin Harub, Sultan of Zanzibar. When he came to his throne in 1911, Zanzibar had been a British protectorate for several years. He respected that state of affairs when war broke out and kept the Arabs along the east coast of Africa friendly to the British. He is the acknowledged head of the Mohammedans on that coast.

Richest From India

From India will come the largest coronation contingent, among them Sultans, Msharajahs and officials on high standing. Between them they possess fabulous riches.

One of the most distinguished and best known eastern visitors will be the Sultan of Jahore, progressive state at the southernmost tip of the Malay peninsula. He has frequently visited England and was married in a London registry office to a Scots woman, the former Mrs. Helen Wilson.

Two years ago the Sultan celebrated with great ceremony the 40th anniversary of his accession to the throne. He is numbered among the wealthiest men in the world, and, on the occasion of the silver jubilee of King George V and Queen Mary, gave $3,500,000 as token of his loyalty, the money to be used to hasten completion of the Singapore naval base.

London, April 28 (AP)

MRS. Wallis Simpson completed Tuesday the required six months of "good behavior" in her divorce action and became all but free to marry the Duke of Windsor.

Only legal technicalities were necessary before her divorce from Ernest Simpson became final and these, it was expected, would be fulfilled within a fortnight.

Mrs. Simpson is remaining in seclusion at Chateau de Candé near Monts, France. The Duke is in Austria.

fied transient killed in the derailment of a train near Woodstock. The other was Joseph Britton, who was drowned when he fell from a boat in a London street.

Searchers are still continuing their hunt for the body of Dr. J. H. MacDonald of Ingersoll, swept to his death in his automobile while answering a call Monday in the wreck which took the lives of two trainmen as well as the transient.

Those seeking to estimate the flood's destruction counted damage to reservoirs, dams, bridges, roads, water and sewage mains and power equipment throughout a wide section of Western Ontario.

London set its loss at near $3,000,000. Tillsonburg's was counted at $100,000 by Mayor William Butch. St. Mary's lost an estimated $10,000. Stratford escaped with about $20,000 damage. Many smaller centres additional sums to their totals as the damage total and farming districts were heavily hit.

In all affected centres today residents scanned the skies, hopeful of clearing weather. They dreaded heavy rainfall which might send the rampaging Thames and Grand Rivers and their tributaries on the loose again.

CAMPBELL KEEPS PROMISE TO KIN

British Speed Driver Will Not Try To Break Record Of 304

LONDON, April 28.—(CP) — Fulfilling a pledge, Sir Malcolm Campbell has decided not to make any further attempts to break his own world land speed record of 304 miles per hour. "I made a definite promise to my family that if I reached the speed of 300 m.p.h., I would not make any further attempts on the automobile speed record," he explained. "I have reached 300 and I am to adhere to that promise, much to my regret."

But Sir Malcolm finds he cannot live without the thrill of speed. He has turned his attention from land to water.

For the last 18 months he has been engaged in construction of a new type of one-man high-speed motor boat. He hopes to try it out for the first time on Scotland's Loch Lomond in June.

Nothing But The Real Thing

KOKOMO, Ind.—The boy who played the role of "Tom Sawyer" in a nearby rural school's dramatic production startled the audience by swinging an honest-to-goodness dead cat instead of a "prop." The part had called for a dead cat, so the boy went out and killed one.

WATERS REACHED 8 FEET UP WALLS ON FIRST FLOOR

Tales Of Residents 12 Blocks From Thames River Indicates Story Of Many

EVERYTHING LOST

LONDON, Ont., April 28 (C.P.)—Loss suffered by Mr. and Mrs. F. Nicol, Paul Avenue, was indicative of the losses suffered in hundreds of homes in the West London area flooded on Monday night.

The water reached eight feet up the walls of the first floor which was several feet above the ground on property considered safe from Thames River floodings because it was a dozen blocks away from the normally quiet stream.

Walls and paper were stained a dirty yellow with the muddy water, oozey mud covered chesterfield suite, chairs, table, beds, chest of drawers, buffet, tables, ice-box, the floors and all other furniture and equipment.

"Everything is lost," sighed Mrs. Nicol. "We spent seven years trying to furnish our home and now everything is ruined. We didn't have much, but we'd got the best we could and bought it in small quantities. Now it is all gone."

Mr. Nicol walked to the radio, so soaked with water he easily pulled a piece of wood veneer from it. The buffet in the dining-room was warped and the sides bulged.

Every article of furniture was in disarray and lying on the floor. The buffet was on its side, spilling out dishes, silverware and table linen. The refrigerator had been knocked over by the rush of the water. The beds were soaked with muddy water and fine mud covered the springs.

Portraits and photographs had been knocked to the floor and were covered with mud. Drapes and rugs oozed mud and water. Lamps had been knocked over by the rush of water and lamp shades were torn and mud-soaked.

Hard To Believe.

"They won't let us clean up yet," said Nicol. "We just came in to see how badly things were damaged. We hardly expected it would be even this bad." He turned to the cellar door, but the water was overflowing out of the cellar, within two inches of the kitchen floor.

A city official today inspected his West London home. His billiard room in the basement was ruined, his downstairs furniture was valueless. "I'd give anyone everything downstairs and in the basement for 10 cents if they would take it all out," he said, adding the upstairs rooms had been only slightly damaged.

Even Gold Fish Dead.

A small store on Wharncliffe Road was another example of the damage done. The owner had more than 60,000 gold fish, many rare tropical varieties, but only one was left alive to-day. He had spent Monday morning painting a display case and Monday night the same display case had been knocked against a window by the flood, breaking it. He had 30 valuable pigeons two of which won top prizes at a United States' show, but all had been lost, or drowned.

INDIAN CLERIC GIVEN DEGREE

Rev. Robert Steenhauser Honored At Victoria College Convocation

STUDIED AT COBOURG

TORONTO, April 28.—The audience which overflowed St. Paul's Avenue Road United Church Monday night gave a tremendous reception to tall, 76-year-old Rev. Robert Red Steinhauer, E.A., of Saddle Lake, Alberta, the first full-blooded Indian to receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity in Canada.

He was honored at the annual convocation in divinity of Victoria University and the closing exercises of Emmanuel, presided over by Chancellor Wallace.

Later, Dr. J. H. Arnup, who presented the Indian mission worker, described him as "a Christian gentleman—a noble representative of a noble race."

Dr. Steinhauer, in his quiet, humorous manner, referred to the happy days he had spent in the old Victoria College at Cobourg. He was the only Indian student of his class, he said, and he delighted to think that he was looked upon favorably by every man there. With a chuckle, he added: "And by every girl, too. We had two girls in our class."

The convocation also honored Rev. Professor Arnet Stanley Orton, M.A., B.T.M., of Saskatoon, with the Doctor of Divinity degree. In his address to the graduating class, Dr. Orton said: "You are taking up your ministry in an interesting, indeed, a dangerous time. Secularists have their outposts everywhere. But secularism will not long satisfy the world. I cannot believe we have anything to fear."

The Principal of Emmanuel College, Rev. Dr. Richard Davidson, presented Professor Orton for his degree. Rev. W. H. Young read the lesson, and Professor F. W. Langford and Professor John Line presented graduates for degrees, diplomas and awards.

The Rambling REPORTERS

DANGER OF DOUBLE PARKING.

Double parking on Water Street near Hunter proved costly this morning to a taxi driver. While he was in a building, a loaded hay wagon brushed part his shining car and proceeded on with the sedate speed peculiar to loaded hay wagons. A reporter in a second-story window noted a goodly portion of hay had been transferred from the wagon-load to the car. He watched till the taxi driver reappeared. The latter stopped in his tracks as he viewed the hay-strewn hood of his limousine. He glared up and down the street and his lips were seen to move. Finally knocking some of the loose hay off, he drove away. The reporter with difficulty refrained from raising the window and shouting: "Hey!"

Kiwanis Jollies Is Presented By Group Of Youthful Actors, Audience Most Enthusiastic

Miss Muriel McKeage Is Crowned As Queen Of The Jollies

LOVELY COSTUMES

Miss Muriel McKeage came out as "Queen of the Jollies" at the conclusion of the first performance of the Kiwanis Jollies" of 1937 in the Collegiate Institute auditorium on Tuesday night. A lovely young blonde, she was a glittering figure in a long queenly robe of white with an Elizabethan ruff and trimming of silver.

Youth was paramount in the show, which will have its second and final performance tonight. And the young things gave a fine example of poise and courage as they danced and sang light-heartedly to a sad-looking house, for there were only about two hundred people watching them in the big place. It was an enthusiastic and appreciative audience, however, which applauded with vigor a program which takes the form of a Musical Revue in two parts and twenty scenes. It is presented under auspices of the Kiwanis Club, by the Bourque Producing Company of Canada, with D. J. Bourque in charge, and a cast of one hundred young people.

There were none of the familiar faces which have been familiar for so long to the people of Peterborough, enlivening, with their skill and talent, the many amateur productions presented from year to year on the different stages. These were all of the youthful type, the show even including in several sections the tiny children of the day who go in for tap dancing and singing, in the manner of the moving picture kiddies seen in so many of the screen presentations.

"Smile all the While" was the theme song which opened and closed the performance, and the cast certainly lived up to it. They gave everything they had to putting on a good show which tinkled with music and dancing feet, and plenty of fun provided by black-faced lads in minstrel-show outfits.

High lights of the entertainment were many. The episode, "In Old Spain," featured a lovely song by Miss Marion Ralston, and a glittering dance by Miss Isobel Dufus and D. J. Bourque, with a chorus of Spanish girls and boys. This was outstanding.

Lovely Costumes

"Moonlight and Roses" made another lovely interlude, with a graceful dance duo by Miss Jean Nichol and Mr. Bourque, a sweet rendition of the theme song by Mrs. J. Morley, and a stunning interpretive dance by Miss Thelma Buller. Clifford Cruickshank's fine baritone was also heard to great advantage in this scene, which had a large chorus that included the graceful organdy and voile girls.

The costumes were colorful and gorgeous throughout every scene, with plenty of atmosphere in the getups of the "Pirates Gold," featuring Cliff Hall in fine voice as the soloist, with splendid support from Jack Watson, Tom Wallace, Leonard Phillips, Harold Hutchinson, Mr. Bourque, and the group of pirates and snow boat girls, the latter popping up from a large trunk, in clever fashion.

"Indian Love Song," in appropriate costumes and setting, and featuring the very fine voices of Miss Isobel Duthie and Clifford Cruickshank, made a charming scene.

"The Man From Brandon" was an amusing skit on a mix-up resulting from mistaken identities and was well enacted. A special bouquet should go to Miss Betty Lytle, as the cute and jaunty maid, while Jack Watson was especially good as Dr. Decker, from Kirby's Insane Asylum. Others who gave skilful presentations of their roles were Miss Margaret Weir, as Miss Spencer; Miss Ivy James, as Bernice Moulton; Miss Beatrice Smith, as Betty Melville; Harold Johnston, as Dan Moulton; and D. J. Bourque, as Paul Lester.

The children taking part were plentiful, in gaily-dressed and dainty choruses. Special numbers that got a big hand from the audience included "I'd Like to Have a Sweetheart," featuring two pint-size cuties in Shirley Garner and Kenneth Simmons, with support in a group of adorable kiddies, the wee girls in long evening gowns, the boys in "tails." Little Shirley Fitzsimmons was very poised and clever, with the Polka Dot girls, in a bit called "Rhythm in My Nursery Rhymes"; and two tap-dancing interludes were supplied by small pupils of Miss Thelma Buller, clever children who danced in sprightly mode.

These were Jean Miller and Irwin Parnell, in "Shoe Shine Boy," and Sylvia Dingman with Irwin Parnell in "Gee, But You're Swell."

Miss Kay Edwards, with the black and white girls, in "I Won't Believe It's Raining"; Miss Alberta Wright and girls, in "One, Two, Button Your Shoe," and Harold Johnston and girls in "Top Hat," added to the interest and color of the program.

Plenty of Laughs.

The fun of the evening was provided by a group of comedians, in various skits. Mrs Lenora Hollingsworth and Frank Pamment had two hits: "A Summer Boarder" and "He Makes a Hit," with Frank Pamment doing a sawdust relief in delightful style. He made another appearance later with Perry Jenling in a turn called "Poet and Peasant," while Leonard Phillips and Harold Hutchinson had two black-face bits called "A Terrible Accident" and "The Latest News."

Two items in the comedy line that deserve special mention were the "Village Choir," with a line-up of old-time church choristers introduced by Miss Kay Edwards and Miss Phyllis Pink, and the screaming farcical bit entitled "Grand Uproar," led by Clifford Hall.

"The Queen's Guards," a spectacular episode in brilliant costumes, was a novelty that aroused much applause, with Irwin Parnell as the striking young majordomo, and D. J. Bourque as leader. The grand finale brings the Queen of the Jollies out on the stage in a delightful ensemble of the entire company.

The stage setting was very effective for the performance, with several glittering back drops, one featuring pastel paints of mauve, green and yellow. The lighting was splendid in the various scenes, and a fine musical accompaniment was provided by Mrs. George Nicholls, pianiste, George Gatfield, violinist, and Bob Dean, drums and traps.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, April 29

While romance, adventure, social, domestic and affectional affairs are paramount among the activities of this day, judging by the governing planets yet there are configurations calling for much discretion and wariness, since such purely gentimental proclivities or emotional stirrings may cause neglect of, or friction in workaday matters.

Those whose birthday it is may rejoice in the advent of a year in which the romantic, sentimental and affectional hold sway, with sordid things relegated to the background. The emotions dominate in love, friendship, courtship or marriage, or possibly in other fine adventurous experiences.

A child born on this day may lean toward the sentimental, romantic and adventurous rather than the commonplace, finding its joy in the companionship of friends, nature and in poetic expression through writings, music or art. A subtle or mystical strain runs through its makeup.

LIVE AGAIN GOOD OLD DAYS OF 70'S

School Boys Of Horse And Buggy Days Gather To Swap Yarns

WINNIPEG, April 28 (C.P.).—Many years were bridged as 200 of Winnipeg's schoolboys, Class '70 to '30, gathered here at a re-union banquet to renew friendships and swap yarns of the days of horse cars and Red River carts.

The "kids," many of them prominent in the business and civic life of Winnipeg, turned out in full force to extend a warm welcome to those that came from farther afield. Prominent in the veterans' ranks were Judge H. A. Whitla, John Cory, and J. Bernier, all of the County Court bench of Manitoba.

Remnants of long disbanded hockey teams that once blazed their way into the sports annals grouped such notables as W. R. Wyatt, G. M. Black, Charles Dodds, Tony Gunnas, C. W. Johnstone, Dr. Fred Cadham, Jack Pratt, C. M. Taylor and G. C. Robinson as former members of the old Victorias, the Winnipegs, and the Rowing Club.

Oarsmen, track teams, and snowshoe clubs all had their representatives, including R. H. "Dolphie" Graham, holder of the Dominion snowshoe title for many years, and A. H. Logan, who ran him a close second in several classic competitions in the early '90's.

Claiming indisputable seniority as the "youngest kid" present, cheery, full-bearded little Father Elie H. Recan, who explained he "dated back" to 1872, when he was boarding as an orphan at the old St. Mary's School on Notre Dame Avenue.

The perennial parental exportulation: "Now when I was a child—" received solid backing as the old-timers revived memories of the winters in the late '80's and early '90's. Horse cars running on Portage Avenue had to be disconnected and stored, to be replaced by sleighs and later by toboggans. One old-timer claimed the snow was so deep that he had to snowshoe through the city to school.

U.S. OUT TO CHECK CLIMBING PRICES

Roosevelt Advises Against Stock Market Speculation As He Goes On Fishing Trip

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP).—Administration authorities, guided by a re-statement of President Roosevelt's views, cast about to-day for new means to check climbing prices in the United States and prevent monopoly.

The president, before leaving on a southern fishing trip, expressed his views in three ways:

1. He advised against speculation in the stock market.

2. He made public a report from Attorney General Cummings saying revision of anti-trust laws was desirable "in the face of the present tendency to increase prices."

3. He wrote Vice-President Garner of "the present hazard of undue advances in prices," voicing opposition to a bill by Senator Tydings (D., Md.) to legalize certain price maintenance understandings.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement on stock market speculation came as an aftermath to his recent request that government workers should avoid securities gambling.

Asked whether this advice also was good for the general public, he replied he had been saying so since 1927.

CHAPLIN FILMS BANNED

Films of Five Hollywood Stars Banned In Some Spanish Theatres.

SALAMANCA, Spain, April 28.—(C.P.-Havas)—Charlie Chaplin and five other film stars to-day were officially branded persona non grata on motion picture screens in Spanish insurgent-controlled territory.

The others were Frederick March, Franchot Tone, James Cagney, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Joan Crawford.

Alleged participation of the actors in a recent Hollywood benefit for the Spanish government was the cause of the decree.

Three Senoritas Of Jollies

TRAFFIC COURT

In traffic court this (Wednesday) morning Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., collected a total of $45.80 from motorists for violations of the Highway Traffic Act and City Parking By-Law. "BUMP" WARNING

The annual crop of "Bump" warnings is still blooming on Highways 28 and 7 in the Peterborough district. No serious heaving has been noted, however, and it is expected the bumps will in most cases flatten out of their own accord within the next few weeks. Farmers report many township roads in Peterborough County have been cut up badly during the last ten days.

SUIT IS DISMISSED.

Judge Sheldon Smoke dismissed a suit by William McGiggott against his brother James McGiggott for $90 wages after a hearing in Division Court to-day. The plaintiff alleged the money was owing for services on the defendant's Dummer farm but the court held no competent contract existed. W. F. Arthur Fair acted for the plaintiff and G. N. Gordon, K.C., for the defendant.

FIRE IN LUMBER KILN.

Automatic sprinklers which went into action when a blaze broke out in the lumber kiln at the Peterborough Canoe Company eliminated what might have been a disastrous fire shortly after five o'clock this morning. A. Langley, K.C. The information was laid by Inspector L. J. Lyons. The defendant who said he was setting a trap beside a culvert near his farm when caught by the inspector, declared he took out a license on the afternoon of the same day. He admitted he might not have taken the license out at that time, but for the warning he received from the inspector.

RATES ARE INCREASED.

Peterborough car owners, along with car owners in most other urban centres of the Province, are paying increased rates for their public liability and property damage insurance this year. The increases demanded by the various policies of the different companies range in the neighborhood of 15% over the standard $5,000, $10,000, $1,000 policy and were effective generally on April 1. Insurance agencies here explain "experience" of the past year has forced the advance. Automobile companies have simultaneously reduced their rates on fire and theft for cars in cities of the category in which Peterborough falls so the advance of liability rates will be thus distributed for those buying full coverage.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

A transient stated to be Ernest Lamonte was fined $10 and $4.00 costs with ten days imprisonment in default on pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication.

Visitors to Stoney Lake and Clear lakes report sighting the sluggish fish in long rows along banks of bays and inlets during the past several days. Fish and Game Inspector Lyons with assisting deputies are keeping a watchful eye for poachers in this neighborhood.

ROAD IS RE-OPENED.

The road to the top of Armour Hill has been re-opened to traffic and is again being used daily by scores of sight-seeing drivers. As the road was protected from use while the frost was coming out of the ground, it suffered little damage and is in fair condition at present. Members of the Ashburnham Patriotic League are hopeful that the serious grass fire damages to their nursery evergreens last year will be avoided this year by protective furrows which have been plowed on the hill, bordering the tree plantations.

NO SUNDAY BALL IN PETERBOROUGH COMMITTEE TOLD

Parks Committee Hears Applications For Various Playgrounds

DRESSING ROOMS

Heralding the near approach of another busy season of outdoor sports, the Parks Committee of the City Council under chairmanship of Alderman Walter Stocker, on Tuesday evening heard applications from baseballers, softballers and footballers for the use of city playing grounds and granted requests subject to approval of the council in each case. They also discussed the need of a building at Nicholls Oval to house the equipment of the cricketers, but took no action in this connection.

Ed. Riley, president, and James J. Dorris, secretary, represented Peterborough Baseball Club, and during discussion of their application for use of Riverside Park assured Alderman Stocker they did not intend to play any Sunday games.

No Sunday Ball

"I am glad to hear it," Alderman Stocker remarked. "The committee is not in favor of Sunday baseball and would not tolerate it."

On motion of Mayor George Macdonald, seconded by Alderman Sloan, the committee recommended to council, "That Peterborough Baseball Club be given the use of Riverside Park for practice and league games for the season, and that the club provide their own caretaker."

Speaking of the need of new dressing rooms at Riverside, Alderman Stocker declared the city has an investment of $30,000 in the park which is a liability as the city does not get any revenue from this source. When he first entered the council, he remarked, the city received a return of $1,200 a year from the Park.

Mayor Macdonald agreeing there was a need of new dressing rooms, stated that a new grandstand was also required, but, "We are waiting for some public-spirited citizen to come along and put up the money for this purpose."

Mr. Riley as president of the ball club told the committee, "If we have a good year and can make any donation to the council for the purpose of improvements at Riverside Park we will do so." He promised he would take up the matter with his own executive and would make his suggestion a motion.

In regard to a request from Ev. Thomas, president of the Ladies' Softball League of Peterborough, that the use of Ashburnham Bowl, this was also granted, on motion of the Mayor.

Deputation of Three

Peterborough Industrial Football Association, which was represented by Reg. Whitehead, president, Stroyan Leith and T. Aspinall, sought and obtained permission to use the playing field at King Edward Park for the forthcoming soccer season.

As spokesman for the soccer representatives, Mr. Leith asked the committee if they could assume responsibility for cleaning up the playing ground this season and put it in readiness for play. He suggested there are several holes in the ground that need filling in and rolling.

Members of the committee who are going down to King Edward Park on Thursday evening to look over the site of the proposed wading pool which is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, made arrangements to meet members of the Footballer's Association on that evening and look over the situation with their request in mind.

No action was taken by the committee with respect to an application for permission to operate a boats at Inverlea Park during June, July and August, members of the committee being of the unanimous opinion they would not consider such a request.

If through some twist, jar or strain a vertebrae at a certain part of the spine becomes slightly deranged, causing constriction of the nerves supplying the kidney, those important organs cannot work properly and it is practically impossible for them to function normally again until that nerve constriction has been relieved.

It has been our experience that spinal manipulative treatments do prove beneficial in many cases of kidney disorders.

English Soccer Campaign Draws To Close Saturday

HOW THEY COMPARE

LONDON, April 28.—"Finis" will be written on English soccer football this coming Saturday, and a glorious climax is promises to be featured, of course, by the final game for the English Cup between Preston North End and Sunderland.

Wembley, that mighty stadium situated in the heart of the British Empire—glamorous Wembley, the dream of every soccer player — will be the scene of the conflict between two eleven's which have bowled over five teams each on the way to the final. It will be the fourteenth final to be played on a ground that is becoming historic.

Just how many people take a lively interest in the annual soccer classic is hard to say. It is to Britons what the world's baseball series is to Americans, and so there must be millions. English league football alone (44 games) each week attracts on an average 750,000 spectators. Add to this number the tens of thousands who attend minor games all over the country and you have an idea of the interest next Saturday's game will arouse. It is the greatest of all games in the British Isles, and the cup is the hardest to win of all cups. If the countless hordes of Britons in voluntary exile from the Mother Country are also taken into account, it would seem that something like ten million people will anxiously await the outcome of the struggle and the result will be fleshed to the great Continental dailies just as quickly as it is to newspapers on this side of the Atlantic.

Expect $125,000 Gate.

If there was a stadium big enough to accommodate a quarter of a million fans, it would be filled, say officials of the English F.A., but Wembley can comfortably house only some 93,000 spectators, and only that number will be admitted. It is expected that something like $125,000 will be left at the turnstiles this week-end in the form of admission tickets. Overhead expenses, however, are large. Around $20,000 may be grabbed by the British Government in entertainment tax. Then there is the rent for the ground and a small army of policemen to pay. After all expenses are liquidated the competing teams usually take about $25,000 each and the association a similar amount. In the very early days of the competition a $3,000 final gate was considered good. At that time the total assets of the English F. A. amounted to little more than $3,000. Today this organization is said to be worth about three-quarters of a million dollars, much of it "cup" money.

It has been officially announced that King George and Queen Elizabeth will attend the game. This will be the second great sporting event to be graced by their Majesties this year. Only recently they attended the Grand National race meeting. The new Monarch is apparently following in the footsteps of his beloved father, the late King George V, who always visited Wembley when the weather and other circumstances permitted. A tumultuous reception is assured the popular Royal couple when they enter the grounds and the proceedings will be all the more impressive when the spectators spring to attention and sing the National Anthem, led by the band.

Preston Defense Stronger.

Both Sunderland and Preston North End have long and distinguished careers in English football. For several decades their names have been synonymous with high-class football. The east coast team has won the championship of the English League on six occasions. The Prestonians, however, have had their ups and downs, and on two occasions were relegated to the second division of the English League. Early in the year it looked as if Sunderland might repeat last season's league triumph, but the Rokerites weakened in the home-stretch.

Preston has a better defense than Sunderland, but the wearers of the red and white have a much stronger attack than their opponents and as to picking a winner, one guess is as good as another. To this writer it looks like Preston's English Cup. A lot, however, depends on "breaks," and there are usually lots of them in cup finals, for the players are under a terrible strain. Only youngsters of iron nerve can stand up to it.

1921—Tottenham beat Wolves, 1-0.
1924—Newcastle beat Aston Villa, 2-0.
1925—Sheffield United beat Cardiff City, 1-0.
1927—Cardiff City beat Arsenal, 1-0.
1928—Blackburn Rovers beat Huddersfield 3-1.
1929—Bolton Wanderers beat
1930—Arsenal beat Huddersfield, 2-0.
1931—West Bromwich beat Birmingham, 2-1.
1932—Newcastle United beat Arsenal, 2-1.
1933—Everton beat Manchester City, 3-0.
1934—Manchester City beat Portsmouth, 2-1.
1936—Arsenal beat Sheffield United, 1-0.

Japanese Ace

The Japanese Davis Cup team promise to be a tough bunch to beat in the zone finals in which they engage the United States team. Here is an action photo of Jiro Yamaguchi, captain of the Japanese team, who shows signs of being an outstanding threat in the competition. He is making a forecourt smash in this picture which was taken during a practice session.

KAWARTHA CLUB GETS NEW PRO

Ben Norris Of Toronto Secured —Club Tennis Courts To Have Floodlights

Ben Norris, well-known Toronto professional, has been engaged by the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. An excellent golfer and first-rate instructor, Mr. Norris comes well recommended. He gained his experience under the direction of Lou Cumming, Toronto Golf Club, Dick Boothwick of Oakdale and R. J. Bailey. He was assistant pro at St. Andrew's Golf Club, where he did the bulk of the teaching. Mr. Norris has qualified for the Canadian Open three out of four times, and is considered one of the most promising of today's younger golfers.

At a meeting of the board of directors last night, it was decided to floodlight the tennis courts with the most modern lighting system, thus making the Kawartha courts the only ones in Central Ontario where play is possible after nightfall. With an excellent surface, these courts should be about the best equipped in Ontario. The lights will make it possible for business men to compete after dark and for league games to be staged through the week instead of only on Saturdays. It is felt that these lighted courts will be a boon, not only to the club, but to tennis in this district.

CHURCH PUCK LOOP HAS BIG BANQUET

Presentation Of Prizes To Three Winning Teams—Frank Buckland Guest Speaker

The annual Church Hockey League banquet was held last evening in Murray street Church hall, the ladies of Murray Street doing the serving. A big crowd attended for the dinner, presentation of prizes and speeches. Lloyd Parnall was chairman, and introduced the guests. Rev. Sutcliffe spoke briefly and congratulated the players. Len Agnew, Church Softball League president, and Joe Collins of the Southend Hockey League also spoke.

The presentation of the championship shields for 1937 was made after the dinner. Carlyle Ferguson made the presentations to the Murray Street Seniors and the George Street Bantams, while Art Mann presented the shield to the St. Pauls' Juveniles. These three teams received many congratulations for their success during a successful Church Hockey League season.

The guest speaker of the night, Frank Buckland, coach of the Peterborough Hockey Club, gave an entertaining address on hockey. He traced the game from its earlier days to the modern style of play. Quoting numerous N.H.L. stars as examples in types of play, he pointed out the requirements for players in each position of the team. Courage, concentration, condition and a heads-up system were emphasized as essentials to hockey success. Mr. Buckland was thanked cordially for his interesting address.

GRIMES IS FINED.

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP)—Burleigh Grimes, fiery Brooklyn manager, received word Tuesday that he had been fined $25 by Ford Frick, National Baseball League president, for his run-in with Umpire Tiny Parker at Philadelphia. Grimes' vigorous protests over one of Parker's decisions ended with his being banished from the game.

Dizzy Dean Is Acclaimed Hero Of First Baseball Week Of Year

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP). — Nominations and observations from the big baseball show as it turns its first dizzy week:

Greatest Hero—Maybe he does bore every one with his pop-off talk, but you've gotta hand it to Dizzy Dean. Off to his greatest start, Diz has pitched 19 consecutive innings of shutout baseball, blanking Cincinnati in 10 innings and Chicago in nine. He struck out ten Cubs.

Biggest Surprise — Unanimously picked to finish last by the experts, Jimmy Wilson and his Philadelphia Phillies broke all records by starting out with two victories on opening day.

Greatest Hitting Streak—Gerald Walker, the ex-clown of Detroit, had the greatest day with a single, double, triple and home run in as many chances but Morrie Arnovich reeled off the best hitting streak — seven safe blows in a row.

Worst Start — Cincinnati's Reds were left at the post with four straight defeats—two by one run, one by two runs and another by three.

Freakiest Start for Batter—Mel Ott, "little hot foot" of New York Giants, didn't make a hit until the third game. Then, he got two homers in succession.

Strikeout King—A rookie leads and his name isn't Bob Feller, the Cleveland papoose. It's Cliff Melton, giant rookie from Baltimore, who fanned 13 Boston Bees and then got stung with defeat.

Bike Rider Sets New Record At 86.95 m.p.h.

Setting what is claimed to be a new world speed record for bike riding, Albert Marquet, 27, of France, broke the former record of 80.8 miles per hour when he got his racing bicycle up to 86.95 miles per hour, riding in the rear of a fast automobile with a shield to break the wind. He is seen here during one of his trial spins at Los Angeles. In this picture he is going more than 68 miles per hour.

Endeavour I Launched And Ready For Crossing

The America's cup challenger of 1935, Endeavour I, was recently launched at Gosport, England, after the ship was prepared for its second trans-Atlantic crossing. It will accompany the new challenger, being built by T. O. M. Sopwith, the Endeavor II, to the United States, where it will act as a trial horse for the new racer. The yacht which proves the fastest in the trial runs will compete against the American defender.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

A little bit of everything is on the program of this year's "Y" Circus at the Y.M.C.A. this Thursday and Friday evenings. Comedy, thrills, action, and some smart performances. After the grand entry, the kids put on group games. Then some senior stars do a bunch of tumbling acts, these athletes performing: Mick Magee, W. Taylor, G. McIntyre, J. Watts, G. Cameron, G. Palmer, Don Crowe, T. Dunlop, G. Broadley, B. Harle, and —as clowns—Nels Stanger and Jack Archibald. Junior boys stage an awkward squad act, while raisin' members demonstrate scientific holds and breaks. Intermediate lads have a health drill, and these seniors are on the parallel bars: W. Taylor, M. Magee, J. Watts, G. Broadley, F. Williams, J. Wolstenholme, G. Palmer, M. Hunter, R. Rennie, B. Hogan, S. Ball, D. Crowe and G. Cameron.

* * * * * * *

A flock of clowns, led by Malcolm Latimer, will endeavor to roll the customers in the aisles, and Lady Enert, the Snake Charmer, will do her stuff. As Barnum would broadcast: "See that siren in the sinuous serpents' den; see her fight the fearsome fangs of Fanny the fiery fury; see her repel the revolting reptiles for two bits!" Another humor touch is Jumbo the Jiggling Jiant of the Jungles, the only dancing elephant in captivity—tons of terpsichorean thrills (gosh what a barker we'd make!) who travels with the famous Neigh, Neigh Circus. Al Spencely and Sons do the Jiggling Jiant. There are also group games by older chaps and such flying ring acrobats in action as J. Wolstenholme, J. Watts, W. Taylor, T. Dunlop, C. Magee, and S. Ball. Quite a show, folks, this annual "Y" Circus.

WORD was received here the other day from the P.W.S.U. that it would require a week to settle the status of the defunct Ladies' Lakeshore Softball League and Cobourg could not get permission to play with the local loop till then. So it was decided to postpone our Girls' Softball League meeting from this Friday night till the next—which is May 7th—and then clean everything up and be ready to start playing in a week or two. In the meantime, efforts are being made to contact Lindsay and Omemee and see how these teams feel. At present, Keene, Cobourg, C.G.E. and Westclox are the only sure starters—that is, if Cobourg is okayed by the P.W.S.U.

* * * * * * *

MEN softballers met last p.m. at Duffus' and, while a goodly crowd was there, not a great deal could be accomplished. On account of the usual Spring laxness about entering teams, Probably four will be entered—Quaker Oats, Westclox, McGinness and a loop junior. O.B.S.A. entry. Pinky Dave Lesther and Herb Payne will check on Bridgenorth and Omemee, both being said to be somewhat interested in joining the City Loop. It was decided to extend the closing date for entries one more week—next Tuesday night. All must be in then. At this next meeting, the Injured Players' Fund will be discussed again. An executive meeting will deal with appointment of umpires, type of ball to be used, grounds, etc.

QUITE a gang sat in last night at the Church Hockey League annual banquet, dished up by the Murray St. ladies, in the Murray St. Church hall. Lloyd Parnall was chairman, Ed. Shortt did some entertaining, speeches were made by Rev. Sutcliffe, Len Agnew and Joe Collins, and the shields were presented to the winning teams. These were Murray St. Seniors, St. Paul's Juveniles and George St. Bantams. Frank Buckland, coach of the Peterborough Hockey Club, was guest speaker. The affair was quite a success in every way, but then the Church Puck Loop has always put everything over with a bang. It provided a fitting conclusion to a good season in minor hockey here.

BUCKLAND'S talk was an entertaining feature. He discussed hockey as it used to be played and as it is to-day. He dealt with the development of minor pucksters, what they needed and what they should be taught—and he quoted well-known N.H.L. stylists like Chabot, Conacher, Cleghorn, Clancy, Weiland, etc., as examples. Each player on a team was analyzed in detail and his position on the ice studied as it should be played. Naturally, the young puck-chasers present lapped it up. A flock of Church Leaguers have made good in local O.H.A. company in the past and more will do so in coming seasons.

WE do not know if it is a compliment to a city or not but we have—for the second time in a month—received a letter from a Donkey Baseball Club wanting to know if Peterborough wishes to stage a game of donkey ball here this summer. First one came from Nevada and this one from Newark, Ohio. Donkey ball is a comedy affair which has been put on in a number of towns. However, sports scribes in Ontario generally admit that, after a few innings, it becomes rather boring—so we doubt if it would pay to put on such a stunt here. The manager who wrote us suggests a local service or civic club taking part. He asks: "Would you like to see your Mayor, Chief of Police and others riding a Jackass?" This is a leading question and we decline to answer. After all, we have to live here!

* * * * * * *

AND this dig from Oshawa: "Every other day or so, they 'find' an outstanding athlete up around Peterborough. It's a wonder Friend Cec. doesn't realize that outside of the Liffiock City the boys are beginning to get suspicious of these now numerous discoveries." Yeah, it is most remarkable the way great athletes are unearthed here in the Spring of the year. We find 'em on relief, dig 'em out of cellars and comb the district farms for plowhands who can pitch hay or ball with equal facility. Can we help it if athletes pour into Peterborough like Coronation sight-seers into London? After all, this is a manufacturing town—with more than one industry—and its occasional industrial strike affects but a small portion.

TONY GENGRAS, 61, DIES IN WINNIPEG

Colorful Figure Of Days When No Subbing In Hockey

WINNIPEG, April 28 (CP)—A. B. (Tony) Gingras, 61, among the first of hockey's "Flying Frenchmen" and colorful figure of the days when seven men played 60 minutes without relief, is dead—victim of a sudden seizure.

Gingras' death yesterday brought many tributes from those who knew him best at the turn of the century when his flashing speed and spectacular play was a highlight of three invasions of Montreal by Winnipeg Victorias.

"He was a sportsman in every sense of the word," said J. D. Frail, ongoing secretary of the Victoria Club. "He lived for hockey and made an outstanding contribution to the game, not only as a player but as a supervisor long after he put away his skates."

Way Down South In North Carolina They've Found New Pitching Ace

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP). — Big league scouts are flocking to Winston-Salem, N.C., to watch Archie Templeton mow 'em down for the Methodist Children's home team ...Archie, 16, has the ivory hunters agog with his strike-out exploits ...In 32 innings this season he has fanned 68 batters...Wow!...May be another Bob Feller or another Babe Ruth, for they say he can pour the pine into that leather almost as well as he pitches...(Ruth began his baseball career in a home for boys, too)

Yankees are mighty interested and so are the Cardinals...Our southern operatives reported one big league club offered Templeton $10,000 to sign a contract...Another said it would better any bid the kid received by $1,000...One report has it the Cardinals have the inside track and that if Archie hasn't already made up his mind to cast his lot with St. Louis, he will soon. Branch Rickey made a personal visit to Winston-Salem to watch the youngster in action.

No less than five gum shoe men were in the stands the last time Archie did his stuff...Frank Rickey (Branch's brother), Charlie Barrett and Oliver French, president of the Rochester Internationals, represented the Cards. Paul Krichell and Gene McCann were there for the Yankees. They say a show, all right. Templeton capped by fanning fifteen in a row. Who's going to bag Bucky Jacobs, U. of Richmond pitcher, who has turned in two no-hitters in as many weeks.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

As we said a few days ago, we have no intentions of keeping harping to the skips how important it is to have their rinks filled—but yesterday afternoon George Olmbiett asked us to go to the mat once more and for the last time make an appeal on behalf of the membership committee.

Now here's the situation: The boys who were appointed skips were notified in the proper way, with lots of time. They have been asked to appeal to the committee for aid, if they wanted any. They have been given a list of prospective players, and yet in the face of all this, there are many who have made no returns at all. May 1st is the date set as the zero hour, and each rink must be filled by then. Skips must have each of his rink sign a membership card and at least $2 with each card. We understand the board will make no exceptions.

Now surely it will be of no use to again remind the skips about this affair. If you want to bowl it is important to have the cards filled out along with the money. Hand these to the chairman of the committee and then we will be able to draw up the schedule and get off in the right foot and make the "Coronation" year the best year of our club.

In order to hurry matters along, we'd suggest bowlers not already on rinks would hand their names in to the chairman, George Olmbiett.

CARDS HAND OUT PIRATES INITIAL LOSS OF SEASON

Southpaw Weiland Fans Six In a Six-Hit Three To One Victory

HOMER BY DICKSHOT

By Bill Boni
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

For one thing of course, his St. Louis Cardinals are leading the National Baseball League. That trick the Gas-House gangsters accomplished by black-jacking the Pirates into a 4-1 submission yesterday as rain washed out every other major league game.

But that's not all.

In pre-season ratings experts, looking at the Cards' pitching staff, summed it up with a "Dean, Warneke, and then what?" Frankie believes he may have the answer to the question in the large, toil-seasoned frame of Robert Weiland, six feet four inches and 215 pounds of left-handed pitcher.

The Gangsters need a capable southpaw and Weiland, who broke the Pirates' four-game winning streak with a six-hit National League debut, has taken on the appearance of that needed left-hander. He fanned six Buccaneers yesterday.

The biggest man on a hard-riding crew, Weiland was behind only at the start of yesterday's game. He served Johnny Dickshot, Pittsburgh recruit left fielder from Buffalo, a home run ball in the first inning. The Cards tied the score in the second, added another run in the fourth and the final one in the fifth.

To Compete Again

FRANK AMYOT

Although he was suspended from further amateur competition Frank Amyot, Ottawa canoeist, is determined to wield the paddle again this year in almon pure competition. Frank, it will be remembered, was the only Canadian to bring back to this country a gold medal from the Olympic games held in Germany. On his return to Ottawa the citizens donated a small sum of money to him for his victory and the Amateur Athletic Union considered him a professional and barred him from further amateur competition.

4 INTERNATIONAL GAMES RAINED OUT

Interest Centering on Toronto Leafs, Newark Bears And Jersey Giants

(By the Associated Press.)

Four International Baseball League games were rained out and the hot stove leagues, ever at their best when the season is young, centred their attention yesterday on three teams, Newark Bears, Toronto Maple Leafs and Travis Jackson's Jersey City Giants....The Bears and Toronto have won five straight to top the circuit and the Giants are in second place with two out of three.

Winning Jersey club will be a valuable asset to the league—especially the Bears—there's a diamond rivalry in North Jersey that makes the Giants and Dodgers look like Damon and Pythias....If Horace Stoneham's cash comes to the aid of Ott ey and his team, it will mean hot battles and big gates....The rivalry has always been there, but the Skeeters of forlorn memory were never in the same class with the Bears in inter-city series....The Skeeters finished in the league cellar 11 times in the old days.

Fans are whooping it up for Dan Howley's young Toronto club. There's a nasty tale to the effect that Howley has to accompany his charges to the movies so the doorman will let them in....Not many of the boys are well known. But they're hitting that ball, and under Howley's vigorous direction should win a flock of ball games even though one player, outside the batterymen, has any Class AA experience.

Grimm Gets More Cubs For Team

As though Charlie Grimm, Chicago Cubs' manager, didn't have enough trouble handling his own menagerie, this pair of bear cubs was presented to him, The Cubs' boss, literally as well as figuratively, took his new charges in hand and added them to the roster as mascots. Photo shows Charlie Grimm nursing the cubs. With him is Mrs. Leonard Boyles, who presented the mascots. They were imported from Sonora, Mexico.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE WANTS MORE TEAMS

Men's City Circuit Extends Closing Date To May 4th To Seek More Entries

A committee was appointed at last night's City Softball League meeting in Duffus' to check up on further possible entries. Crusaders and Bridgenorth will be invited to join this circuit in an effort to make it a six-team league. President Dave Leather and Herb Payne were appointed to the committee. Last night, only four prospective teams seemed likely, Westclox, Quaker Oats, McClinnes' squad and possibly a Junior O.A.E.A. entry by the league. Dave Leather conducted the meeting, but little could be accomplished till all entries were in. It was decided to extend the closing date for entries till May 4th when another meeting will be called.

There was considerable discussion about the press edict against use of commercial names, but it was stated that nothing could be done about this matter. At the next meeting, the Injured Players' Benefit Fund will be dealt with thoroughly. The executive will appoint umpires, decide on type of ball to be used and check on the grounds for summer play. Walter Curtis declined the nomination of secretary, through pressure of work, and this office will have to be filled at the next meeting.

DEAN OF ROOKIES HOPES TO STICK BOSTON THIS TIME

At 37 Bill Harris Feels That He Will Make The Grade

"HARD LUCK" ROOKIE

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

BOSTON, Mass., April 28—Hard Luck Bill Harris is back again, and with a smile. You can't keep a good man down.

Ever since Bill came up in 1929, from the Texas League, for a tryout with the Cincinnati Reds, his path has been beset by sad breaks that took almost every conceivable form except an earthquake. Sore arm just when he needed the old wing most; illness, infirmities, cruel circumstances—these have contrived to send Bill back to the minors again and again.

"I'll stick this time if it kills me," he said the other night, as we sat in a hotel lobby. "I'll be 37 years old in June, probably the oldest rookie to come up in many moons, but I never felt righter in my life."

Typical Texan

Harris explained the "hard luck" nickname by the number of very close games he had pitched and lost, often by a single run. One break would decide a ball game for him, and it usually was bad.

Harris is a native of Wylie, Tex., and lives now during the winter in Matthews, N.C. He is built along tall, spare, typically Texan lines. He had a world of speed when he first appeared in the majors, 14 years ago, and still has some of it, but depends mostly nowadays on a curve and his knowledge of batters. For years he was hampered by lack of control.

After being up and down a half dozen times, Harris caught on with the Pirates six years ago. He managed to stay ahead of bad news for three years. When he was released to Buffalo after the 1933 season, it appeared Bill was definitely out of the picture.

Good Year

Bill did nothing during the 1936 season to warrant the belief he ever would return to the majors, but last year business picked up for him briskly.

"I had days when I knew they weren't going to hit me," he said, "and they didn't. Last June, at Toronto, I pitched no-hit ball for seven innings, and nobody even got to first. But it was the second game of a double-header, and was called in the seventh inning, spoiling a chance for a perfect game.

"Darned if I didn't come right back in July and pitch another no-hitter at Newark, but one man got to first in the eighth on a base on balls. That was a night game. I had a seven-inning no-hitter back in the Texas League, too."

FORDS TROUNCED BY THUNDERBIRDS

Blue And Gold Come From Behind In Last Minute To Win 31-29

VANCOUVER, April 28.—(CP)—University of British Columbia's Blue and Gold Thunderbirds came from behind with a sensational rally in the final two minutes to defeat the champion Windsor Fords 31-29 here last night in the first game of the best-of-five series for the Canadian men's basketball title. The teams meet again tonight.

With the score 26-21 in favor of Windsor and with but five minutes to play, Bill Swan and Ran Matthison netted three goals to bring the score to 26-27. Matthison scored two of the baskets.

Toots Meretsky sank a free shot to put Windsor two points ahead but Swan and Matthison came back with a basket each to end the scoring in the final two minutes and give the Vancouver Collegians victory. Windsor led 13-11 at half time.

Matthison, Varsity's diminutive guard, and Captain Jimmy Stewart, of Windsor, took scoring honors, each with 11 points. Matthison's total was made up of three free shots and four field goals, while Stewart sank five field baskets and one free shot.

DOYLE DEFEATS KING LEVINSKY

Irishman Outstays Chicago Fishmonger In 12-Round Battle

LONDON, April 28 (AP).—British heavyweights, long the subject of impolite laughter on the other side of the Atlantic, are moving back toward traditions of the British prize ring, much to the delight of British fight fans and the discomfiture of American enthusiasts.

Two victories, both scored at the expense of American fighters, have helped needle up interest in the heavyweight division. The latest, Irish Jack Doyle's decisive victory over King Levinsky, the Chicago fishmonger, coming on top of Tommy Farr's win over Max Baer, has given British heavyweight boxing a prestige it has not enjoyed since the halcyon days of the London prize ring rules.

The King, who met many American heavyweights with more stuff than he showed against Doyle, didn't have a chance against the Irishman last night. Doyle, a fair boxer, stayed away from Levinsky's swings and cut up the Kingfish at long range throughout 12 rounds.

After the bout, Doyle claimed he would have knocked out the American had he not broken a knuckle in his right hand in the second round. He had Levinsky close to a knockout several times, but the Chicago veteran always managed to clinch and tie up his heavier opponent.

IN MEMORIAM

TRUDE—In loving memory of Violet Mae, beloved daughter of Harry Pearson, who passed away, April 28, 1929.

"April brings back sad memories,
Of our loved one laid to rest.
She will always be remembered
By the ones who loved her best.
We miss her smile, her voice, her song
But they were needed there:
He has all the white lilies in Heaven
She has a home so fair.
—Sadly missed by Father, Brothers and Sisters.

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Col. Alex Lutman—who has a hold over Stuckey—Jim Asson, an ex-convict, and the lawyer are stopping at the same hotel in Cosgrall with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith has persuaded Jacqueline to marry Asson, posing as a wealthy Englishman, unsuspectedly falling in with the plan of the three men to have Asson cultivate the girl, have all of her property assigned to him before their marriage, then splitting up the inheritance before she learns of it. Lutman, as Jim's "trustee", has hurried Jacqueline's decision by revealing a check he cashed for her mother returned marked "insufficient funds". After meeting Jacqueline, Stuckey is more reluctant than ever to go through with the scheme and stalls by telling them all the property deed must be signed in London. Back in London Charles leaves Lutman in his office while he goes after Jim Asson. Mrs. Smith and Jacqueline arrive at Stuckey's office to sign the deed. Jacqueline insists on a conference alone with Charles before signing the deed. Jacqueline signs the deed but later Charles tells Lutman she signed in the wrong place and that he will have to prepare another, perhaps delaying the wedding. Finding Charles opposing the marriage, Lutman suggests that Charles himself marry her instead of Jim, but he refuses. Meanwhile Elsie Harringay, Stuckey's stenographer, proposes a private chat with Jacqueline. The typist declares Jim Asson is her man and that she will not let Jacqueline marry him, telling her he has just finished a prison sentence. Her head in a whirl, Jacqueline goes home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 24

JACQUELINE scribbled a note as soon as she reached home. She was going out; it said, and might be home late, and her mother was not to wait up for her. She smiled as she propped the note against a vase on the mantlepiece. That, at any rate, would prove the alibi against the time when she would not have Jim and Colonel Lutman to support her.

Jacqueline spent the afternoon at a movie, had a meal in a small Soho restaurant, and in the evening sat through two rounds of a program in another movie. When she had walked from the theater district to the flat it was almost half-past 11.

Her mother had already gone to bed, and Jacqueline, glad of the respite, decided that she would break the news in the morning, and was tiptoeing across the landing toward her bedroom when she heard her mother's voice.

"Is that you, Jacqueline?"

She opened the door of her mother's room and switched on the light.

"So late, dear," said Mrs. Smith. "I had to come to bed, but I couldn't sleep. I'm much too anxious to sleep. Colonel Lutman assured me everything would be all right—we had an excellent lunch, Jacqueline. It was such a relief not to have to look at the price of everything before saying I'd have it—but you behaved very strangely at Mr. Stuckey's office this morning, and just for the moment I was afraid you were going to refuse to sign. You did sign the deed, dear, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes, mother, I signed it."

A smile spread over her mother's face and her hand found Jacqueline's and drew her down until her lips brushed the girl's cheek.

"You've made me very happy, Jacqueline," she said. "Bless you, dear. It's years since I really slept properly, but I shall tonight."

Jacqueline switched off the light, and she suddenly stooped, kissed her mother, and switched out the light.

It was all very well to talk, she told herself as she went to her bedroom, but it wasn't always easy not to be soft. Poor mother! She should at least have her good night's rest tonight.

* * *

Charles had work to do on that afternoon of his talk with Jacqueline. There was an important consultation the next day, and a mass of details to be mastered before he could go to bed that night; but when Miss Harringay and Mr. Bells left at 6 o'clock, the work was still untouched, and he was still sitting at his desk, staring at the papers in front of him. He looked, as Miss Harringay had remarked to Mr. Bells, "as if he had something stuck in his gizzard and couldn't cough it up."

At 7 o'clock he gave it up, went out, and had a meal in a neighboring restaurant. Then, returning to his office, he settled himself at his desk and made a serious effort to bring his thought to heel and concentrate on the matter in hand. For two hours he struggled on, and then, glancing at his watch and finding that it was 10 o'clock, he leaned back in his chair and stared resentfully at the documents he had been studying. It was no use trying to understand them tonight; he would get up early and have a go at them in the morning.

There was a small room above the offices of Messrs. Stuckey & Stuckey which, though it bore no outward and visible sign of their occupation, was none the less included in the suite. It was approached by a short spiral staircase in the corner of the main office, and had been used, until Charles became sole partner of the firm, as a store room. Charles, however, had found a better use for it. There were numbered amongst Messrs. Stuckey & Stuckey's clients gentlemen whom prudence warned to shun publicity and daylight, and who, consequently, when in need of legal advice, preferred that their consultations with their legal advisers should be held at an hour when they could slip in and out of the office under cover of darkness. Charles had had appointments at 2 o'clock in the morning, and midnight was quite a common hour; and since at that time of night the journey from Rotherhithe to Bloomsbury, where the solicitor occupied a furnished flat, involved a long walk or an expensive taxi ride, he had transformed his erstwhile store room into a very fair apology for a bedroom.

There, on such nights as he was detained at the office, he slept; there, too, from time to time he accommodated his friend, Captain Allwright, when his ship, the John o' Gaunt, was berthed nearby. And other had slept in that room, whose history would make splendid popular fiction of the most thrilling type.

Charles decided that he would sleep there tonight. He climbed the spiral staircase, kicked off his shoes, switched off the light, and flung himself himself on the bed in the darkness, only to discover that sleep was out of the question. That word "coward" that Jacqueline had flung at him rankled and made him restless. What did she know, or what had she guessed? Something, she had said, had happened in his life to push him down—something tremendous. Was that only feminine intuition? Was it that she had realised, when she saw him, that he wasn't in the least like the man he could be, that here in Rotherhithe, acting as mouthpiece for the riff-raff, he was out of his element, that by rights he should be doing something better?

He smiled as he thought of the deed. It had been a brain-wave, that announcement that Jacqueline had signed in the wrong place. He would stick to it, too; it would give him a few more days, at any rate, and even so there was no time to be lost. Lutman, of course, hadn't believed him; he had hardly hoped that he would accept his word for it, but so long as Lutman did not see the deed, he would not risk letting the marriage take place, and that was what mattered. Lutman had shied up pretty accurately what had been in his mind. It had only been a vague idea then, but it was a clear-cut resolve now. Tomorrow morning he would destroy this deed, and then he would see Jacqueline and get the whole wretched business off his chest. He wondered if, when he had told her everything, she would still think him a coward.

Charles sat up, switched on the light, and felt in his pocket for his cigaret case. He put a cigaret between his lips and began exploring each pocket in turn in search of matches. Then, deciding that he must have left them on his desk, he got up from the bed, crossed to the head of the spiral staircase, and began to go down. Halfway down he suddenly paused and stood rigid, staring in the direction of the door that led from the main office into his private room.

The door was wide open—he could see the top right-hand corner of it silhouetted against the window—and in his own room, just for a fraction of a second, he had seen a flash of light. Through the window, perhaps—from some boat on the river. But he didn't think so; it had been too vivid for that. It was more as if someone had snapped a flashlight on and off again.

He waited, his gaze riveted on the doorway, but the light did not reappear, and he was about to continue his expedition in search of matches when he paused again and his grip tightened on the handrail. The door into his room was open, but he had not left it open. He distinctly remembered shutting it. The bottom edge had caught a rug in the linoleum and he had had to force the door to. Someone was in his room.

Charles did not hesitate now. Whatever other type of coward he might be, he was not a physical coward. Slowly, treading noiselessly, he went down the staircase, congratulating himself that he had removed his shoes before going down, straining his ears for the least sound, and all the time peering into the darkness of the doorway. Cautiously feeling his way past Miss Harringay's desk, he reached the doorway, felt for the electric light switch just inside his room, found it, and pressed it down.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY COMES BOBBIE

"Oh, goodness! How you startled me!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, his paws raised high above his head. In one paw he held the teasel pods he had just picked to comb out Jangle's tangles. The rabbit gentleman had heard a voice ordering him to put up his paws and he did so.

"Oh, I surprised you, did I?" asked the voice.

"Yes, Jangle," answered Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. As yet he hadn't turned around but was facing the teasel plant. "I suppose, Jangle," went on the rabbit gentleman, "you hopped out here so I could comb your tangles with the queer teasel comb? It's a good thing you did, Jangle. Then you won't be late for school. I hope you have had your breakfast."

"Well, I haven't had my breakfast, but I'm going to," said a snarling voice. "And, beanos, I'm not Jangle!"

Surprise

He turned quickly around and then he saw he need not have asked that question. For he saw looking at him and licking his white, sharp teeth with his bright red tongue, the Bob Cat. The Bob Cat, whose friends called him "Bobbie," and his silly little tail with him.

"No, I see you aren't Jangle," said Uncle Wiggily sadly.

"Can you see that I am hungry?" mewed the Bob Cat.

"No," Uncle Wiggily replied, "I can't."

"Well, I am!" snarled the Bad Chap. "I'm always hungry and, now that I have caught you, I'm going to have breakfast. What did you mean about Jangle?"

"Would you like me to tell you a Bedtime Story about Jangle?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"No, I wouldn't," said the Bob Cat most impolitely.

"Well, I'm going to, just the same," said Uncle Wiggily bravely and boldly. "It will be like reading the newspaper with your breakfast—that is if you are going to eat me, Bobbie."

"Well, I am, so go on with the Bedtime story if you must," snarled the Bob Cat.

"It's like this," said Uncle Wiggily. "Last night my little rabbit girl, Jangle, forgot to comb her fur when she went to bed. So it was all in tangles when she awakened this morning. Jangle's tangles—isn't that cute?"

"Oh, get along with the story," snarled Bobbie.

Curious

"I tried to help Jangle untangle her fur so she could go to school," said Uncle Wiggily, "but the bath room comb jumped out of my paws. So I hopped out to pick some teasles and with a teasle I can get the tangles out of Jangle's fur."

"What's a teasel?" asked Bobbie who was curious and nosy and snoopy, like all cats.

"This is a teasel," said Uncle Wiggily suddenly. With that Uncle Wiggily scratched the sharp, prickly burr of the teasel, like a thistle, on the Bob Cat's nose.

"Hi! Hi! What are you doing?" howled the Bad Chap.

"I'm combing you, Bobbie! I'm combing you. Only I'm combing your nose instead of your fur!" laughed Mr. Longears. Once more he scratched with the teasel comb the Bad Chap's nose and then Bobbie howled and ran away as fast as he could run without his rabbit breakfast.

So the bunny uncle was saved. He hopped home, combed out Jangle's tangles with the teasel burr's hooks and by hurrying Jangle wasn't late for school. The Lady Mouse Teacher said she looked very nice.

And if the gold fish doesn't try to go swimming in the milk bottle and look like a marshmallow candy, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the red glass.

Yukon Gave Pattullo Start As Youth In Gold Rush Days

Acted As Secretary Of Government Commission, Served On Dawson Council

ONTARIO BOY FROM GALT

OTTAWA, April 28 (CP) — Forty years ago a young newspaper man from Galt, Ontario, trod the "trail of '98" as a minor government official and saw at first hand the greatest gold rush in history, the rush which made the Yukon Territory world famous.

Last night as premier of British Columbia, the same man, Thomas Duff Pattullo, announced the Yukon would become a part of that province. Thus Mr. Pattullo may come to govern the country he knows so well and the country which gave him his start on the road to high office.

Mr. Pattullo was secretary of the Yukon commission in the turbulent years of 1897 and 1898 which saw 30,000 adventurous gold seekers from all corners of the earth pour into the rock-bound sub-Arctic country which forms the northwest corner of Canada.

For three years as assistant gold commissioner he watched the trickle of yellow metal move out to the marts of the world and make millionaires of a lucky few of those 30,000 pioneers. He also sat on the city council of Dawson, still the principal town in the Yukon, though much depleted in population.

Fur traders blazed the trail for white men into the Yukon in the middle of the last century but it was prospectors who put the country on the map. On the 17th of August, 1896 placer gold was discovered on Bonanza Creek in such startling quantities as to set thousands of men on the long hard trail into the sub-Arctic.

First Discovery In 1873

This was not the first discovery as many years before gold had been found and mined in the Yukon but it was one of the great discoveries of all time. The first prospector reached the Yukon in 1873 and in the years following gold was mined on the forty mile and sixty mile rivers but not in startling quantities.

The rush of '98 has been celebrated in song and story as have few other events in the world's history. Robert W. Service has immortalized the scenes and typical characters of those eventful years in his rollicking poetry.

In such poems as "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" and "The Cremation of Sam McGee" he has distilled into a few words something of the heroism, the sin, and the hardship encountered by the men who staked on a frozen and rocky trail to wealth.

Few Hardships Today

Visitors to the Yukon today travel in comfortable steamers and railway cars and encounter none of the hardships which met the gold-seekers. Now as then the chief entrance of the Yukon is through Skagway, Alaska, a picturesque port at the head of the Lynn Canal.

Skagway was the original wild and woolly city of the northwest where Soapy Smith and his gang of bandits held sway and where Soapy and Frank Rid shot and killed each other in mortal combat.

Yukon Territory has an area of 207,076 square miles and is bounded on the south by British Columbia, on the west by Alaska, on the north by the Arctic Ocean and on the east by the North West Territories.

During the gold rush days the population exceeded 30,000. The territory first appeared in the records of the Canadian census in 1901 when the population was 27,219. At the 1931 census it was down to 4,230.

A Poet's Prayer For King's Reign

London, April 28 (AP)

POET LAUREATE John Masefield's "prayer for the King's reign" appeared to-day in the official coronation souvenir program.

The poem, which is in addition to a previous coronation sonnet by Masefield, follows:

"O God, the ruler over earth and sea,
Grant us Thy guidance in the reign to be;
Grant that our King may make this ancient land
A realm of brothers, working mind and hand
To make the life of man a fairer thing:
God grant this living glory to the King.
Grant, to our Queen, the strength that lifts and shares
The daily burden that a monarch bears;
Grant to the both, Thy holy help to give
The hopeless, hope, the workless, means to live;
The light to see, the skill to make us see
Where ways are bad, what better ways may be;
And grace, to give to working minds and sent
To reach excelling things beyond their best.
Grant to them peace, and Thy diviner peace,
The joy of making human wars to cease.
Make wise the councils of the men who sway
The Britain here, the Britains far away;
And grant us all, that every rightness willed
In this beginning reign may be fulfilled."

Athletic Association Names Committees For Coming Field Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, April 27—The regular meeting of The Omemee A.A., was held in the council chamber, April 21, 1937, with a very poor attendance, owing to a very stormy evening. Moved by J. Johnson, seconded by H. Jones, that F. Parson and R. Faulkner act as committee to secure some extra sports attraction.—Carried. Moved by L. Curtis, seconded by H. A. Y. P. A. Banquet

The annual banquet of The A.Y.P.A. was held in the basement of Christ church on Monday evening, about 70 persons being present. After a delightful repast, the first toast was proposed to His Majesty by G. Stephenson, who presided very ably as toastmaster. The toast to Canada was given by Miss E. Sephenson and the reply made by Miss A. Weir. Miss M. McQuade was then called upon to toast "To the Church," and the reply was given by Rev. C. H. Johnson, Rector of the Parish. The toast to the A.Y.P.A. was proposed by Miss M. Thorn and replied by H. W. Hill.

Millbrook Speaker

The speaker of the evening was the Venerable Archdeacon Simpson, of Millbrook, who spoke on the topic of "Life." The Archdeacon reminded his listeners that although young people were always desirous of attaining independence they should never forget that the same achievement carried with it a greater responsibility. The address was very favorably received by all present.

The toast to the ladies was given by A. Adams and replied to by Miss Betty Deyell. Several visitors were present upon invitation from other associations. They very successful evening closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

WHEY PRICES CUT TO 5 CENTS BARREL

Patrons Protest Against Price Increase At Warsaw Cheese Plant

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, April 28 — A special meeting of Warsaw Cheese Factory was called for Saturday evening, April 24. At the previous meeting which was poorly attended it had been passed to charge 2c. more a barrel for the whey. This raised a little grievance and Saturday's special meeting was called. There is really no accurate method of keeping track of the whey. It was decided to reduce the price of whey to 5c a barrel. The whey is skimmed and those who do not draw whey get the revenue from it; others have the whey. This meeting was well attended.

On Friday evening last the Town Hall was well filled for the dance in favor of the rink. McCauley's orchestra supplied the music and all had a very enjoyable time until about 3 a.m.

Mr. Renaud is bringing the Girls' Glee Club of Lakefield High School, numbering forty, also the male voice sextette, of Norwood, to Warsaw United Church on Friday evening, May 7, where they will give a concert in aid of the United Church W.M.S.

Rev. J. W. and Mrs. Wilkinson attended the concert given in Norwood and were very much pleased.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Thurston, Greenhurst, visited Mrs. Thurston's mother, Mrs. R. W. Payne, arriving on Wednesday and returning on Thursday.

Miss Eva Clifford visited relatives near Springville on Sunday.

Harvey Clifford, from Springville, was in Warsaw on Saturday evening, remaining until Sunday and attended his old Sunday School class. Old friends are best to Harry.

Neville Chamberlain And His Budget Box

Pictured at his desk is Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the British exchequer, with one hand in the famous budget box, out of which recently came a gigantic headache for the British people, in the form of a big tax increase. The box has a history all its own. It was carried by Chamberlain's father, "Old Joe" Chamberlain, when he was chancellor, and by uncounted holders of the office before him, scuffed and battered as it is, it holds the key to Britain's huge re-armament program, for its latest contents comprised budgetry recomendations to pay for British preparedness.

Garbage Canless Pole Tossed In Jail Forgotten By Detroit Court 2 Weeks

Detroit, April 28 (CP)

NICK BANKO, 65, Detroit, was a free man to-day after spending two weeks in county jail awaiting trial for failure to possess a garbage can. It seems Banko speaks only Polish and did not make his plight known.

The forgotten prisoner was arrested April 12 after he neglected to respond to a summons. It was believed he had been delivered to jail with several traffic court prisoners and been mixed with them. No court sent for him so Banko made himself at home in his cell.

His plight was discovered accidentally when an assistant turnkey discovered a warrant against Banko with no record of disposition of the case. Taken to ordinance court yesterday, Banko had difficulty making himself understood, even through an interpreter. He was immediately released.

The first thing he did? He hied to a store and bought three garbage cans—a big one, a medium one, and a little one.

WITH KNOWLEDGE MYSTERY PASSES

Wonders Of Voltage Simplified In Understanding, Inventor Says

DETROIT, April 28. — (CP)—Denying there was any mystery in the world, Charles F. Kettering, vice-president of research for General Motors, fried an experimental omelet in the main auditorium of the necessary heat from an electric coil buried beneath a tray of ice cubes and a folded newspaper.

The Detroit News says:

With only a casual reference to his own contributions to the accented conveniences of this age of the machine, Kettering traced the development of three major industries—telegraph and telephone, electric lighting and motion picture—pausing momentarily to operate one of the numerous gadgets arranged on the stage.

Among the most sensational of his exhibits were demonstrations of the stroboscope by which a light flickering 1,700 times a minute made a cutaway model engine turning over at the same speed appear to stand still; of an ultra-violet ray lamp which revealed brilliant colors in otherwise drab-appearing rock; an oscillograph which pictured the tonal vibrations of speech and music, and a 1,600-cycle electromagnet which produced an inverse effect on an aluminum ring, projecting it high into the air.

And for his crowning touch, Kettering combined two colorless liquids into a large test tube to produce a brilliantly-glowing column of bluish liquid light which bubbled over onto the floor in a shimmering cascade.

Conceding that "various scientific experiments are fascinating," Kettering maintained that each one is basically simple.

"Modern progress does not depend on mystery or complicated apparatus for advancement," he said. Most of these things are stumbled on accidentally—but (and this was a very big but) they wouldn't have been stumbled on if some one hadn't been walking around where these things were.

"There isn't any mystery in the world. Everything is simple provided you have the proper understanding."

LICENSES REFUSED

30 of Montreal Cabarets Will Be Forced to Close.

MONTREAL, April 28.—(CP) — Decision was made to-day by civic authorities to refuse licenses to 30 of Montreal's 58 cabarets. They will be forced to close May 1. The action was taken, it was learned, after six months' investigation of the night club situation under the direction of Fernand Dufresne, director of police.

Although the city has no jurisdiction over liquor-selling privileges, granted by the Quebec Liquor Commission, the civic license covers permits for dancing and is expected to be a death blow to the cabarets.

Balkan Judge Advises Aged Moslem Husband On Tales Of Love

HUBBY TO MEND WAYS

BELGRADE, April 28—(CP)—"Feed her ears with love—that is my best advice for an old husband with a young and pretty wife."

This was the romantic advice given by a judge in Bosnia to an elderly Moslem defendant in a divorce case, whose spouse complained all he did when he came home was to test the furniture for dust with his fingers. "My ears are starved for words of love," she complained, "but instead of love, he hits me when he finds dust on the chairs and tables."

LIKES ENGLISH SWEEPS FLOORS

Princess Of 3,000-Year Family Tree Goes To School With Other Girls

KEEPS CLASS CLEAN

TOKYO, April 28—(CP)—She is an slender, bobbed-hair girl, dressed in a middy blouse and pleated skirt who takes her turn with a broom and goes to school just like any other 11-year-old. That is Princess Teru, eldest daughter of the Emperor of Japan, and much beloved among the people of the island Empire.

She sits each morning in a class with 30 other girls of noble birth at the exclusive Peeress' School studying geography, science, history and mathematics.

With five of her classmates, Princess Teru takes her turn one day each week in sweeping the schoolroom, oiling the floor, dusting and making tea for the teacher and other pupils. This little princess charming of an Imperial family that goes back almost 3,000 years lives a curiously-blended life which balances ancient ritual and 20th century modernism. She sleeps in a western bed, eats meals and dresses for the most part in western clothes. But on occasion she must wear brocade garments woven five centuries ago, and perform age-old rites.

The princess lives in a small, unpretentious house which was built especially for her several years ago in the vast Imperial Palace enclosure. She shares this now with her two younger sisters. The girls see their mother at least once each day, and always spend Sunday with their parents.

In selecting the one foreign language she preferred to study, Princess Teru upset precedent and, instead of choosing French, she chose English. From the first the princess has shown a pronounced aptitude in her science courses.

Pity The Country Correspondent

Pity the country correspondent for any daily or weekly newspaper. A heaven where all the questions are answered before they are asked must await the small-town newspaper correspondent as a just reward for humiliation suffered as a result of our sins of omission, declares one of them in a sparkling article in a recent issue of the Northern News.

FROM THE lofty position of a real honest-to-goodness city reporter we are doubtless very small fry indeed; but Mr. and Mrs. Average Resident appear to think that we should be infallible and possess just as keen a sense of news as the aforementioned superior variety of city reporter. That each of us has one (at least) faithful friend and ally, who may be relied on to aid and abet us in our search for news; one whom we know is loyal to us and to our column we bear witness here and now. May their days be long in the land.

* * *

TO BE a successful small-town correspondent, one requires a superabundance of tact, discretion, patience and news-sense, to say nothing of a brand of humour which permits one to bear unmoved the gentle nothings—nothings to those who say them we mean—retailed in the market place regarding our reporting. Where does such a one live and have their being, you ask. Who can say—suffice to say that our own seems to have been passed by.

* * *

EVEN TO BE an ordinary, average variety of the genus—small-town correspondent, one requires a never failing memory for names, initials, dates of events, big and little; a sixth, yea, verily, a seventh and eighth sense to ferret out news, to be aware in some mysterious manner of the name of strangers within our gates, where they hail from, and why. For the fact that we might be grateful for such information will never enter the minds of their hosts. These things are definitely up to us so why should they worry?

* * *

BUT FAIL to have that information in the next week's column, and there will be no need of burning ears to make us aware that things not conducive to our peace of mind are being broadcast.

* * *

THERE ARE occasions, too, when we meet some kindly disposed neighbor with news to relate, and woe is us, we are caught without a scrap of paper or the stub of a pencil. Oh, well, we shall try and remember the several items, so we trust to luck and a not-too reliable memory. Arriving home we snatch up pad and pencil only to discover we are not sure which of the two Sister Green was elected president of the club, and which was taking the night train for the east. . . We must make a point of asking the first Club member we meet. As for that last item—what was it? We cudgel our brain in vain. . . . it's gone, completely vanished.

* * *

THERE ARE Mr. and Mrs. Average Resident who simply detest seeing their name in print. We know them by the cold and baleful look they give us, if, in our temerity, we can meet their glance after we have tried to do our duty by our paper. On the other side of the fence live Mr. and Mrs. Average Resident who are just as indignant when their names fail to appear. On occasions such as either of these it behooves th small-town correspondent to walk warily and adroitly, directly out of the line of vision of these, at any other time, delightful neighbors.

* * *

AND THE account of last night's game, or perhaps it was a whist drive which we didn't attend, it was such miserable weather. . .Well it's the deadline now and we accept the story on faith, trusting to the special guardian angel who hovers over even average correspondents on rare occasions when the guardian angel was hovering elsewhere. Someone has blundered. Further we learn that the prizes were donated. Shall we ever be forgiven the omission?

* * *

AGAIN SOMETHING like this is said very sweetly: "I was disappointed in not seeing you at the XYZ Society's meeting. You didn't get quite the right idea on that resolution . . an unbiased report." We gasp audibly and murmer something supposed to be intelligent. Of course, we've nothing to say for ourselves, though to ourselves we felt a little proud over the way we had worried that awkward little episode. . .sure we weren't a mistaken? Besides, wasn't that the week we were convalescing for the 'flu or the mumps or something? Maybe we'd been delirious when we wrote it.

* * *

THEN THERE are those monthly meetings of the ZYX Guild, which some kind person faithfully reports until it is no longer their duty. A silence follows, and we make a request which is graciously acceded to, for a little while. . . . We sigh and wonder whether they would rather not have their meetings reported. . . .we don't know what to do. Finally we decide to wait a while before mentioning it again. We recall that incident, oh, ages ago, when a certain matter, the responsibility of which rested on one department, was well such things are bound to happen, sometimes. The resulting report, as given, caused a minor upheaval at the next meeting—"though, of course it was no fault of ours," we were informed. However, reports were few and far between, and decidedly brief, for quite some time afterwards.

Anyhow, we wait, until the inevitable ". . . . our actresses so seldom appear in the press, now, we thought you liked to get news of this sort."

"Like? Of course we do, in fact that is what we are here for," we reply, aloud. To ourselves, we ask in despair, "Why, oh why, won't they see that it's all grist that comes to our mill. . . . that we are paid by the inch . . . minus the headlines. If they would only realize how much we'd rather make that inch a mile.

Half 'Phone Lines Out Of Order —London Begins Inspecting Damaged Homes

THAMESVILLE, Ont., April 29 (C.P.)—Flood waters of the Thames which swept into Thamesville yesterday dropped four inches overnight.

The village, 15 miles north-east of Chatham, was still isolated today as the water rolled through the streets. Reeve McKenzie of Thamesville, after scanning the flooded Thames as it flowed south, stated the flood crest would likely reach Chatham before six o'clock this evening.

A dozen Thamesville stores and about 150 homes were still partly submerged, hundreds of acres of district farmlands were under water.

Crowded into upper floors of the lone hotel and the opera house, nearly 500 of the village's 800 population spent a miserable night. Other families remained in the upper stories of their homes and waited for the waters to recede.

Dotted with wreckage and creating greater property damage in its dash to Lake St. Clair, the Thames rolled on through the night toward Chatham.

Thamesville was cut off from vehicular traffic in all directions. Boats were brought in from nearby points to help in rescue work. All during the night rescuers worked steadily paddling their boats through the streets in water six to eight feet deep. Telephone operators remained at their boards but half the lines were out of commission. Calls that could be made were limited to three minutes.

Gas and electric supplies were cut off during the night. Orders were issued to boil all drinking water.

The flood struck Thamesville from both the north and south when the main river and a tributary spilled over the banks and covered their deluge in the main street, junction point of Highways No. 2 and 21.

Wreckage Drifts Past

From the east the waters carried trees, furniture, tourist cabins and even a wrecked farm house. The Canadian National-Wabash Railway line was blocked.

Several rescues from drowning were reported in the Thamesville district. Ruth McDonald and Harvey Simpson, Ridgetown high school students, and an unnamed man were pulled from the water when the river bark collapsed where they stood. The rescuers were Bill Carnie and Bob McTavish.

Norman Evans of Howard Township, was carrying a baby when a culvert gave way beneath him. He tossed the baby to safety and scrambled from the water unaided.

Jack Julien, also of Howard Township, was rescued by Robert McLaren, Archie Dick and James Miller. After Julien was dragged from the water artificial respiration was necessary to revive him.

Canoes, scows and all sorts of craft carried out the rescue work. In the outlying sections farmers struggled through water to reach their barns and save livestock. Cattle were driven to high land. One farm-

Frederick Freeman, Oldest Merchant In District Has Operated Store Over 60 Years

HALIBURTON, Ont., April 29.—(C P)—Frederick Freeman, oldest merchant in this district north of Peterborough will celebrate his 90th birthday tomorrow. An early settler here, he recalls when oxcarts were the most popular means of transportation before being supplanted by horse and wagons and then streamlined trains.

Born in Holloway, London, in 1847 he was the fifth son of a family of 12. He came to Toronto when about 25 then moved to Penelon Falls before continuing northeast to Haliburton. He has owned a general store here for 60 years. Although only a five-minute walk from the post office Mr. Freeman said he had not been in it for 40 years but has had a box there for 50 years.

Brockville Block Damaged By Fire

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 29.—(C P)—Extensive damage, chiefly by smoke and water, was done today to contents of a three-storey brick business block in King street west owned by W. H. Comstock, and occupied by the Robert Sheridan Company, furniture dealers, together with the occupants of several residential flats.

Originating by children playing with matches in a small frame leanto on a roof behind the flat-occupied by William Hunter, the fire spread upwards to the top floor and firemen called to fight the outbreak were compelled to pour a large amount of water into the building.

Temporary Homes For Refugees To Be Found In Britain, France, Scandinavia

LONDON, April 29. (CP)—A group of British parliamentarians hastened plans to-day to evacuate 300,000 women and children from the besieged Spanish port of Bilbao with the assistance of the British fleet.

A member of the national joint committee for Spanish relief with which the parliamentary group allied itself, was flying to Bilbao to arrange first for removal of 100,000 children to temporary homes in Great Britain, France, Scandinavia and other countries.

The conquest of Durango, only 16 miles from Tottering Bilbao, and the bombing and razing of Guernica, the "holy city" of the war-scarred Basque country, spurred the members of parliament to perfect the evacuation plan.

Wilfred Robertson, Liberal M.P., and spokesman for the group, said he planned to confer with naval officials on the means by which the British government would assist. He said he hoped evacuation would start in two or three days.

British warships have remained three miles offshore in escorting floodships to blockaded Bilbao. The eighth British merchantman to enter Bilbao Harbor got there yesterday. An admiralty spokesman declared the navy had not received any order to aid in the evacuation.

Raging Flood Rips Through Highway Near Tillsonburg

13,000 Peasant Market Folk Caught In Guernica Slaughter

Streets Jammed As Bombs Rained Down — Thousands Trapped In Blazing Buildings

OTHERS MACHINE-GUNNED

By Fernando Fontecha
(Copyright, The Havas News Agency.)

BILBAO, April 29 (CP-Havas).—A terrifying tale of how 13,000 men, women and children, trapped in a holocaust of flames, bullets and exploding bombs, struggled for their lives during Monday's insurgent air bombing of Guernica was unfolded today by a peasant woman who lived through the ordeal.

Maria Gottia expressed the belief at least 4,400 were killed or wounded in the air raid, allegedly carried out by German fliers serving the insurgent forces driving toward Bilbao. Guernica, ancient capital of the Basque, is about 12 miles northeast of Bilbao.

On Monday the inhabitants of Guernica and others from neighboring points assembled in the town for the market activities which customarily took place on that day, Senora Gottia said.

"At 4 p.m., when the streets of the town were most congested, we heard the sudden drone of airplane motors. An airplane hove into sight and dropped a number of bombs into the streets, instantly killing and wounding a number of persons.

Mad Scramble for Shelter

"Madly, men, women and children scrambled for shelter. Soon other airplanes appeared and began to bomb buildings and churches. Walls tumbled about the heads of many who had run inside. The noise of exploding bombs and the cries of the wounded were deafening. Flames roared through a number of buildings hit by incendiary bombs. When those inside fled into the streets the air raiders swooped low and mowed down all within sight with machine-gun fire.

"The populace faced the choice of either returning to flaming buildings or running into the open streets.

"I saw all this from a house in which I had hidden. Scores of wounded and dead lay in the streets. Others were burned to death in the Nepal is the state in which lies Mount Everest, the highest mountain in the world.

MONTREAL STRIKE LINES BOLSTERED

Dress Pickets Defy Ultimatum From Quebec's Labor Minister

MONTREAL, April 29 (CP) — Picket lines around some 25-strike-bound dress manufacturing shops were strengthened today as strike leaders defied an ultimatum from Quebec's labor minister to end the two-weeks' old walkout.

The deadline in Hon. William Tremblay's communication to strike leaders for the men to return to work "within 24 hours" passed early today with no sign of a break in the employees' ranks.

Though the 3,000 strikers voted unanimously yesterday in favor of accepting a government offer to arbitrate to the difficulties, there was no indication a board would be set up immediately. The arbitration offer was contingent on the strikers returning to work, and strike leaders were adamant the strike would continue until the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union was accorded recognition by the holdout manufacturers.

ECONOMIC PARLEY LEAD IS SOUGHT IN WASHINGTON

World Powers Would Ensure Peace By Removing Trade Barriers

WAIT HULL SCHEME

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Some of the most important countries look hopefully to Washington and Secretary of State Hull for a further lead in connection with his advocacy of an economic conference to ensure peace by removing trade barriers.

Belgian Premier Paul Van Zeeland plans to visit the United States soon to discuss international economic cooperation with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull. The Premier's trip is approved by France and Britain and also has the blessing of Germany and Italy.

The position is so difficult statesmen see no hope of success in a purely political peace conference. Many of them believe, however, that out of economic readjustments and the establishment of more friendly relations might come the broad achievement which would halt the armaments race and save Europe from probable war and certain bankruptcy.

Britain is particularly active in efforts to bring feverish Europe back to normal. She has just embarked on the greatest armaments program the world has known but one of her objects was to shock other countries into a realization of the futility of arming to the teeth. She doesn't want to carry out this program unless she is compelled to.

Difficult Situation

However, conditions are so muddled in Europe progress towards peace is difficult. Britain had been hopeful of resurrecting the Locarno pact for mutual security, at least among western European nations, but the prospects in that direction are not bright. It is more probable that some non-aggression pacts may be achieved.

More and more, though foreign statesmen are turning to the Hull evangelistic thesis which talks about trade barriers but in reality is an effort to apply the ethical code of the golden rule. One of the most

Express Liners Sailing Minus Many Coronation Passengers

Officials Suggest Change Of Kings, Overcrowded London, High Seat, Hotel Rates

LABOR TROUBLE IN U.S.

NEW YORK, April 29 (CP).—Passenger officials of some of the larger steamship lines revealed today a number of "Coronation bookings" had been cancelled.

When the Aquitania sailed from New York yesterday she was shy 100 passengers who had been booked to sail for England. The Europa left soon afterward with space for 75 additional cabin passengers. The Normandie able to carry 700 in cabin class had only 510. The Berengaria will sail next Tuesday with 100 empty cabins, officials said.

Discussing failure of the expected "standing room only," trans-Atlantic trade to materialize, Marcel Delaporte, passenger traffic manager of the French Line said: "The change of rulers may have had something to do with it. Two-thirds of our Coronation bookings were made last year before Edward's abdication."

Among other reasons ascribed for the below-capacity traffic were:

The impression that London will be too crowded for comfort; high prices of seats along the Coronation route and steep hotel rates; the recent statement of Lord Marley that profiteering could be expected in London; reluctance of United States business men to leave their offices at this time of threatened labor trouble.

Last Minute News Flashes

CHATHAM—At 1.30 p.m. (E.S.T.) waterworks officials here reported the water level of the Thames River had risen about one inch in the preceding two hours. "It is not rising nearly so fast as it was early in the day," said Thomas Kingston, waterworks official, who added he did not know whether the maximum height had yet been reached.

LONDON — Home Secretary Sir John Simon announced today that Great Britain will offer a refuge to "a limited number" of the children now besieged in Bilbao. At the same time, both British and French authorities indicated naval aid in the evacuation of up to 300,000 refugees from the besieged Basque capital awaited a promise from Insurgent General Francisco Franco that he will not molest such an undertaking.

WASHINGTON — The United States House of Representatives, in a race with time, adopted today a compromise conference report on the Pittman-McReynolds cash and carry neutrality bill.

A young man was fined $10 by a police magistrate in Melbourne, Australia, for kissing a girl in broad daylight on a park bench in spite of her evidence that she gave her consent.

Four Wolves Kill And Eat 2 Lambs Broad Daylight Edge Of Centreville

Tweed, April 29.

AFTER a lapse of several weeks, wolves have again begun killing sheep in the district south of the village of Enterprise. On Tuesday morning, four large wolves killed and devoured two nearly full grown lambs belonging to Vincent Kennedy, farmer of the Centreville district.

The two were of a flock of twenty pasturing on a lot about a mile south of the village of Centreville, on the Tamworth to Napanee highway, and only a short distance across the road from St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church where early mass was being held at the time the sheep were killed.

Clarence Hannah, a young farmer living a short distance away, saw the wolves chasing the sheep, but not having any firearms about the place, hesitated to go near the spot. In his excitement he forgot the telephone in his residence by which he could have summoned help from the neighboring farmers.

Levi Salisbury, sheep valuator for the Township of Camden, visited the scene later, and found that small pieces of bone and hide were all that remained of the lambs. Farmers armed with guns are watching in the hope that the killers will return.

In recent months wolves have taken heavy toll among sheep and turkeys belonging to farmers in that vicinity; and in some instances several calves also have been killed.

Flood Ring Sends Ruin Miles Wide

Aerial View Shows Thamesville And Louisville Merely Islands In Spreading Sea

MANY ACRES COVERED

Livestock Stand In Fields Water To The Knees—Abandoned Cars Mark Highways

CHATHAM, Ont., April 29 (C.P.) —Bill Robinson, staff reporter of the Chatham Daily News, after an airplane flight over flooded areas of Kent County to-day, described in a copyrighted story how the Thames River spread itself across thousands of acres in the county, isolating homes and farms near its course in the rural areas and "encroached upon the very doors of houses in the city."

The situation, viewed from the air this morning, "appeared practically hopeless for the score upon score of farmers up river from Chatham as the surrounding Thames disgorged its overflow into every creek and rivulet, once merely pencil marks upon the landscape, but now completely lost in the raging horrors, Robinson said.

The Thames, which prior to the flood presented itself like a silver stream, now appears a sullen, muddy mass encompassing all in its path. At every turn of its winding course it has leaped its banks, inundating fields, sweeping into homes and barnyards.

McGregor's Creek, a tributary of the Thames, is now receiving its waters and is backing up for miles, cutting roads and means of communication for farmers for unestimated distances from it.

Water Spreading.

Robinson said severity of the flood was not lessening in the Thamesville, Louisville and Kent Bridge areas. While rise in water level there may not be apparent, he said, it is strongly indicated that the water is spreading over the adjacent lands, being forced there by the current.

Thamesville and Louisville appear to be completely isolated. Only two roads are open from the city to Chatham. They are No. 2 highway going westward and the River road to Dover. The latter is blocked at Prairie Siding.

"Worst of the flood is being felt in the area south of the river. There McGregor and Indian Creeks, he said, had provided means by which thousands of acres have been inundated.

Robinson said the Thamesville and Louisville streets were still completely under water. Highway No. 2 in these areas was flooded for miles.

Farmer, 2 Horses Drift On Raft In Barn, Waiting Flood To Drop

PIGS JOIN HENS ON TABLE

BOTHWELL, Ont., April 29 (CP) —Farmer Harry Helmer, his two horses floating on a raft in the barn, his pigs and chickens on a table in an upstairs room of the Helmer farmhouse with him, waited today for floods sweeping western Ontario to subside.

Helmer refused to be rescued last night. He called to neighbors from a window of his flood-marooned home to take their boat away—he'd stay with his animals.

When the Thames River flood swirled up about Helmer's farm house, four miles from Bothwell, neighbors paddled over. The two horses were standing in 28 inches of water and the Thames was rolling higher and higher into the barn.

The neighbors scouted about and towed back big beams. These were lashed together. The horses were helped on the raft. They'll have to stay on the floating platform in the high barn till the water recedes.

Shoots Third Horse

Helmer said no he wouldn't leave the farm. What would the pigs and chickens, let alone the horses, do?

IMPERFECT STAMP FOUND IN ISSUE

Canada "In Parenthesis" Is Discovery Of Montreal Philatelists In New Issue

MONTREAL, April 29.—(CP) — Canada "in parenthesis" is the discovery of Montreal philatelists in the new issue of King George VI three-cent Canadian stamps.

Double dots above the King's portrait in seven stamps on each sheet of the early printing of plates one and two give the appearance of a quotation mark after the word "Canada."

The fault was discovered by William Robertson, Westmount collector, and John F. Proskurnik, Montreal. The affected stamps run vertically in the fourth row from the right. Collectors have located 30 sheets of the "imperfects" in Montreal post offices.

100 Families Flee Homes In Chatham

Fifty Workmen Labor Feverishly Sandbagging City's Waterworks

EXPECT CREST AT NOON

Creek Only Trickle In Summer Is 25-30 Feet Deep—Many Highways Blocked

CHATHAM, Ont., April 29 (CP)—Nearly 100 families were evacuating their homes today on Fifth, Thames and Water streets after the water of the swollen Thames River had risen more than two feet during the night and was breaking out of its already widened banks.

More than 50 workmen worked feverishly to save the waterworks plant from being flooded. About 2,000 sandbags were being placed along the shore of the river, and fire department pumpers were pumping water out of the waterworks storeroom. Smaller pumps were being used within the plant and sandbags were piled there to protect the pumps from drain water which had broken a small hole in the wall and was pouring in a small stream into the building.

"We expect the worst about noon," said Thomas Kingston, city manager. "We are informed from Louisville that it was passing its worst stage of the flood about eight o'clock this morning. Louisville is about six miles east and that is about the speed of the river.

Rising Inches Every Hour

"The water is continuing to rise two or three inches an hour. We can stand a rise of another two or three feet, maybe even four feet before the waterworks plant will be in danger from motors being flooded," he said.

The present line of sandbags was four feet closer to the plant than the line of sandbags piled high along the bank during the night. "The bank was so undermined and weakened we had to move the sandbags back," said Jack Crago, superintendent of public works.

Two bridges were closed to-day, one at Adelaide and the other at Third Street. Water poured out over the approach to Fifth Street bridge in the centre of the city's business district.

"Water was pouring right over the Adelaide Bridge and was within a few inches of the Third Street Bridge, so we thought it safer to close them for fear of drifting lumber hitting them without warning," said Crago.

Many Outlets Blocked.

Highways east and south out of the city were impassable. Number 2 Highway east from the city was blocked by a flood of three feet of water across the roadway just four miles outside the city. Queen Street leading to Number 3 Highway was passable shortly after midnight with only two feet of water flooding it from McGregor Creek, but the depth was more than three feet a few hours later and traffic was impossible.

McGregor creek, only a trickle of water in the summer time, to-day was 25 to 30 feet deep, having been backed up by the increased height of the Thames river. Water spilled

HORNBY'S SCHEME ROUSES INTEREST IN IMMIGRATION

Many Maritimers Endorse Plan To Bring Immigrants To Provinces

STAKED AS FARMERS

DIGBY, N.S., April 29 (CP) — Maritimers are hearing considerable talk of the Hornby plan of British immigration to Canada these days and it comes chiefly from a former resident of this Bay of Fundy town who moved to Melfort, Sask., some years ago.

H. S. Potter who is interested in the scheme "first as a Nova Scotian, secondly as a Canadian above all as a Briton," is the man. He has toured Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, speaking before Boards of Trade and arousing no little interest and encouragement.

The plan, proposed by Brigadier-General M. L. Hornby in 1931, proposed to establish in Canada, particularly in the west and the Maritimes, British family settlements of selected settlers who would be properly supervised.

They would be placed on farms, equipped with necessary machinery and livestock and with comfortable dwellings and out-buildings. For five years, these families will be, in a way, tenants of the Hornby Company. During that time their living expenses would be taken care of and a proportion of the profits go to each individual farmer.

The groups would be under the supervision of a practical and experienced farmer. At the end of the five years or before the individual would have the option of buying his farm. If he failed to make good to the satisfaction of the supervisor, he and his family would be transported back to England at the cost of the company. The scheme would be financed through the British Empire Settlement fund of the British government, which now stands at £7,500,000.

British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Maritime governments already had approved of the plan, Potter said it was being supported in England. Boards of Trade in Halifax and through the Annapolis Valley endorsed the idea as did Charlottetown's Board.

"The governments of the Maritimes have been interviewed and have given very kindly expressions as to the immediate resumption of properly financed and supervised British immigration," he said.

"Behind it all is a gradual scheme of Empire building and for perpetuation of Empire strength and ideals nothing is more desirable than British emigration provided those coming in are able to adapt themselves and become useful and progressive citizens of Canada.

"Conditions here are much different from those in the old country and methods pursued there in a

The Royal Road To The Coronation

Britain's Royal family in a characteristic group picture

BUSY though its members are with the many duties their rank and standing impart, Britain's ruling family are often seen together. A home-making queen and a home-loving king head a little family group that has won a niche all its own and apart from the glamor of the throne in Britain's heart.

To-day, as their majesties rush through the final preparations for the glamorous if fatiguing pageant of their coronation, less and less of their time can be devoted to their home and family and the King and Queen will feel the loss. It can be classed, perhaps, as one of the penalties of rank, but safe it is to say that when the curtain falls on the May 12 celebrations, when the "captains and the kings depart" and the coronation passes into history, to the quiet of their home and family this King and Queen will turn for a brief respite before facing again their lifelong task.

The little family group that has become such a cornerstone to the Empire has not yet been broken up, or its members separated to tread the varying paths that are before them and while this still is so the picture we present today is particularly appealing.

A king and a queen are here, with a child who will one day, perhaps, herself sit upon the throne, yet here is a little family group whose regal rank has not been permitted to mar its complete charm and affection. The King is not the King here, but a loving husband and an adoring father. The Queen is not "her majesty" but the quiet, efficient wife and mother whose greatest care is for her home and her brood. England will hope that, serve though they must assiduously and long, the demands of duty will not intervene to lessen the happiness and unity of this charming group.

FIRESTONE SIGNS IN 36-HOUR WEEK DEAL WITH C.I.O.

Agreement Ends Eight-Week Strike By Akron Rubber Workers

GET BARGAINING RIGHTS

AKRON, O., April 29. (AP)—The first standard 36-hour week among the major industries of the U.S. was provided to-day in an agreement signed by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and the United Automobile Workers to end an eight-week strike at the company's large South Akron plants.

Leaders of the Pioneer Committee for Industrial Organization Union, who will submit the contract to the Firestone local for ratification tomorrow, claimed their first signed agreement with a major tire manufacturer gave them, in effect, sole collective bargaining rights.

The union pledged not to cause or tolerate any sit-down or stay-in strikes or other stoppage of work.

Firestone, closely following identical action by other members of the rubber capital's "big three"—Goodyear and Goodrich—agreed to discontinue financial and other support to its employee representation "company union."

The 36-hour-week agreement continues the present hour standard for the more than 10,000 production workers who were idle over demands for recognition as sole bargaining agent and abolition of the employee group.

Pershing's Uniform Is Not So Lavish

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—General John J. Pershing sailed for Britain and the Coronation today after singing in the but a description of his Coronation attire as "gorgeous."

"It has been very much exaggerated," said the 76-year-old general of the United States army, when asked about the gold-bedecked blue uniform, wide sash and ostrich-feathered "fore and aft" hat he will wear as one of President Roosevelt's representatives.

"It is merely a modification of the Brigadier General's uniform I wore 20 years ago, and it simply has been changed to correspond with my present rank.

"At that time," General Pershing added, "dress regulations of the army called for a cocked hat."

Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired, who sailed for the Coronation on the same boat, was asked if he would wear knee breeches.

"No," he retorted. "I think I will wear pink undies."

Veterans Of The Army Guard Monarch's Coronation Coach

Yeomen Warders Charged With Escorting King To His Crowning

AT WESTMINSTER ABBEY

LONDON April 29.—(CP)—Surrounding the royal coach on Coronation Day will be those historic guardians of His Majesty known as the Yeomen of the Guard.

The section of the Yeomen permanently stationed at the Tower, who are usually drawn upon for high ceremonial duties, are known as Yeomen Warders and trace their "fellowship" back to a period so old almost as the Tower itself.

They are selected from sergeants of the Armis of long and distinguished service, and are sergeants-major with warrant rank. They are taken impartially from every branch of the service and are appointed by the Constable of the Tower.

The chief dignitary amongst the Yeomen Warders is the Chief Warder, who for many centuries was known as the Yeoman Porter, for it still remains his duty to lock the gates of the Tower every night.

At 10 o'clock the Chief Warder accomplishes the main guard and demands an escort. This is detailed by the Officer of the Guard, and consists of one non-commissioned officers and four men under arms and one in addition, generally a bugler carrying a lantern. This escort, with the Chief Warder carrying the keys, marches off to lock the gates.

All the gates of the Tower are locked and barred, the soldiers of the escort turning inwards and presenting arms. Then the keys and escort march towards the Bloody Tower, but are brought up sharp by a sentry who, lowering his bayonet, challenges:

"Halt, who comes there?" "The Keys," replies the Chief Warder. "Whose keys?" demands the sentry. "King George's keys," answers the Chief Warder. "Pass, King George's keys. All's well," and the sentry then sits his bayonet and allows the procession to pass.

An Ancient Ceremony

Arrived opposite the main guard the Chief Warder with his escort find the Guard already turned out to receive them. "Guard and escort, present arms," is the order given by the officer of the Main Guard.

The Chief Warder steps to the front, and taking off his Tudor hat, says in a loud voice:

"God preserve King George," to which the Guard and escort in chorus reply, "Amen."

A slight pause and then the massed buglers play the nightly "Last Post." For more than 600 years this ceremony has been performed nightly at the Tower of London.

1,000 R.C. PRIESTS JAILED BY NAZI

Hitler's Press Charges Institutions No Longer Consecrated To God But To Vice

BERLIN, April 29 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, said today some Catholic institutions in Germany can be described only as "places consecrated no longer to God but to vice."

It coupled the statement with a warning, also printed in other Berlin newspapers, that the government's campaign against alleged immorality among Catholic churchmen had only begun.

The Berlin Lokalanzeiger said approximately 1,000 Catholic lay brothers, as well as many priests, were under arrest.

The outburst was touched off by the sentencing to prison yesterday of three Catholic monks accused of immorality and three Catholic chaplains charged with trying to organize a Catholic-Communist front against the Nazis. There had been previous Catholic immorality convictions.

SAYS COAST RAIDS WERE BIG ORDEALS

German Naval Officer Tells Of Incidents In War's Night Attacks

FOLKESTONE, England, April 29 (CP)—Canadians who experienced the nocturnal bombardments of the southeastern coast of England by German naval units during the war, can rest assured it was also a terrifying ordeal for the raiders.

Twenty years after the shelling of such exposed towns as Folkestone, Dover and Ramsgate, Dr. Karl Dreyer, former lieutenant on the German destroyer V-47, visited these shores the other day and told about the night raids.

"We had our base with the rest of the flotilla on the Flanders coast," he said. "We always came out at night and had to be back again under the cover of our own guns before daylight.

"You had a barrier of light in the channel and our ships were finding it very difficult to break through. I remember one night when we broke through but could find nothing to guide us. Then we saw the sparks from the overhead wires of a tramcar and they gave us something to aim at.

"Returning to our base, we encountered some English cruisers in the fog. They were carrying much heavier guns than we were and as we ran for our base they pelted us with shells, none of which, however, disabled our ships. The English ships in turn were forced to turn about when they came within range of our coast guns."

"I was on the leading destroyer of a flotilla of 11 ships. Suddenly there was a sudden, dead stop. We had run on a sandbar. We warned the others, but required 20 minutes to free ourselves and always expecting British warships to show up."

Final decision as to inquest, it was said would be made by Crown Attorney T. J. Rigney and the coroner.

Charlie Clarke Engaged As Cheesemaker At Annual Spring Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ELDORADO, April 29.—The annual spring meeting of the patrons of Eldorado Cheese Company was held in the cheese factory on Monday evening with the majority of patrons present. The meeting was called for the purpose of selling milk routes and transacting general business. It was decided to start the factory on May 10 with Charlie Clarke as cheesemaker. Gerald Blackburn has the Eldorado route, Ed Blakely the Bannockburn route and Leonard Blackburn and Cecil Blackburn the side roads. All milk cans are to be brought to the factory prior to the starting date for inspection and repaired if needed.

Mission Band.

The second meeting of the new Mission band "Little Builders" under the leadership of Mrs. Arthur McCreary was held as Mrs. McCreary's home with fourteen members present. The Bible lesson was read by Audrey Carment. Miss M. Mutton read the worship story and Mrs. McCreary conducted a business period. Nine membership fees were paid. Ruth Chambers read the story of the "Good Samaritan" and Velma Carmen gave a reading. The study book talk was taken by Mrs. McCreary.

BEAUTY AND BRAINS

Hollywood Film Producers Has No Call for Old Type 'Show Girl'

HOLLYWOOD, April 29 (AP) — Brains plus beauty became the goal to-day of a talent search by Buddy Desylva, tunesmith and film producer, for a new musical.

He ordered Scout Lucille Ryman to make the rounds of girls' schools, colleges and co-educational universities.

"Get 'em with a high I.Q." he said. "We want beauty, but refined, not the bleached, mascaraed type usually associated with the phrase 'show girl'."

GLAMIS TO FETE CORONATION DAY

Scottish Home Of Queen Will Celebrate Crowning In Own Way

EDINBURGH, April 29—(CP) — What of Glamis Castle, Scottish home of Queen Elizabeth, and the villagers of Glamis on Coronation Day? They have not been forgotten in preparations.

Indeed, it was in this village that the present King was initiated by the former village blacksmith and postman as a freemason. In the Masonic Hall there a caddy of tea, with pictures of their Majesties stamped on it, will be given to old ladies of the village, with tobacco for the old men—children over six will receive a souvenir silver spoon.

A dance in the Masonic Hall and a bonfire on Hunter's Hill will be part of celebration for the daughter of Glamis crowned as a Queen.

What Did He Mean?

George Harris, described as the National secretary of the Ontario Unemployed Federation, was in town on Sunday and he made a speech to a gathering of local unemployed. Much of what he said needs no comment but he is reported as having given utterance to one statement that had an unpleasant sound when he told his hearers that Premier Hepburn would find when the organization of the unemployed was completed in Ontario a situation on his hands that would be much worse than he had encountered in the Oshawa strike. We do not believe that kind of talk would make much of an impression on the majority of the Peterborough folk who are still in the ranks of the unemployed and we are still more certain that it will not accomplish any useful purpose in the interest of the jobless anywhere.

Most of our citizens who have had to be helped out of the public purse because the economic situation left them without incomes are level-headed enough to know that there is nothing to be gained by voicing wild threats. They know that their position is different to that of a body of workers who have the strike weapon in their armoury to bolster up their demands for concessions. The unemployed unhappily are not producers and therefore they are not so situated that they can walk out and tie up an industry. Political action of course is available to them but that can be asserted to full effect only at election times and that is a slow process. Then what did the National secretary mean by his threat of Sunday? It seems to us that he either said too much or said too little.

Passing the Buck

The city council of Toronto after accusing the Ontario government of passing the buck by delegating to municipalities the power of regulating the closing hours of beverage rooms is now proposing to repeat the process on its own account by calling upon the electors to decide the question at a plebiscite. Consistency is evidently not a stable virtue so far as the Toronto civic government is concerned.

We are, however, inclined to agree with them in their contention that the government which placed beverage rooms all over the province without asking for the consent of the municipal authorities should do their own regulating. It was the Ontario administration that established the places and the responsibility of deciding hours of sale and of seeing that the regulations are lived up to should be upon the shoulders of the Queen's Park organization There is undoubtedly laxity in a number of instances and it is hard to see how the government can effectively dodge the blame for the existing conditions.

That does not, however, justify municipal councils for refusing to remedy the situation to some extent now that the authority to do so has been passed on to them. They have the power to reduce the hours of sale and if they are satisfied that conditions would be improved and the welfare of the majority of citizens served by such a reduction then plainly it is their duty to make use of the opportunity that has been accorded them. Up to the present a surprisingly small number—our own city is one of the few exceptions—has taken advantage of the action of the government, although we imagine that public opinion in a great many centres would favor earlier closing hours, especially on Saturday night, which even in the days of the open bar was regarded as more or less a closed season for the thirsty.

Seeing For Themselves

Lovers of Dickens will remember the system used by Schoolmaster Squeers in "Nicholas Nickleby" of combining book-learning with the more practical things of everyday life—how, for example, when a pupil in his reading came across the word "window" he was immediately set to work cleaning one. Something just as practical and much more worthily motivated is the decision of the University of Alberta to send a party of fifty-three chemical and mining engineering students to spend eleven days touring the mines of Northern Ontario.

It is not difficult to see that a project of this kind will make the participating students not only better engineers but better Canadians.

They will obtain at first hand a knowledge of the immensity of the mining industry of Canada and they will gain an insight into the work for which they are being prepared that will be much keener and more accurate than it would have been possible to obtain in the class room.

It is one thing to be taught the theory of a certain process and another and much more useful thing to see that theory actually worked out in actual practice. It is there that the Alberta students should benefit appreciably from their tour of Northern Ontario. On the other hand the mining industry should also gain from the visit of the westerners for it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that the more ambitious among the budding engineers will be spurred on by what they will see in the mining area to work all the harder to succeed in the profession to which they have devoted their lives and later on their talent and genius will undoubtedly be available for future development of Canada's great mining business.

A Reasonable Question

George Camm a Toronto motorist asked what seems to us a reasonable question when he appeared in Port Credit police court the other day. He was charged with driving too slowly on a public highway and the query he put to the magistrate was how a person could get any pleasure out of a drive in the country unless he took it easy enough to give him a chance to look at the scenery. The only answer from the court was that the pleasure of the other motorists who wanted to drive faster than the 15 mile rate at which Mr. Camm was proceeding came first and a fine of $5 was tacked onto that reply so that it would be remembered.

After all, however, it is not easy to prove that in wanting to get an adequate view of the scenery along the route this unfortunate motorist was a law-breaker in spirit. How for example can a driver whirl through the Niagara peninsula at a mile-a-minute clip and expect to get much benefit out of the beauty of Blossom week?

The other angle to the thing of course is the obvious fact that there is something a trifle paradoxical in our continuing to kill hundreds of folk every year in car accidents in which excessive speed is the most potent factor and then dragging drivers into police court and fining them because they drive too slowly. A dawdling motorist who crawls along well out into the highway so that he makes it difficult for traffic to pass is of course a menace but the man who wants to drive slowly and keeps over to the extreme right hand side of the road, surely should have some rights.

However, we would advise Mr. Camm that if he wants to make sure of seeing the scenery without running the risk of facing a court charge as a result that he had better hire a horse and buggy or better still a hay waggon. Even the most officious traffic officer could not expect him to push along at 35 miles an hour with such a vehicle.

Canada's Foreign Trade

Figures just released at Ottawa showing an increase in Canada's foreign trade during the last twelve months of more than twenty per cent over the total of the previous year gives abundant reason for rejoicing. Such a healthy growth is of tremendous importance to a country like Canada which must necessarily do a large volume of business with other countries to keep herself prosperous.

There is, however, a fly in the ointment and it is rather a troublesome one. A glance over the statistics reveals the disturbing fact that the increase noted does not spread over the entire field of Canadian exports and in fact is not to be found at all in connection with the export of agricultural products. On the contrary the figures indicate that we actually exported $4,000,000 less of farm products in March of this year than we did in the same month last year and that is not exactly good news for rural Canada because it is rather a pointed reminder that a solution for the problems besetting the Dominion's basic industry has not yet been found.

There is, however, a substantial betterment in other categories of foreign trade. Our lumbering industry as a matter of fact has offset the drop in agricultural exports by shipping out over $4,000,000 worth more last month than a year ago and the ever-increasing importance of the mining industry as a contributor to national wealth is again shown by the fact that our March exports of non-ferrous metals this year were 74 per cent higher than in the same month last year They indeed accounted for over one-quarter of the total of all our exports as against 19 per cent in March, 1936.

All in the Day's Work

In the flood crisis at Stratford the other day the Beacon-Herald of that city demonstrated once again that the majority of newspaper owners in the smaller centres recognize the fact that they are more or less a community organization who owe a certain responsibility to work for the welfare of the district in which they are located.

Monday morning the situation in Stratford was serious. The city's supply of drinking water had become contaminated as a result of the flood and the medical health department realized that general use of it in a raw state might easily cause a terrible epidemic. The problem was to sound a warning that would be heard quickly by the whole population to boil the water before drinking it, so the mayor and the medical officer of health consulted the management of the Beacon-Herald as to what could be done. They suggested that the regular afternoon edition of the paper be issued as early as possible but the Beacon-Herald heads had a better plan. They announced that they would issue an extra instead and less than two hours afterward regular carriers and a number of Boy Scouts, hastily called together, were distributing copies of the extra to every home and business place in the city carrying the warning about boiling water before drinking it. The city authorities had undertaken to bear any extra expense involved in speeding up the printing and distribution of the paper but the Beacon-Herald would have none of that—"We appreciate the spirit that prompted Mr. Henry's offer; it was a recognition of the usefulness of the newspaper," says an editorial reference. "We were very pleased to be able to help, however, and to have played a part in protecting the health of the public is sufficient recompense for this paper. Yesterday's extra was looked on in this office as part of our job—all in the day's work."

In short the Beacon-Herald lived up to the best traditions of the community newspaper—the paper that is not merely a visitor in the district but is part of the district, throwing its resources into the common pot when danger threatens or community work is to be done.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Toronto has had seventeen automobile fatalities so far this season—and that is just seventeen too many.

Four million words were given in evidence in a Quebec murder trial and they all boiled down to one: "Guilty."

A Fournier constable is charged with hitting a man with a bat. Don't the authorities know that this is the open season for baseball?

Looting has broken out in the London flood area It is a strange commentary on human nature that every disaster seems to bring out the best in some people and the worst in others.

When the C.I.O. leaders begin to stress the fact that labor has responsibilities as well as privileges faith in the power of the new union setup to endure will be increased.

Another screen star has been injured in an automobile accident. The celebrities of the motion picture world would be well advised to have some one double for them at the wheel.

President Roosevelt has nominated a Kansas man as Secretary of War. Being so far inland it might have been thought he would have more appropriately been chosen to head the navy.

The Conservative opposition in British Columbia has launched out with a new platform in which debt reduction is the principal plank. The idea is sound enough but even its warmest advocates will not claim it to be original

Fifty Federal survey parties are off to Canada's northland to spy out the country for fresh mineral discoveries. If only one group is successful the expense of the whole venture will be paid many times over.

Evidently the General Motors Corporation is not afraid that labor troubles are going to wreck the organization. The announcement is made by President Sloan of a new plant at Detroit to manufacture Diesel engines.

That is a distressing story from Sudbury district of a boy who had been shot in the leg bleeding to death because no one knew how to apply a tourniquet. The tragedy indicates the need of a more general knowledge of the fundamental principles of first aid.

It is not always impetuous youth that causes automobile accidents. In Toronto the other day a 62-year-old pedestrian was knocked down and injured by a motor car and the 60-year-old driver of the machine was arrested for criminal negligence.

Lord Tweedsmuir has pronounced Canada's military contingent to the coronation as a very fine lot and outside of the fact that there are only three privates to represent the whole array of Canadian Tommies the Governor-General is probably right.

Although the evidence showed that the driver was operating a car equipped with faulty brakes when his machine struck and killed a boy, a coroner's jury at Valdor has brought in a verdict of accidental death, adding a rider that the motorist be prosecuted for driving without a license and with inefficient brakes. The verdict speaks for itself.

SPRING FEVER

I am yearning now for a summer day
And a lonely woodland trail
That leads me to a hallowed spot
In a cool, sequestered dale
Where the whisp'ring of a lazy stream
Befits my wanton mood
And bids me shed my worldly cares
Ere I enter Nature's quietude.

I love this enchanted valley
For 'tis a mystic, magic place
Where bird-songs and echoes mingle
And zephyrs the pines embrace.
And blossoms of exquisite beauty
Perfume the very sod.
And linger with deepest reverence,
For I know that I'm near to God.

Why Wild Life Needs Guarding

(Second prize essay in the contest conducted by the Fish and Game Association and written by Winona Munro, aged 13 years, of S.S. No. 14, Belmont.)

MUCH of Canada's wealth consists of fish, fur and game but these are now rapidly decreasing in number. If our country is to retain her riches we must do our utmost to replace the fish, fur and game which is being taken from our Canadian woods and waters.

Canada's fishermen take out of sea, rivers and lakes an average of half a million tons of fish a year. As Canadian fish is of high quality it draws thousands of tourists every year. This brings much money into Canada as the tourists, not knowing the country, must hire guides, rent boats and buy ammunition and bait.

The government has now made it compulsory for tourists desiring to fish to purchase licenses. Closed seasons are enforced. At specific intervals fish spawn is put into lakes and rivers so that fish may have an opportunity to breed unmolested.

In the Canadian forests live some of the most beautiful fur-bearing animals in the world, but we are faced with a swift decline in our raw fur supply. This can be attributed by various causes, most of them man-made, and therefore avoidable. Chief among these are intensive destruction of forests, reclamation of swamp lands, back-to-the-land movements, and last, but not least, trapping out of season.

Our fur bearing animals may be protected by reforestation, by removing farmers from the backwoods, where farms are not profitable, to more suitable farm land, also by establishing national game reserves where animals may breed unmolested. Closed seasons must be strictly enforced and game wardens must keep strict watch and fine heavily all who trap without licenses or out of season.

There would be little danger of depletion of game reaching serious proportions if farmers were the only ones to go abroad with a gun, as most of their victims are economically utilized. Certain animals and birds make it possible for humans to live upon the earth for they destroy pests injurious to crops.

Game protection in this country has been influenced by three chief motives. They are: (1) To ensure sport for the future. (2) To preserve for all time natural scenery and its wild life. (3) The control of forest fires.

The Canadian government expects that every one hunting, fishing and trapping will be considerate of his country's natural wealth and do everything possible to protect and increase it.

Enforcing Laws Big Job Ahead

(From the Montreal Star)

A NUMBER of excellent suggestions in the report of the special committee of the Legislature which has been investigating the fish and game situation in this Province are, according to reports, to find their way into a bill to come before the House during the present session.

The creation of new and accessible fishing reserves to be open to the public is one of them. Thanks to past negligence—to put it that way—sport fishing with any chance of success in this Province is now contingent upon membership in some private club or on spending a lot of time and money to get into far-off areas, something the average man cannot often do. Netting on the upper St. Lawrence ought to be stopped, and everybody has known it for the last fifteen years. There is no more than the miserable remnant remaining of the once magnificent game fish of these waters, thanks to pitiless—and lawless—commercial exploitation on one hand and official neglect on the other. Abolish all netting and these waters will in time recover.

Certainly some open seasons should be changed; they are either too long or open too early. It is murder to kill small game before the young are properly matured or big game when it cannot be got out of the woods before it spoils and has to be abandoned. Of course prohibit the carrying of arms in woods between hunting seasons; the only reason they are carried is for illegal killing, anyway. If the situation requires it, by all means make this a closed year for partridge,—and see to it that they are not killed. It has been illegal to sell them here for years, as everybody has known—and they have been sold just the same. Assuredly, game wardens should be given more power, wider jurisdiction and—most important of all— the backing of the law when they have done their duty, something they have had all too seldom in the past.

The committee has put its finger on a number of very "sore spots," and if it gets its recommendations into law it will have deserved well of the Province. But the one thing it cannot do, that the Legislature itself cannot do, is the one thing that has to be done, the one thing without which all the laws that can be written are waste paper. That is the enforcement of whatever law exists. There have been good game laws in this Province for years, not as good as they might have been, but good nevertheless. The trouble has been that they were not obeyed and governments lacked the courage to see that they were.

If the present Government is more interested in politics than preservation and if the amended game laws are to be the farce the old ones were, in point of observance, let us save our money and our breath and watch the extermination of what is left of our native game and fish. Enforcement will be an unpleasant job; there is an enormous amount of larceny to make up and a number of people are going to be very much annoyed indeed. But if the Duplessis Government means business and has the courage—and it will such an enormous supply of it will be needed, after all—here is work that is worthy of it.

CORRECT!

Well, that's another milestone in my career."

Why Not Try Japan?

(By "Hank" in the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

IF John L. Lewis, chairman of the much- discussed Committee for Industrial Organization and master strike at Oshawa, is sincere in his desire to consolidate the labor forces and to improve their working and wage conditions, why does he not turn to Japan, enlisting the co-operation of Soviet Russia whose doctrines of Communism, it is claimed, have inspired many of John L.'s lieutenants, Japan should be a very fertile field for Mr. Lewis and his organization in which to crusade, being just across the Pacific ocean from the United States and Canada. We doubt if there would be very much criticism of John L. Lewis if he were to turn his attention to Japan and unquestionably he would be helping skilled labor on this continent very much if he were able to unionize Japanese workers and win for them wages and working hours more commensurate with those paid in Canada and the United States. There is no question that United States and Canadian goods are suffering from Japanese trade competition — from the importation of merchandise made in Japan at what would be many degrees less than starvation wages in this country.

We had an illustration of how cheap labor in Japan is directly affecting Canadian industry only the other day when we visited an Ontario pottery plant. The sales manager of the plant showed us an ornamental tea-pot. The cost of manufacturing that tea-pot in the Ontario plant, paying standard Canadian wages which, by the way, were increased 12½ per cent. some weeks ago, was about 60 cents, we were told. Very recently a shipment of tea-pots of similar design were imported from Japan. The cost of those Japanese tea-pots laid down in Ontario was eight cents each. With the cost of manufacturing one of those tea-pots in the Ontario plant 60 cents, one can imagine what the Japanese workers engaged in making tea-pots must receive.

Some years ago we were riding on a very crowded subway car in New York city. A raucous-voiced little huckster, lugging a huge carton, pushed his way through the subway car, calling his wares. He was selling little sets of toy furniture, made from bamboo and bits of varnished wood—four or five tiny pieces to a set and each set packed neatly in a decorated box. And he was selling those little sets of furniture at five cents each. We bought a set to satisfy our curiosity. Stamped in bold letters on the bottom of the box were the words: "Made in Japan."

Yes, Mr. Lewis could confer a real blessing on skilled labor in United States and Canada if he and his cohorts were to attempt to unionize Japan—but we imagine he and his agitators would get out of Japan much faster than they have got out of Ontario, if they ever succeeded in getting in.

Canada Must Open Her Doors.

(From the Montreal Witness.)

MR. J. F. Pouliot, M.P., claims that so far as his Temiscouata constituency is concerned, "colonization" has been carried out in a very imperfect manner. "The idea of certain organizations seemed to be to take the Montreal unemployed, put them in a basket and spill them over the countryside without rhyme or reason. The idea was not to colonize but to get rid of relief." He said that some large families placed on the land had not a single animal. In some cases their lions had died of starvation. "They were brought there under false pretences, and what we cannot understand is how the good fertile lands were passed up and these people put on rocky lots on which the lumber has either been cut by companies or destroyed by fire."

If colonization has been mismanaged, in Mr. Pouliot's constituency the chances are that similar abuses exist elsewhere. "Colonization" under proper auspices, on suitable lands and with "colonists" fit for pioneer work is theoretically a good plan for draining the "pool" of unemployment which is festering in the cities. We have heard of some "colonist" families who, with hard work, are making good under the scheme. They are, however, families where the heads of the household are of good physique and the husband at least has had some experience in farm work. According to Mr. Pouliot, a very large proportion have had no such experience. To strand such families in out-of-the-way districts must have put them in a worse plight than Robinson Crusoe. He at least was landed on a sub-tropical island where food was plentiful and he had a great store of goods in the wreck which he could draw from at the cost of a little labor and ingenuity.

Mr. Pouliot claims to be able to supply chapter and verse for his charges. If conditions are as bad as he claims, they should be remedied without delay. Investigation should be rushed and anyone guilty of knowingly placing people where their lot would be harder should be punished for cruelty to humanity. Pitch-forking people into the wilderness without due regard to supervision and aid if necessary, is a sinister way of remedying unemployment.

Mr. Pouliot was discussing from a narrowly racial and parochial point of view a question that the whole world must face sooner or later. The frightful holocaust of another world war has come so close that men today are fearfully feeling their faces hot with its flames. If it is to be staved off and beaten out, it can only be done by a new deal of equity for all underprivileged people, our own first, of course. They are our peculiar responsibility. A vast redistribution of people, and territory, or raw materials and opportunities—not only within nations, but among all the nations of the world—is immediately imperative. The people who see their commerce stifled by lack of opportunity to trade with others, the nations that are finding themselves congested by increase of population for which there is no room must be met in honest, earnest conference by the nations that have excess lands and resources. In a word, the nations as well as individuals—who control too much of this world's opportunities must be prepared to share in some way with the have-nots. It is on this principle our belief is based that Canada must open her doors to more of the hungry and underprivileged of other nations, and that doing so she will find herself owd larger life.

The Importance of Live Stock.

(From the Chatham News.)

HON. DUNCAN Marshall has seen a good deal of public life at one time and another. On retiring from the government in Alberta where for several years he held the position of minister of agriculture, he filled for a time the post of commissioner of agriculture in the civil service of the Dominion. Some years later he entered the publicity business and after a few months selling advertising, once again entered public life, this time as minister of agriculture in the Hepburn administration. Ever since returning to Ontario he has been in demand as a speaker at farm gatherings of all sorts. One sentence in an address he delivered some years ago has the literally qualities of a "text" from which many agricultural sermons might be preached: "Live stock must be the basis of agriculture."

Any every practical farmer will accept this universal dictum as true, but the subject is at least open to argument, and it ought to be discussed at farmers' clubs and other gatherings of agriculturalists in all parts of Canada. Before he left Alberta, Mr. Marshall was in a position to use the agricultural condition of that province as an object lesson to enforce the truth of his text. Alberta raises many cattle and horses on its ranches, but the practice of ranching does little to keep up the fertility of the soil. What Mr. Marshall probably means is that "mixed farming" is what the West needs, instead of the "grain growing" year after year, which has been so prevalent all over that great region.

There is no other means in agriculture more correct than this; rotation of crops is absolutely necessary to maintain the fertility of a farm, because one sort of crop takes away a certain group of constituent elements from the soil, and constant dropping of one sort inevitably tends to sterilize the very richest earth. certain kinds of vegetation must be used to prepare the soil for a succession of crops. In addition to rotation of crops, there must be some kind of fertilizer applied to the soil, and nothing else is so effective or so generally available for this purpose as barnyard manure.

For the value of manure as a fertilizer depends very much on the way in which it is treated. Manure lying exposed to the atmosphere, and liable to be deprived of its most valuable fertilizing elements by the moisture of the air is worth very little. It should be kept in pits that are water tight, and the liquid and solid manure should be retained and be ploughed in immediately after it is spread on the land. Only by a revolution in farming methods on the lines implied in Mr. Marshall's remark, can agriculture be made as productive of wealth as it ought to be. And this is true of all farming in all countries.

THOSE ANNOUNCERS.

(Letter in Ottawa Journal)

SIR—It seems too bad that the Canadian contingent to the Coronation does not include a good radio announcer.

The English announcers may be able to speak the King's English but that is only half the battle, the other half is putting some life into their descriptions.

They generally pause and then sandwich this pause with some inane remark after which the truth comes out that they really are terribly sorry but they cannot see what is taking place, then attempting some humorous remark when there is not an ounce of wit in their complete make-up.

If yesterday's broadcast of the Farr-Baer boxing match is an example of what we may expect on May 12th—well, many of the Canadians who are listening will be greatly disappointed.

E.K.D.

Ottawa, April 16, 1937.

A TOTAL LOSS

(Dale Cox, in Cleveland Plain Dealer)

DAILY Metal Trade estimates that Chrysler workers and employees in parts plants affected by the Chrysler strike lost about $12,000,000 in wages in the five weeks they were idle. Inasmuch as this strike was settled without any increase in wages, this represents a total loss to Chrysler employees. They cannot make it up through any higher rate of pay. There was no change in working conditions, neither was there any change in the collective bargaining arrangement in effect at the time the strike began.

Obviously, John L. Lewis, head of the C.I.O., would not want to settle many more strikes on that basis.

At the rate at which strikes were occurring in the first two months more wage losses would result this year than in 1934, the biggest strike year heretofore. It now seems likely that this year's strike rate may slow down so as to leave 1934 still holding the record.

IN A SPECIAL CLASS.

(Niagara Falls Review)

INCLUDED among those in receipt of relief are many men no longer able to work because of age and infirmity or both. Many of these men never again will be able to support themselves and, in many cases, they have no relatives in position to support them. The time has come when special provision must be made for this class, by extension of the old age pension provisions or by some other means. They are numbered among the unemployed although they rightly do not belong there. If it is considered these lists mean people capable of working.

Driving a new car, a lady halted at a gas station and was given a supply of gas and oil.

She then demanded that the car's tires should be let down and blown up again.

When the garage hand timorously asked for a reason, she replied, "It's six weeks since that air was put in; it's bound to be bad: I like fresh air in my tires."

Three Rivers Resident Found Unconscious in Car, Shot in Head.

ROCKLAND, Ont., April 29 (C. P.). — Left to die by a hold-up man who robbed him of $100 and shot him through the temple, Dominic Dulcharme, 29, Three Rivers, Que., was found slumped over the wheel of an automobile on the highway near here to-day. After medical treatment doctors said he has a chance to recover. He said he had been robbed by a man to whom he had given a lift. He was removed to hospital in Ottawa, 15 miles away, where doctors said he was not in immediate danger.

ECONOMIC PARLEY LEAD IS SOUGHT

promising signs is that Hitler, overlord of the nation which many others profess to fear, is anxious to co-operate in an economic conference. He naturally has strings on his approval, but other nations are encouraged by the fact that he is willing to participate at all.

Germany has been hard hit by the economic barriers Hull proposes to remove. She also needs raw materials badly. Numerous other countries are suffering. Alleviation of this condition may bring the much desired peace and limitation of Armaments.

FIGHT FEVERISHLY

are concerned about being able to control the water," said W. O. McGeorge, chairman of the Water Commission.

Two rows of sandbag levees were placed along the shore of the river to protect the water works plant from the flooding waters which had already eaten a way through the walls. Sandbags and pumps were used inside the plant to keep the water from the electric motors.

Winning Their Battle

"So far," said the city's water supply is safe," said Mr. Northwood in a formal written statement. "City Engineer Knesston and his staff are so far waging a winning battle to keep the flood waters out of the pumping plant. He has a large gang of men protecting the plant with a sandbag embankment. Unless the water rises another foot, or so the water supply will be saved."

Dr. Northwood added he was advising citizens to boil water. "We cannot tell at what moment the river water may mix with the safe supply of water, and it would be safer for people to boil all water used for drinking," he said. Citizens were also advised to fill bath tubs and other containers with water to have a reserve on hand in the event the plant service is discontinued.

"Sewers are backing up into homes and other buildings," said Dr. Northwood. "We have taken no action in this as for there is nothing really we can do until the River subsides and allows the refuse to be cleaned away. I do not know at present whether inoculations against typhoid fever will be necessary."

Four schools were closed to-day, releasing 2,600 school children who were among the most interested of the thousands of spectators who gathered at vantage points on bridges and shores to watch the rising river.

Collegiate Shuts

The collegiate was closed because sanitary sewers were backing up into the basement, the vocational school was closed because it is surrounded and children might be marooned later in the day if the flood continues to rise, McKeough public school was closed because of lack of heating facilities and Central public school closed because many of the students there live on the far side of the flooded McGregor Creek which has closed off all traffic leading south from the city to number three highway.

River Up 36 Feet.

The river here continued to rise three inches an hour and was estimated to have risen more than 36 feet. "We'll be all right here as the waterworks plant is for a rise of another foot or so," said Thomas Kingston, city manager and superintendent of the waterworks plant.

"The river was rising fairly fast at Kent Bridge, about 13 miles east of here, but two and one-half hours ago its rise started to be very slow. They expected there at 10 o'clock it would reach its height within an hour."

Easing At Thamesville.

Reeve W. McKenzie of Thamesville, said over the long-distance telephone the river there had gone down four inches since midnight. "It is continuing to drop about three-quarters of an inch an hour," he said. "There has been no privation here, no suffering and the morale of the people is high despite the damage caused. There is no shortage of food, although there is a shortage of milk. We appealed to the London Red Cross for aid and it is sending an official here by motor car. We will meet him with a boat at Number 21 highway. Officials at Chatham General Hospital endeavored to keep the flood waters out of the basement so as to keep heat on in the building. The basement is where the boilers are 18 about 14 feet under the level of the river," said H. E. Grosch, chairman of the board. "We have used sandbags all around the boilers, we have some small pumps in operation and we have a large pump coming for use to keep the boilers going."

Must Have Warm Operating Room.

"We have to keep those boilers going so we can have a warm operating room in the event of emergency operation cases. In case we do fail to keep the boilers dry, I have made arrangements with the Hydro to have priority on the use of power for electric heaters."

Two families who had refused the aid of the fire department last night to evacuate them from the flooding Thames street home were taken out to-day. They lived in an upstairs apartment rented by Orval Keane, and the reason was made when firemen fastened a large boat to a fire truck with ropes, and then helped a man in the boat which was towed to higher ground. One of the two men rescued was ill.

Although trading was not particularly heavy prices recovered fractional losses after the opening and mounted two cents above the previous close.

Exporters were credited with purchase of nearly 1,000,000 bushels but grain observers said less than half of this appeared to be actual export business. Later, prices settled to around a cent above the previous close when a reversal of the past two day's spreading operations took place.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 29 C.P.). — Reports Canadian wheat for mixing purposes will be in greater demand and purchase of one cargo by Scottish interests indicated buying on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. The prices rallied in late trading to wipe out almost four-cent losses and closed ¾ cent lower to ¾ cent higher. Favorable buying followed the bullish trend of corn prices in Chicago.

Brokers unloaded holdings at the opening in sympathy with weakness at Liverpool and Buenos Aires, as well as lower security markets. Declines to almost four cents in May were noted on stop-loss sales of 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat in store at Antwerp and Rotterdam steadied prices.

Later spreading operations involving purchases of May and October against sales at Chicago and scattered speculation buying pushed prices up to the previous close.

Rye trading completely ignored the earlier trend of wheat, and prices with water over their knees," Robinson said. "They were motionless. Little or no activity could be seen in any direction, except where lone farmers were trudging in knee boots to view the carcasses.

"One man could be seen walking on No. 7 highway at Louisville, a lead rope over his shoulder with a horse attached. Where he was going was open to question. Surrounding him for at least a mile was more water. Ducks and geese from barnyards were swimming aimlessly. In a score of places livestock could be seen perched precariously upon straw stacks, completely surrounded by water.

"If the situation had any humor it was in the sight of one fat pig, buckled upon a small rise of ground perhaps dry, but no larger than its own fat body.

Up and down the provincial highways are cars and trucks abandoned yesterday when tramped between low spots in the road. Farmers in boats are attempting to give assistance to owners of these machines."

Robinson told of seeing a golf course nearly two miles from the river almost completely inundated. Only tops of bunkers were evident.

MAN easily underestimates the judgment and experience that he used to reach his present place in life. With most of the battle behind him, the details of his property — stocks, bonds, insurance, business — have become so familiar to him that he may seem his heirs will be able to readily give his estate the same careful handling. Visitor Sees Ravages of Flood

Mrs. John Anderson of Sherbrooke street, who went to London last week for the Presbyterian W.M.S. convention, and, returning by way of Woodstock, was detained there owing to flood washouts on railways, returned home on Wednesday evening after an exciting experience.

In Woodstock, the pond in the Southside Park and the Waterworks on the 12th concession combined to flood the outskirts and the roads for about three blocks from ditch to ditch. Trucks with water up to the headlights made trips on an uncertain highway from Beechville to Woodstock. Roads and footbridges were washed away, houses and stores were flooded, all a total loss to belongings and stock. Only the east road from Woodstock remained open. People dug out candles lest the power-houses should be affected by the waters, rising steadily up to Wednesday afternoon. There was no snow nor ice, just a torrential downpour of rain. By yesterday afternoon, the washed-out areas on the railway track east of Woodstock were filled in and the train was enabled to proceed cautiously to Embro, where most of the danger ceased.

Coronets To Keep British Peeresses Up All Night Saving Their Coiffures

New York, April 28. (AP)—MODERN hair dressing methods have caused Mrs. Stanley Evans, official designer of model robes for peeresses at the British coronation, more trouble than anything else, she said in a broadcast from London.

The coronets provide the greatest difficulty of the whole thing, she said last night.

When the peeresses enter the Abbey they wear on their heads their tiaras only," said Mrs. Evans, appointed by the Duke of Norfolk.

"When the Queen is crowned by the Archbishop of Canterbury, each peeress puts on her coronet. When coronets were first designed, hairdressing was quite another matter, and they had hair to which they could be affixed, but alas, shingled heads are far from suitable."

Mrs. Evans said the peeresses, because the court's hairdressers would not have time to attend them all in the morning before the ceremony, would get their locks arranged the day before and sit up all night so as not to disturb the effect.

Home and School Association News

KING EDWARD SCHOOL.

Charles Shaw was guest speaker at the meeting on Monday evening of the King Edward Home and School Association, with the president, Mrs. E. H. Hubel, in the chair, and a good attendance. The meeting was held in the kindergarten room.

The report of the Easter-week convention in Toronto was read by Mrs. S. Gillespie.

An interesting outline of various aspects of child and educational life was provided by Mr. Shaw, in his talk on the Home, the School, and the Community.

The musical program included tap dancing and singing by Shirley Pizzimmona, who also played accompaniments for her songs, on the Hawaiian guitar and a reading by Glenn Hagerman.

The attendance picture went to D. Crawford's room. It was decided to hold a Coronation tea during the first week in May.

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL
"Wings of the Morning"

This picture gives you a new star and a first-hand screening of the famous Derby race at Epsom Downs, and personal close-ups of such famous characters as John McCormack and Steve Donoghue. It gives you plenty also in the way of beautiful Irish scenery. And the picture is all in Technicolor, which makes it alluring from start to finish. It was filmed mainly in England by an English-born producer from America, Bob Kane, for the Twentieth-Century Fox Company.

Annabella, as this new French star calls herself, is the Mirya of the story, with a mixture of gypsy-English-Spanish blood in her pretty form. Her real name is Anne Charpentier, and she has appeared in a number of French films. This is her first appearance for the American screen.

The story is a bit involved at first but straightens itself out later. A wandering gypsy band, with a king and all at the head, meet up with a romancing peer, Lord Clontarf, who marries the king's daughter and then is killed in an accident on the hunting field. It is the granddaughter of this woman who later becomes the heroine of the tale.

The scenes are extraordinarily interesting. Here is the famous English jockey, Steve Donoghue, riding a thoroughbred to victory in the Derby, where the nobility rubs elbows with common folk and the king of the costers, with all his pearly buttons a-gleam, and the gypsy caravan, entrance the crowd. Here also is John McCormack, singing "Believe Me if all Those Endearing Young Charms," and "Killarney," in his golden voice.

Henry Fonda is Kerry, the young Canadian horseman, and there is a smart supporting cast for a beautiful and charming production, not to forget the gay little dog and the big horse, "Wings of the Morning."

Straightest Back At Capital Parties Is That Of Mrs. J. B. Harriman, Minister To Norway

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—The straightest back around the United States capital—whether at a tea party or a political powwow—usually is that of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, new United States Minister to Norway.

At 68 the tall and stately veteran of a dozen Democratic campaigns still reflects the training of her British army officer father. As a child, she had to walk with a book on her head for 30 minutes a day.

In 30 years of social, civic, and political activity, Florence Jaffray Harriman has not forgotten how to hold up her head—gray and bobbed she still rides. She plays a good game of golf. She goes fishing.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta.

PERSEVERENCE, dear my lord,
Keeps honour bright: to have done is to hang Quite out of fashion, like a rusty mail
In monumental mockery.
—Shakespeare.

Dear Friends:

Do you rely more on what you have done to impress people, or do you persevere in going ahead? After all, you mustn't let the by-gones be by-gones, but you don't have to be asked to live on last week's dinner, and that is what you try to do when you ask to be judged by what you did last year, or twenty years ago.

It is what you do every day till you die that counts, for it could happen that something you leave undone now could spoil all your achievements of the past, and yet you hear so many say, "I used to do this or that," and expect a great deal of credit for it, instead of doing something they could get credit for now.

If you fought a battle last year and won, what good is that to you if you fight the same battle this year and lose, unless to show you that what you did once you can do again? And yet some want to retire from the battle of life after a few light skirmishes.

They don't seem to realise that they are like an empty shell when they do that, and that life is a succession of battles from the cradle to the grave. If you conquer your temper once, then let it run loose forever after, you never really won at all.

Shakespeare says again in Macbeth:

Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow,
Creeps in this petty pace from day to day.
To the last syllable of recorded time;
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way to dusty death.

But he who lives well, learns to die well too, and no one can ever convince me that all this struggle is all there is to it, else it would seem so senseless. Most of us spend all our waking hours trying to get enough money to live. We work, and meet others who work, day after day, year after year, doing good things, doing bad ones too, laughing a bit, crying a bit, and all the time our characters are being moulded by the way we live.

Happiness? How many of us have it but we can get a deep content in the work of our hands, or by the way we help another, or in saying no when it looks pleasant to say yes.

We can build ourselves up and encourage some other by doing our job as well as we are able, and if we hate the thought of dropping off and letting someone else have our place, we must remember that someone had to drop out so that we got our place.

So that, when we come to the end of the road, it will not be dusty death, but glorious life we shall meet up with, because we have fitted ourselves to hardly deserve it. Some have the idea that we are born, live, die, and if we have not fulfilled what we were put on the earth to do we keep coming back until we have done it. A form of reincarnation, but personally I would rather have resurrection.

I'll hate to think that I was such a sloven at living, that I had fallen down on this job so badly that I had to be sent back and back again until I did it right. And living means right where you are just now, and "whatever your hands find to do, do it with all thy might." It means the work of your hands, the speech of your mouth, the praise of your Maker, the gratitude you should give, all the little things that go towards living and not merely existing, or trying to get all you can without giving anything back.

And remember what Longfellow says:

Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Mrs. E. D. O'Connor Is Chosen President—Finances In Fine Shape

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 29. — The annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in the Separate School on Tuesday evening, with a good attendance.

The annual presidential report was given by Mrs. E. D. O'Connor, after which Mrs. C. A. McWilliams, treasurer, gave the financial report, which was very satisfactory.

President, Mrs. E. D. O'Connor; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. P. Mannion; and vice-president, Mrs. R. Johnson; secretary, Miss M. McCarthy; treasurer, Mrs. C. A. McWilliams; Councillors, Mesdames R. J. Mooney, Don Shannon, L. P. Hughes, and J. Brady.

Discussions on the date of monthly meetings and on representation at the convention at Kingston in June next took place. It was decided to donate a cash award to the boy or girl of the parish who obtains highest standing in the forthcoming entrance examinations.

Miss Dorena Gehan gave a humorous reading, "Housewife Inc." Miss Rita Shannon followed with reading of a poem "Bridge." A program of impromptu speeches arranged by Margaret O'Connor proved amusing.

The program closed with a brief address by Rev. Father G. T. Martin.

Prince Louis Now 81, Tells Of Twelve Years On Stage—Says Others Alive

COLLINS, N.Y., April 29.—(AP)—Prince Louis 16-day offered his 42 inches, his 70 pounds and stories about 12 years in the theatre as denial that death has removed all members of the gay ninety American Lilliputian Opera Company.

Accounts of the death of Elsa Nestle at Fort Wayne, Ind., described her as the last living member of the Midget Opera Company which headlined road shows back before 1900. She was buried yesterday.

"No, there are still some members of the company left," Prince Louis said to-day. "I think I am the oldest one."

Prince Louis said he was 21 years old, only 33 inches high and weighed but 33 pounds when he joined the company after the leading lady spotted him in an audience.

"I was with the company 12 years and then I started out on my own with a female impersonator in the act."

NO MORE PILES

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief.

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in his professional life made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our promise to return your money, if just one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. HAND-SHAKING QUESTION

New Code of Behavior Runs Into Snag in China.

NANKING, April 29 (C.P.)—The Chinese National Government's Ministry of the Interior, busily planning a new code of behavior for the nation, hit a snag when it considered hand-shaking.

For 3,000 years Chinese have shaken their own hands as a greeting. Sharp differences of opinion exist as to whether persons of opposite sex should ever, under any circumstances, shake hands.

100 FAMILIES FLEE HOMES

turbulently across roadways and farm lands.

Number two highway to London almost parallels the Thames river shore, and the roadways and adjacent farms were flooded to several feet when drains intended to empty into the river were backed up by the height of the normally quiet stream, now more than one quarter mile across.

Store Cellars Full.

Basements of downtown stores were flooded almost to street level but merchants had been warned yesterday of the flood danger and had removed most of their merchandise and supplies to higher levels. Homes near the river were flooded in the lower floors, and hundreds reported flooded cellars.

Emergency calls were received all during the night from Louisville area. Practically all residents there were marooned in their homes.

Similar reports were made from nearby Northwood, about 10 miles east. Steven Read telephoned from Louisville at four a.m. that he and his neighbors were completely isolated.

"After the flood has passed Chatham there will be little danger of trouble west of here," said W. O. McGeorge, chairman of the Chatham Water Commission. "There are lots of flats adjoining the river east of here but they are mostly farm land with few houses near the river. Unless there is a strong west wind backing up the river from entering St. Clair Lake, there is little chance of widespread trouble.

500 CROWD HOTEL AND OPERA HOUSE

Residents in the low-lying parts of the village were first to leave their homes. The muddy waters swirled into the main street and business came to a halt when stores were flooded. Some autos were abandoned when caught in the lower part of the village by the sudden rising water. The machines were submerged.

Hugh Campbell, proprietor of the Tecumseh House, threw open his hotel to villagers. Most of those carried there were women and children. Campbell said he anticipated no immediate food shortage. Men could be sent by boat to the nearby villages to bring in supplies.

London Begins Survey.

Up river at London, largest city on the Thames and hardest hit by the river's rampage, hundreds of citizens were still housed in the Armouries and Red Cross shelters while authorities placed the flood damage at $3,000,000 and set about the work of rehabilitation.

Residents of West London were told by civic officials not to return to their homes until medical officers have inspected each house and pronounced it fit for occupancy. The flood left a residue of disease carrying mud that might result in an outbreak. Refugees were inoculated against typhoid.

It will be weeks before many of the homes can be occupied. Some were undermined by the rushing water and others were damaged so badly much work will be necessary to put them in shape.

THINKS CHILDREN LIKE DISCIPLINE

Parents Admired Who Take Decided Stand Expert Believes

BOSTON, April 29.—(CP).—Dr. W. Linwood Chase, well known educationist, lecturer and author, thinks children like discipline. "They like the security that comes from parents who take responsibility and make demands upon them. They may object vigorously at the time, and vociferously, but they like parents who take decided stands," he said.

Dr. Chase has little patience with the kind of schooling that sugar-coats or the kind of discipline that countenances unwise freedom for the child. He thinks that the boy must then suffer the inevitable consequences of such treatment.

If a child's behavior irritates an adult, it may only be the symptom of a real conflict that the child himself is engaged in when he tries to do what is expected of him. Until this conflict is understood, little can be accomplished in setting the child on the path of adjustment to things about him.

number of lines cannot be successfully duplicated here for evident reasons. The fact of being apparently unable to reconcile these differences has led to failure and dissatisfaction among numbers who were encouraged, to believe Canada was an El Dorado which showered wealth on all comers.

"The Hornby plan is well worth going into...." commented one Annapolis Valley newspaper editorially.

Reduce Varicose or Swollen Veins

This Safe Easy Way Proves It At Small Cost.

Swollen veins may become dangerous and sometimes break. Before resorting to operations or injections sufferers are advised to get an original bottle of Emerald Oil at McDermid & Jury or any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once with this healing oil. A small bottle will last a long time because it is very concentrated and a little goes a very long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush or finger tips as directed until the swelling is reduced. So effective is Emerald Oil that it is highly useful in reducing troublesome ankle swellings due to strain and hastens their disappearance.

OVERLOADED CAR LEADS TO ARREST

Police Become Suspicious And Police Court Case Follows

HAMILTON, Ont., April 29 (CP) — An overloaded car aroused suspicion of police yesterday afternoon and led to a charge of receiving stolen property preferred in court today against Gerald Gilbert. Gilbert pleaded guilty to the charge of receiving and was remanded one week for sentence.

Halting the car driven by Gilbert to check up, officers discovered the rear piled high with railway fishplates, in all about 1,200 pounds of metal. With Gilbert was another man.

Questioned, the men told of having bought the fish-plates from a farmer near Delhi. They said they had noticed them piled in a fence corner near the road, and had made enquiries regarding their purchases. The farmer had sold the fishplates to them for $3, they said.

Not satisfied, the city officers took the men to provincial police headquarters here, and later a charge of receiving property stolen from the Michigan Central Railway was preferred against Gilbert.

VENDORS UNABLE TO MAKE OUTLAY

Cannot Fully Comply With The Requirements Of Provincial Health Act

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 29. — The Board of Health met on Wednesday afternoon in the office of Dr. Joseph Holderoft, M.O.H., with Reeve Ernest Seeney in the chair.

The usual spring notice to the citizens, requesting the placing of all properties in a sanitary condition before Thursday, May 20, was ordered placed in this week's edition of the Havelock Standard.

An outline of the different duties of the Sanitary Inspector as prepared by Dr. Holdcroft and secretary E. B. Puffer was brought before the board for approval and a copy of these given to William Alkens.

A signed statement was received by the board from three local milkmen, in which it was explained that an expenditure of at least $2,000 would be required to fully comply with the requirements of the Provincial Health Act, and that if such requirements were enforced they could not possibly continue to deliver milk to the citizens of Havelock.

On the motion of Wing and Seeney, it was decided that no action be taken at present, but that the Medical Officer of Health shall see that conditions are made as sanitary as possible.

The secretary was instructed to inform the School oBards that it has been reported a number of pupils have been attending school with a contagious skin disease, and that the teachers must see that such pupils should not attend school until they have received a certificate from the Medical Health Officer.

Fox Trot Breaks Up Garden Of Eden For Arizona's Polygamy Cultists

Short Creek, Ariz., April 28 (AP) THE fox trot was the serpent in-day in the Short Creek polygamy cult's troubled "Garden of Eden."

Failure to rebuff the "temptation" split the ranks, deposed a leader and raised a threat of secession.

Admission of the fox trot, along with the waltz, to this sedate little settlement's occasional social gatherings broke up the cult into three groups.

For years the only dances permitted at Short Creek have been the square dance, quadrille, Virginia Reel and Scottische. But modern ideas seeped in.

Elders looked on in horror as young men and girls danced publicly the steps they had practiced in secret. Resentment mounted against Edmund Barlow, new communal leader. The high priesthood of the cult gathered quickly, denounced Edmund and stripped him of power.

John Y. Barlow, brother of Edmund, announced he would lead a group of outraged elders and their families to a farm near Harmony, Utah, to establish a new colony untainted by worldly practices.

FAREWELL DINNER IS GIVEN MANAGER BY BELL EMPLOYEES

Presentation Made To H. H. P. Johnston By Associates In Peterborough

CERTIFICATES PRESENTED

On the eve of his removal to Toronto general office as sales methods supervisor, H. H. P. Johnston was on Wednesday evening tendered a complimentary dinner and presentation of an electric razor by his associates of the commercial, plant and construction departments of the Bell Telephone Company, Harold McClelland, chief clerk in the district office here, presided at the function, which was held at Empress Hotel.

Mr. Johnston, who has almost completed eight years' service as district manager, is being succeeded by C. B. Shaver, who is coming here from the general offices of the company at Toronto.

Responding to the presentation made on behalf of the gathering by Percy Gray and George Jackson, Mr. Johnston voiced his gratitude not only for the splendid tribute paid to him by his colleagues, but for the co-operation and fellowship he had received during the whole period of his service in Peterborough.

Regretting the absence of his successor, Mr. Johnston bespoke for Mr. Shaver the same measure of co-operation.

Frank Boswell, traffic manager, expressed the sentiments of his department to the guest of the evening and read messages of appreciation and good wishes to Mr. Johnston from Lindsay, Cobourg, Port Hope, Campbellford, Beaverton, Brighton, as well as from the local chief operator and the district office force here. "With these expressions of goodwill I voice my own sentiments and wish you the very best," Mr. Boswell concluded.

Given Certificates.

At the outset of the program Donald Cameron, district plant superintendent, on behalf of the Ontario Safety League, presented thirteen employees of the Bell Telephone Company with certificates and medallions for safe driving. The awards presented represented an aggregate of 45 years of driving without a single accident.

Recipients of certificates and medals from the Safety League were as follows: E. Freeman, E. W. Watson, T. Sproat, S. Robinson, A. B. Pinn, H. S. Elliott, M. J. Brown, all three-year certificates and medallions, and L. F. Adlam, Dave White, J. Payne, T. E. Hall, E. W. King and M. N. Thomas, 4-year certificates and medals.

In making the awards, Mr. Cameron, a recent-comer here, said he was glad of the opportunity of joining with the men of the district in tribute to Mr. Johnston on the eve of his departure to a new appointment. He hoped Mr. Johnston and his wife would be happy in their move and that Mr. Johnston would continue to be successful in his new sphere of endeavor.

Under the able direction of H. H. "Dick" Lush, an ambitious and enjoyable program of entertainment was staged. Those taking part in the program included the following: W. T. Davidson, vocal solo, accompanied at the piano by John Marshall; D. R. Morrow, Stan Robinson and Bill Davidson, skit; George Jackson, Ernest Watson and John Haskett, skit.

In addition, Mr. Lush had three little tots on the program who were taking part in the Kiwanis "Jollies" show. The children who presented song and dance numbers were: Gloria Anthony, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Anthony, 168 Aylmer Street; Shirley Jean Garner, 7, and Kenneth Simmonds, 8.

Mr. Lush, besides acting as master of ceremonies, with the assistance of Percy Gray, gave a mystifying demonstration of tricks of legerdemain and also presented lightning charcoal sketches.

BALL PARK FLOODED

The rapid rise in the river has upset the hopes that have been entertained that the ball grounds at Riverside Park would escape the flooding that in so many years has interfered with early season training. Today the centre field portion of the park was a miniature lake and the water was close to second base. It had not risen high enough to inundate the park from the west side but a rise of another foot in the level of the Otonabee is likely to result in the ball orchard being under water almost to the entrance gate.

A STRANGE COMMENTARY

Disposing of a charge against a local resident who was fined $3 and $3 costs for permitting a dog to run at large, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., commented that in his long experience on the Bench he has observed that any case in which a dog is involved always appears to cause more concern to the parties than one in which a child is in trouble. "Usually in dog cases," he said, "people will go to the trouble of engaging counsel but often times juvenile cases will be dealt with by me in which even the parents do not bother to appear." The defendant who was penalized under a city by-law for permitting a dog to run at large this (Thursday) morning was John Lewis, Apt. B., 206 Sherbrooke street.

MOTORCYCLE DUTY FOR CONSTABLES BEING SUGGESTED

Five Applicants Will Be Called Before The Police Commission On Wednesday

TO APPOINT TWO MEN

Five candidates for posts on the Peterborough police force will be interviewed by the Police Commission at a special meeting next Wednesday evening, the Commission decided Wednesday. Two of the five will likely be selected for duty.

Appointment of the new men will indirectly enable the institution of the city's first motorcycle traffic patrol, it was indicated. A plan by which Constable Archie Menzies will be detailed to the motorcycle duty on the installation of the two new men on the force was suggested to the Commission by Police Chief Newhall.

Folders containing specifications and prices of motorcycles were perused by the Commission but no action was taken yesterday. A machine costing $600 was given consideration. It was pointed out that $600 for purchase of the vehicle was included in this year's estimates.

The Commission accepted the tender of Ed. Riley to supply fourteen new uniforms for the force at $27.50 each. The price paid for last year's summer uniforms was $25. Although four local clothiers were asked for tenders, only the two responded, Chief Newhall told the Commissioners.

Replacement of the engine in the Police Department Ford and other lesser repairs were authorized.

Poll Tax Defaulters Are Told To Join Up, Do Militia Service

Several Defaulters Plead Unemployment As Reason To Not Pay

FINED DOLLAR AND COSTS

"If you cannot get work join up and at least do some militia service", Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., told one of a number of poll tax defaulters who appeared before him on summonses this (Thursday) morning.

His remarks were addressed to Neal Harrington, a well-dressed and neatly-groomed youth who after entering a plea of not guilty to a charge of failing to pay his five dollar poll tax for the year 1936 urged that he had not been able to find employment.

He and other defendants who offered similar excuses for their failure to pay city poll taxes, were told by His Worship that unemployment is not considered as a lawful excuse.

Seven defendants were each fined $1 and $1.50 costs on entering pleas of guilty. They were: Charles Chum, P. Campanero, W. Campanero, Herbert Grisdale, Lou Gerrard, John Cullen and Thomas Martin.

Hugh Lefave, Herman Tippett, and Reg. McMillen entered written pleas of guilty but disposition of the cases against this trio was adjourned for one week.

Roy Murphy, Edgar Horton, and George W. Farrance produced certificates of Militia service. George Huott, produced a certificate of baptism showing he is not yet twenty-one years of age, and William P. Scollard claimed he was the main support of his family. Charges in each of these cases was withdrawn by City Solicitor John R. Corkery and A. S. Couper, city tax collector.

Cases Adjourned.

Adjournments of one week were secured by Charles Raney, who claimed he is the sole support of a widowed mother; by Gordon Ellis who said he was married in October last, and who sought exemption on that ground; and by Harold Wiley. All three entered pleas of not guilty to the charges.

Wiley asked the Magistrate how he could be expected to pay poll tax when he was not working. He had been 600 miles in search of work, he pleaded, and had to board himself and buy his own clothes.

"You will have to take it up with Parliament," his Worship advised him, "or else join the Militia."

Mr. Couper, who laid the informations in each case, told a reporter he wished the summonses that came before the court to-day to serve as a warning to others who have not yet paid their poll taxes for last year. He said the first batch of defaulters was selected from each ward in the city, and if the action taken does not serve as a warning, he intends to issue other summonses without any undue delay.

COUNTY FARMERS HAVE GOOD CROP UNBLENDED WHEAT

1,000 Acres Were Sown With Certified Seed In The County

BE WORTH $20,000?

A crop of unblended Fall wheat worth over $20,000 at current market prices is anticipated by Peterborough County farmers this year as the result of the move to put this County into the market as a high-quality soft wheat producer begun in 1934. One thousand acres sown with certified seed derived from the 1934 beginning are now under cultivation.

A survey of the progress made to-date in the drive, indicating that the County is now ready to cash in for the first time, has been made by Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions of the Department of Agriculture who organized the move to improve the County product.

Peterborough's Fall wheat had never won its way into exacting markets due, not to lack of quality, but by reason of blending of strains. Encouraged by the Quaker Oats Company which offers a ready local market for uniform soft wheat, fourteen farmers participated in the 1934 beginning. They sowed 123 bushels of certified seed and six bushels of registered elite on a total of 60 acres.

Seed from that beginning, harvested in the summer of 1935, was distributed locally and in the Fall of 1935, 104 farmers sowed 50 bushels of registered and 960 bushels of certified. Again last Fall, a large portion of the pure-strain harvest was used locally as seed. A total of about 1,000 acres was sown with 471 bushels of registered descendant seed and 1,665 bushels of certified. As some farmers have not reported to the Department of Agriculture, it is believed the actual acreage is well above 1,000.

Included in the 104 participants in the program in the Fall of 1935 were 42 boys of the Peterborough Winter Wheat Club who each sowed two bushels of seed provided by the Rotary Club. Each member this year has five acres under cultivation from that start.

"Our progress has been such that the rest of the Province is already looking to Peterborough County as one of the quality producers of winter wheat," Mr. Runions reported. "The program has reached the stage that, with a fair growing season, farmers will cash in this year. There will be plenty of registered seed available this Fall for other grain growers who wish to join the move."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, April 30

An eventful day and a memorable one, although not entirely as expected or planned, is read from the rather conflicting planetary aspects, with hit of some ominous or distressing experiences.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of unforeseen and sudden change, with fresh contacts, new interests and distant environs, probably with many strange persons and adventures conspicuous in the affairs.

A child born on this day may be deep, studious and contemplative, although fond of change, adventure and sturdy enterprises or unusual ambitions.

COST OF RELIEF DOWN 50 PER CENT. FROM PEAK MONTH

Costs In April $6,000 Less Than Same Month a Year Ago

402 FAMILIES GET AID

That the number on relief in Peterborough and the cost of taking care of them have been decreased by practically fifty per cent since the peak in 1933 was the encouraging statement of City Relief Officer Arthur Metheral to The Examiner today.

"Within a few weeks if conditions continue to improve as they are at present," said Mr. Metheral "we should not have an able-bodied man on the relief lists. During the first three months of this year the cost of relief was $20,000 less than for the same period last year and although we have not taken the final check for April operations we are some $6,000 down for the month as compared with last year. I imagine the report at the end of April will show that the number of families on relief here has dropped to 375."

It is interesting to compare the figures over the last five years as the relief officer's reports show them. The worst year was 1933, when March revealed 789 families with a total of 3,618 persons on relief at a cost for the month of $19,-650.77. In March, 1934, there were 701 families involving a total of 3,134 persons and a cost of $16,967.88.

By 1935 the March figures had dropped to 632 families, 2,634 persons and a relief bill of $15,826.82. The procession of lowered costs was halted in 1936 when the Government ordered an increase in the scale of relief and the total in Peterborough for March of that year rose to $17,-897.85 although the number of families dropped to 561 and the number of persons to 2,511. In March of the present year there was a pronounced decrease all around for the figures show 402 families, a total of 1,762 persons and a total cost of $12,132.74.

GARAGE OPERATORS ORGANIZE BRANCH

City And District Operators Affiliate With Ontario Association—R. H. Wilson President

The garage operators of Peterborough and district met Wednesday night in the Elite Court and organized a branch of the Garage Operators Association of Ontario.

The meeting was well representative of the trade in this district, Principal speakers were A. E. Lewis, Provincial secretary of the Association; Pat McPherson, Provincial organizer; and Ed Wadham, editor and publisher of the association publication, Garage Operator.

The speakers reviewed the purpose and progress of the association, pointing out that it is generally to improve the status and welfare of the automotive service trade in Ontario. The first big step in this direction was accomplished last year when they succeeded in bringing their trade under the Ontario Apprenticeship Act together with the right to examine and qualify all mechanics in the trade. Under this Act, mechanics are issued certificates of qualification according to their ability. These certificates must be displayed in their places of business.

Protect Motorists

It was stated that, in this way, motorists are protected from the unskilled mechanics who, the association feels, have in the past caused considerable discomfort to the motorists and to the able trade. The meeting was unanimously in favor of organizing a local branch. Much appreciation, it was felt, was due to W. P. Eastwood of the Peterborough Automotive Supply Co., for his work in arranging the meeting.

Following are the officers elected to the local and district branch for 1937; President, R. H. Wilson, Peterborough; vice-president, Garnet Cassan, Campbellford; secretary-treasurer, Ed Walker, Peterborough; directors, Sam Bell, Bridgenorth; Ross Arnold, Lindsay; G. V. Dunn, Kirkfield; Russell Johnson, Harwood; Jos. Deicher, Peterborough; Doug Davis, Lakefield; W. Farce, Norwood; W. E. Warner, Havelock; Fred Rowe, Campbellford; Harry Metkiejohn, Campbellford; H. C. EXTENSIVE PLANS ARE BEING MADE GOODWILL TOUR

Motorcade Of Approximately 100 Cars Will Be In Two Sections

SPECIAL ACCOMMODATION

For the information of the hundreds of people who are phoning or calling at the Chamber of Commerce for information regarding the goodwill tour of points in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio under auspices of The Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton District Tourist Association, the following points are stressed:

The motorcade of approximately 100 automobiles will be in two groups, one leaving from Peterborough and the other from Lindsay. The trip starts on Friday, May 21, and stops overnight at Buffalo, N.Y.

Proceeding to Pittsburgh on the day following, the motorcade will be split into two parts in the "steel" city. One part of the motorcade will proceed to Columbus and the other half to Cleveland.

The two parties will meet again at Erie on Monday, May 24, where a final dinner has been planned for those who wish to be back in this district in time for business on Tuesday morning.

For others who may wish to stay overnight, accommodation has been arranged for them to do so, while for others who may desire to come as far as Toronto that night arrangements have been made for them to put up at King Edward Hotel in the "Queen City."

Extra Passengers

To the people who have cars and who are not taking a full complement of passengers, it is pointed out there have been several enquiries from people who would like transportation on a share expense basis.

Special accommodation rates were arranged by R. W. Young, representative of the Association, in every city at which an overnight stop is to be made. Full information will be furnished by the Association if enquirers who contemplate going on the trip will state what sort of accommodation they desire, such as: single room, double room or three or more person to a room. Inquirers are also asked to state their preference as to visiting Columbus or Cleveland. Efforts will be made to arrange for each individual as far as possible in accordance with their choice.

For a party of four persons it is estimated the cost will be fifteen dollars per person. This cost includes gasoline, oil and hotel accommodations.

It has been decided to limit the number of cars taking part in the goodwill motorcade, so that the rule, "first come, first served," will apply, and early entry will mean a more choice position in the parade of cars.

Magazine Article Tells Why Poet Kipling Left N. England

Both Principals Dead, Tale Of Brothers-In-Law Quarrel Now Told

NEVER RETURNED HOME

NEW YORK, April 29 (CP)—New light is thrown on Rudyard Kipling's feud with Beatty Balestier, his brother-in-law, by Frederic P. Van de Water, writing in Harper's Magazine. It was because of this feud, Van de Water states, that Kipling left his Vermont home, where otherwise he might have lived to the end of his days.

Kipling died Jan. 18, 1936. Beatty Balestier survived his brother-in-law by only six months. Van de Water, a resident of Vermont, knew Beatty, and has talked with a number of persons who had first-hand knowledge of the quarrel.

Kipling met Wolcott Balestier, a native of Vermont, in London. They lived together and collaborated in writing "The Naulahka." It was to Wolcott Balestier that Kipling dedicated "Barrack Room Ballads." In 1891, Wolcott Balestier died of typhus.

A month later Kipling married Wolcott's older sister, Caroline Balestier. Within another month Mr. and Mrs. Kipling were welcomed to Brattleboro, Vt., by Beatty Balestier.

Across the road from Beatty's farm, in Dummerston, Vt., Kipling bought a dozen acres, a pine-shadowed knoll sloping down to the Connecticut River. There he built an extraordinary, ark-like home, christened Naulahka, where he and Mrs. Kipling, to the wonder of the countryside but in accordance with British tradition, dressed each night for dinner. Beatty was in charge of construction of the house.

Most Helpful

"Beatty was most helpful," Van de Water writes. "The brothers-in-law snowshoed and tramped and drove together. The Kiplings celebrated their first Christmas in Beatty's home."

It was in Beatty's pasture where they went to sell the horses one Sunday that Kipling conceived "The Walking Delegate." He gave Beatty one of the early "Jungle Book" manuscripts.

But Beatty was a roisterer, with "a tongue like a skinning knife," and "a mighty thirst." Van de Water says "Beatty's conduct was wilful, intemperate, definitely un-English. There was trouble over that, and Caroline Kipling, the ardent Anglican, was bitter in her reproaches. Beatty had been purchasing agent for his brother-in-law. Caroline Kipling audited and paid the bills. There was further trouble over that."

Kipling, attempting to wean Beatty from his ways, offered to support his wife and child for a year if he would go away and get a job. This offer evoked a "dazzling display of Balestier rage." Other squabbles followed.

Thus it was that on May 6, 1896, Beatty Balestier swung his team of horses across a country road. Kipling, bicycling in the other direction, fell to the ground. "See here," shouted Beatty, "I want to speak to you." Kipling, picking himself up, replied "If you have anything to say, say it to my lawyers."

This provoked a torrent of abuse from Beatty. Kipling later testified Beatty threatened to blow out his brains. Within a week Beatty was arrested on a warrant sworn by Kipling, which charged "assault with indecent and opprobrious names and epithets and threatening to kill."

This was Kipling's mistake. He cherished privacy; loathed scandal. But Beatty cared nothing for scandal. "Kipling," says Van de Water, "had a bear by the tail." Reporters arrived by the dozen for the hearings. Beatty was held in bail for the grand jury and Kipling and his wife made a precipitate departure for Europe and never returned.

Burwash Convicts Sent To Kingston

SUDBURY, Ont., April 29—(CP)—Two prisoners of Burwash Industrial Farm, Jack Smith, of Stratford, and Gordon Monahan, of Belleville, who broke from a line on their way back from the Dentist, Tuesday, were sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary today by Magistrate J. B. McKeacock. The pair, who both had records, were chased for three-quarters of a mile before guards caught them.

"It's no place to send anyone," said 22-year-old Smith, when asked why he didn't like Burwash. He had 15 months and 13 days to serve of a term for robbery with violence at Stratford.

"The work's alright. It's the way they use you," he said. "They stick their knife into you and keep twisting it around. If you're one of the rats you're alright, but if you aren't they stick you out on the bull gang."

Monahan said he had been turned down by every parole board he ever came before. He had escaped once from Mimico Reformatory.

COUNTESS KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Grand-daughter Unaware Of Accident Is Wed In England

NEW YORK, April 29—(CP)—A London copyright despatch to The New York Herald Tribune today stated:

Unaware that her grandmother, the Dowager Countess of Durham, had died after an accident, Lady Rachel Douglas-Home, younger daughter of the Earl of Home, was married here today (Tuesday) to Lord William Scott.

The Dowager Countess' death was attributed to a fracture suffered last week at an antique shop in Northumberland where she had gone to buy a wedding present for her granddaughter. She fell from a shooting stick on which she was sitting. She was 76.

A hurried consultation of the Scott and Home families took place when the Dowager Countess' death was learned of. They decided to keep it from the bride and bridegroom until after the wedding.

Among those present at the wedding were the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester. The Archbishop of Canterbury took part in the ceremony.

Lord William Walter Scott, 41, is a brother of the Duchess of Gloucester and of the Duke of Buccleuch. In 1935 he was Aide de Camp to the Governor-General of Canada. He is a Conservative member of parliament for Roxburgh and Selkir.

CLAIM ALCOHOL IS STOLEN IN BOND

Two Men Charged In Montreal With Conspiracy To Defraud

MONTREAL, April 29 (CP) — Charged with conspiring to defraud the government of $63,324 in excise duties through the illegal sale of alcohol and with conspiring to sell alcohol, Harry Wartzman, 45-year-old Toronto merchant, and Emmett Sullivan, Montreal, were arraigned before Judge Tetreau today. Both chose jury trials and preliminary hearings were fixed for tomorrow. The arrests climaxed investigation by Royal Canadian Mounted Police into the source of illicit liquor which is alleged to have been brought into Montreal from Ontario in the first six months of 1936.

Judge Tetreau set bail of $5,000 for Wartzman. Sullivan was released on $2,500 bail.

The complaint alleges the two men conspired with a George Cartier of Toronto, James Dixon of Hamilton and other unnamed persons to take liquor out of bond illegally and offer it for sale.

London House And Occupants Marooned

When the flooding Thames River swept over its embankments near the Dundas St. bridge in London, Ont., this house and its occupant were marooned by the torrent that rolled over backyard fences and into the basement and lower rooms of the structure. The owner was rescued with difficulty by boats manned by volunteer workers. 6,000 Londoners were forced from their dwellings by the raging waters and business and transportation in the Forest City was almost completely paralyzed.

WORK ON BRIDGE STARTS APRIL 30

$2,800,000 Subscribed For New Bridge To Cross The St. Lawrence

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—A cheque for $2,800,000 handed to Elton H. Miller, chairman of the Thousand Islands Bridge Authority, today climaxed a successful 10-year campaign to construct the first fixed vehicular bridge system across the St. Lawrence River between a point near Watertown, N.Y., and Ivy Lee, Ont.

Work on the project, including three bridges and intervening highways spanning the American-Canadian borders, will be started April 30, and the system is expected to be completed late in the summer of 1938.

The cheque represents proceeds of a bond issue. The system of three bridges will join Roosevelt Highway No. 12, 25 miles north of Watertown, to King's Highway No. 2, at Ivy Lee, Ont., near Kingston.

Royal And Ancient May Consider Means To Speed Up Tardy Player

LONDON, April 29—(CP)—British golfers have submitted some proposals to speed up lagging players on a crowded course, one suggestion providing for a "rover" who would have duties on the course corresponding to those of a traffic cop. The question will be brought up at the May meeting of that august body, the Royal and Ancient Golf Club.

In the preliminary report on the matter, the Association of Golf Club Secretaries suggest delays were not due to tardiness in choosing the right club but to the earnest but inefficient golfer who takes a great many strokes to each hole and moves in an indirect line. Another frequent cause of delay was the inborn and "ineradicable statelines of movement" found in so many players.

"But after all," the secretaries go on, "under the rules there is a remedy for those who are held up by the match in front which loses its place. If members would only assert their rights, in a friendly spirit, of course, they would have less cause to complain on return to the clubhouse. But unless those responsible for the irritating delays which continually take place do not mend their ways some sort of control by a ranger or other official person will become inevitable. Failing that it will behoove players, even in championships, to assert their rights and demand to pass through those who have lost their place.

King's Broadcast To Last 5 Minutes

LONDON, April 29 (C.P. Cable).—Garry Allighan, writing in The Evening Standard to-day, said final plans for the King's Coronation night broadcast were approved at Buckingham Palace conference yesterday.

It had been the original idea to allot the King 10 minutes for his speech—the time used by King George V. in his Christmas talks—but yesterday, Allighan said, it was decided the broadcast would begin at 8 p.m. (3 p.m. EDT) and finish at 8.05 p.m.

The actual speaking time, this writer declared, would not exceed four minutes, and would be preceded and followed by an impressive silence.

"There has been the impression in some quarters that the Royal broadcast is to be from a record previously made," Allighan wrote. "I am asked to correct this misapprehension. The King will be present in person before the microphone in the Regency Room of Buckingham Palace, and will be introduced by Sir John Reith, head of the British Broadcasting Corporation."

GAY HENRY GAVE HIS PLUMED HAT

And Anne Boleyn Her Little Shoes To a Courtier They Liked

LONDON, April 29—(CP) — Behind the exhibits in the Royal Treasures Coronation Exhibition, containing everything from Queen Elizabeth's mittens to a one-eyed velvet elephant toy of Prince Edward of Kent, lie many stories.

There is one that goes with the feathered hat of Henry VIII and the little slippers of Anne Boleyn. Riding one day with his young Queen and his favorite courtier, Nicholas Bristowe the King passed the manor of Ayot St. Lawrence. The favorite admired it and asked whose it was.

"It is mine," said the King, "but now it shall be yours"—and to prove the good faith of the gift gave the young man the plumed hat he wore and made the Queen take off her embroidered shoes. Ever since that day the hat and shoes have descended from father to son with the estate.

Many more of the great houses of England and Scotland have loaned their royal relics, including a red-gold curl from the head of Mary Queen of Scots, the scarlet military coat in which Queen Victoria reviewed her troops, a drop of Charles I's blood taken from the scaffold and enclosed in a crystal locket, Charles II's love letters, Queen Anne's silver tea service, Edward VII's pigskin gloves, Queen Mary's fan and Princess Alexandra of Kent's gold rattle.

LONDON, April 29 (A.P.)—The Royal Academy yesterday ordered removal of a painting from its annual exhibition because it looked too much like former King Edward VIII.

The painting, representing a crowned figure and entitled "The Lord of Creation," was declared by the artist, Oswald Moser, to be entirely symbolical.

Many who viewed it, however, believed it to represent the abdicated King.

'Gone With The Wind' Starts Court Suit

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP).—Susan Lawrence Davis of Washington, D. C., and Atlanta, Ga., and author of "Authentic History of the Ku Klux Klan, 1865-1877," filed a plagiarism suit in United States' District Court here yesterday against MacMillan Company, publishers of "Gone With the Wind."

The complaint charged Margaret Mitchell "unfairly used and appropriated material and substantial parts of the plaintiff's work" and that the Georgia woman's book is "to large extent a copy of the complainant's original work, studies and researches with slight changes made in an effort to conceal the fact of such copying."

The suit demands an accounting, the surrender of book, plates and matrices and damages of "not less than $5,000 for each infringement."

WHEAT CORNERS THING OF PAST GRAIN MEN SAY

Under Present-Day Exchange Regulations Marketing Sane And Orderly

NO HIGH-PRESSURE

WINNIPEG, April 29 — (CP)— Daring speculators of the wheat pits, who in decades past cornered the market to make million dollar profits, have passed from the North American commercial scene in the face of trading regulations and development of international grain markets.

Feats of the men who skyrocketed wheat prices by running corners on the market during the latter part of the last century and the first decade of the present will never again be duplicated, grain experts here unanimously predicted.

Corners on wheat—securing such a control over existing supply as to be able to dictate price—go back to biblical times when Joseph in Egypt established a monopoly by buying wheat outright.

But high-pressure speculation and ruthless commercial enterprise which made and lost millions of dollars in wild gambles, has given way to more orderly, saner marketing.

Possibility of establishing a corner came with the speculative market and the practice of short selling. The corner is run by the bulls who effect overselling of the market by securing control of local supplies and by inducing short selling. This results in there being no wheat to cover short sales and wheat for delivery can be moved by the shorts only on terms of the cornerer. Under such circumstances prices have soared up to dizzy heights and demoralized markets for months.

Grainmen here mentioned the regulation allowing only five cent fluctuations in one day's trading as the greatest modern deterrent to establishing corners and running the prices sky high. Both Chicago and Winnipeg Grain exchanges enforce this five-cent maximum.

Power To Investigate

While the Winnipeg Grain Exchange has not witnessed the speculative corner manipulations that featured Chicago trade in past years, the local trade is governed by by-laws to prevent any such action. The council of the exchange has power to investigate when there is a suggestion of undue concentration of futures and impediment to free marketing.

With grain exchanged in all countries so closely linked by cable and telegraph an international market has developed which helps frustrate attempts at corners. Should a corner be established in one country, grain would flow in from other countries to break it.

Perhaps the most famous corner in history was that engineered by Joseph Leiter, began a year-long manipulation that proved to be one of the most amazing deals in commercial history.

With a small world wheat supply, Leiter's plan was to control supply and make Europe pay his price. He sent his purchasers into the northwest to round-up all the wheat but he was opposed by elevator interests, headed by Philip Armour.

Leiter tried to establish a corner by buying more wheat than Armour could deliver and they waged a daring battle for supremacy. At one time Leiter controlled 35,000,000 bushels of cash wheat and had more than 140,000,000 bushels under option. His profits from his corner soared over the $5,000,000 mark but in the end he lost this and millions more.

James Paton tried to run another corner on the Chicago market in 1909 and wheat was pushed to $1.35 a bushel but his manipulations failed to produce the profits anticipated and the gamble fizzled out.

Since then there have been many rumors and allegations of corners operating, but a successful one has never been achieved.

Large operators in the market who have made huge profits have been numerous but their operations during the past 25 years have been curbed by trading regulations and various other restraining factors.

Arthur W. Cutten, who died last year in Chicago, held seats on both the Winnipeg and Chicago grain exchanges and was a dominant force in the market but unlike his predecessors, Hutchinson, Leiter and Paton, he never ran a recognized corner.

BRITAIN, FRANCO IN VERBAL TILT

Insurgent Chief Charges Foodships Convoyed And 3-Mile Limit Violated

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 29 (CP Cable) — Britain and General Francisco Franco have opened a long-range battle with protests over Bilbao.

Britain scored first. When three British foodships broke the Bilbao "blockade" under the shadow of H.M.S. Hood's 15-inch guns, Britain protested a Spanish Insurgent cruise had interfered with British merchant ships on the high seas.

Now it is Franco's turn. He lodged a verbal protest with the British ambassador that (1) the British foodships were convoyed by the navy and (2) that the British destroyer Firedrake entered the three-mile zone. The Hood "happened" to be in the vicinity when the Franco cruiser stopped the British foodships on the high seas. It is part of Britain's policy to give every protection possible to British ships on the high seas. Secondly, the Firedrake did not enter the three-mile zone. She merely marked the limits of the three-mile zone.

TEACHES BIRDS TO USE WINGS

Flying School Opened In England For Use Of Feathered Pets

SWITZERLAND IDEA

LONDON, April 29—(CP)—A school of flying birds has been established at Ember Farm, Thames Ditton. Planned by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals it is largely the work of Miss Margaret Bredich, who was inspired in her undertaking by similar "schools" at Neufchatel, Switzerland and also in the old Imperial gardens in Vienna.

Birds that for years have been kept in small cages are allowed to learn the freedom of their wings in this flying school, the first of its kind in the United Kingdom. It consists of a model aviary 12 feet high, 44 feet long and 24 feet wide; every kind of contrivance will be provided for exercise by the birds, shrubs, grass, swings and resting boses, so that those who have forgotten how to fly shall learn again.

ADVISES FURNACE AS REFUGE PLACE

Expert Says Avoid Sitting On Radiator With Lightning About

MONTREAL, April 29.—(CP)—The furnace is the place to go to be safe from lightening, according to K. B. McEachron, research engineer, addressing the Electrical Club here. Completely surrounded by metal, a human would be safe from a stroke of lightening and, as a rule, the only spot in the home where he or she, could be so encased would be inside the furnace, he explained.

"This may sound facetious," he said, "but it was the conclusion reached at a conference of electrical engineers." Now that automobile bodies were made of steel they too afforded safety, though, he warned, it would be unwise to get out to change a tire. The popular notion that rubber-soled shoes acted as a safeguard was unfounded for "if the lightening has enough power what does a quarter inch of rubber amount to," Mr. McEachron pointed out.

When a thunderstorm bursts the things to avoid are sitting on radiators or on the edge of a bed, he said, the point being that the human body must not be so placed as to intercept the charge in its course to conductors of electricity.

FORDS LOSE AGAIN TO THUNDERBIRDS

B. C. Collegians Tie Game In Last Few Minutes And Win 31-30 On Field Goal

VANCOUVER, April 29.—(CP)—Ubiversity of British Columbia Thunderbirds needed but one more basketball victory over Winnipeg Fords to-day to return to Pacific shores, the Canadian senior men's championship Fords wrested from Victoria Dominoes a year ago.

Vancouver's clever Collegians, whose closing rally brought 31-29 victory in the first game Tuesday, came from behind again last night to leave the score tied at the end of the regular 40 minutes and win 33-30 with a field goal in the last second of a five-minute overtime period.

Final game of the best-of-five series will be played to-morrow night with the fourth and fifth, if necessary, Saturday and Monday.

Stocky little Art Willoughby, Varsity forward, snatched victory from seeming defeat as he popped in a basket in the final second of the overtime. With Fords leading 30-29 and the timekeeper ready to call the end of the play, many of the 1,500 spectators were moving for the exits when Willoughby looped in the winning point.

Windsor led 17-16 at half-time in a game of numerous fouls and hard bumping, but Varsity was in front a minute from the end of the regulation time, only to have Tosh Mereitsky tie the score with five seconds left to play.

HUNT ADVENTURER AS SHIP DESERTER

Vanishes After Organizing English Company To Develop Ontario Gold Mine

WINDSOR, N.S., April 29. (CP)—Arthur W. Turner, adventurous Englishman, was sought by police here to-day for alleged desertion from the vessel Gypsum Empress. Turner is said to hold the key to a fabulously wealthy gold deposit in Northern Ontario.

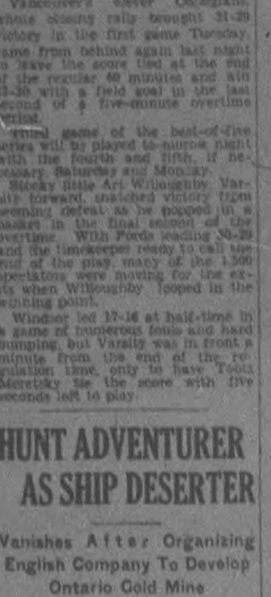
Turner returned to England last year from Ontario with the story of a rich lead of gold. He formed a syndicate with English capital and was waiting necessary papers to start development work when he started "globe trotting" again.

Thomas O'Shea, skipper of the Gypsum Empress, reported to police Turner, a member of his crew, was missing. The Queen sailed for Boston without him.

Intimate friends of Turner reported he has travelled to Australia 23 times and to New Zealand five times. He has been through the Khyber Pass in Northern India, across Africa 4,300 miles by motorcycle. He boasted he knew Lawrence of Arabia and had been jailed in Africa as a spy.

Nantes, France, will hold its annual fair July 1 to 12.

Coming Back



Big Hank Greenberg, Detroit Tigers' first baseman, slammed out a home run in the eighth inning of a game with Chicago White Sox and is shown scoring after the long drive. This should be pleasing to Manager Mickey Cochrane, who is counting on Hank to help them win the pennant.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

TO-NIGHT at 8.15 in the Y.M.C.A. th e annual "Y" Circus will commence. It's a two-hour show and will run this eve and to-morrow night. At two bits admission. Lots of athletic stunts, drills, thrills, comedy, and general entertainment. This Circus has proven popular in th e past and the one this year sounds okay, too. The gym acrobats are all set for the big affair, some of the better known performers being Mick Magee, Bill Taylor, Gord McIntyre, J. Waite, G. Cameron, Don Crowe, Tom Dilldop, G. Palmer, George Broadley, B. Hank, Nels Stanger, Jack Archibald, Al Spencely and Sons, Fred Williams, Jack Wolstenholme, Mel Hunter, S. Rennie, Bill Hogan, S. Ball, Bill Turnbull, Pete King, etc. It'll be worth seeing.

* * * * * *

LET us remind the Church Softball Leaguers again that all entries must be in by Monday evening next when the executive holds a huddle at the "Y". Quite a few have so far signified intention of entry but there are others holding back like a bashful bridegroom. They should decide this week-end and say ake or ixnay. Seniors and bantams seem more plentiful to date than the sections in between. The loop will start playing next week and run till around the end of June. Dope required may be obtained from any of the executive officers.

* * * * * *

WE are informed that Turner, Oshawa righthand hurler last year, will be with the GM-men again this season. In that case, the team will have lost but their two catchers of the championship '36 squad. Meantime, they have obtained a good catcher from Galt and our ace hitter, Tommy Foley, for the midfield. One dispatch from Oshawa says Art Legge is manager and in another it says that no manager has been named yet but it lies between Doc Rostlen and Sam Cunningham. We dimna ken. At the C.O.B.L. meeting in Belleville last Saturday, all three guys were on hand from the Motor City.

* * * * * *

THE Peter delegation to the Parks Committee the other eve, to ask for Riverside Park again, assured the Committee that the Petes would play no Sunday ball. Seems the city is against it. Well, Sunday ball would not likely go over here, anyway, though it is played a bit about the district by independent teams of the scrub variety. We've joined the gang of fellows ourself to have a Sunday game beyond the city limits often. In fact, we can see no more harm in playing baseball on Sunday than in golfing or fishing on the Sabbath. This year the O.B.A.A. has okayed it, subject of course, to city by-laws.

YE Quinte quill manipulator remarks, "Despite the fact the veteran Joe Daley, who for these many years has been mentor of baseball clubs in Kingston, holds up his hands in horror when the word 'import' is used in connection with the Ponies, we still have an inkling that the grey-thatched Daley has a couple of Clancys up his sleeve. Joe says Jack Williams will again ascend the hilltop for the Ponies in 1937, however. Pinkey Clarke, who starred for the old Bell Telephone ball club of Toronto a few years ago, is residing in Peterborough now. Pinkey still remembers the diamond battles of old with the Belleville Nats, he says. There's a good infielder for you, Cec." Yeah, we know about him—but his travelling job is liable to keep him from baseball up this way.

NO senior ball indoor workouts at the "Y" these next few nights, since the "Y" Circus is on. And no outdoor practise Saturday at Riverside Park on account of the outfield has several inches of water... O' Man Ribbah done backed up and smack in over the low bank in right field. It was sliding toward second yesterday and there looked like no pull-out at the time. So we'll have to wait for a week or so till the aqua ambles off and then pick up the sunken logs and forgotten fish around centre field before a real workout can be held. Haven't heard yet if the boys will get out on the Exhibition Grounds this week or not. Will know by to-morrow.

* * * * * *

INCLEMENT weather hasn't helped the work along fast lately at the new lacrosse field on George Street, but some of the lads are doing what they can. The box may be erected and everything okay before May 24th. At anyrate, definite progress is being made and enthusiasm among the gutted-stick exponents hasn't been so high in years. With a good grouping assured and a new field of their own, these hard-working gents are confident of a fine season. They deserve it. Meantime, a bunch of the locals will trek to Cobourg to-morrow for a group meeting to draw up the schedule. A local business session will be held in Duffus' at eight p.m. on Monday.

* * * * * *

ON Tuesday at eight in the same spot, the men's City Softball League will go into another huddle. They close entries then for sure and will clean up all plans and be ready to start play shortly. Prospective teams should be set and entries come in without further delay. This is a good league, supplying first-rate softball and drawing good crowds nightly. There should be no scarcity of players with so many minor loops building up material—good circuits like the School League, Southend Loop and Church Circuit. Ought to be six squads in, four locals and a couple from the district. Come on, youse guys; as the old saying hath it: "He who hesitates gathers no moss." Also: "A stitch in time turneth away wrath."

* * * * * *

UP and down Sports' Rialto: C.C.F. soccerites hold an open practise Saturday aft at 2.30 in King Edward Park; all welcome... Matter of intermediate softball in the Girls' Loop should come up at the next meeting... And what about the City Baseball League this summer?... Buck Newson of the Senators hurls for the measly salary of $15,000 a season... Congrats to the Kawartha Club for floodlighting their tennis courts this year... Scorecards are available here now for legitimate local league officers... All of last year's Petes are available again, plus a number of newcomers to the C.O.B.L.... Umpires wanting games in that circuit should apply to Max Swanson... All summer sports here will be started next month..... NOTE Fred Collins just phoned to say prospective bailsters should meet Saturday afternoon at 1.30 in the "Y", to have a workout there or else go to the Exhibition Grounds, via bus, depending on the weather.

Feller Hurts Arm In Debut But Fans 11 Browns

Making his 1937 major league debut in Cleveland by striking out 11 St. Louis Browns in six innings on the mound, 18-year-old Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians was removed from the game because of a torn muscle in his pitching arm, and Cleveland lost the ball game by a score of 4 to 3. Feller is pictured in action during the game, and three of his victims are shown swinging, TOP to BOTTOM, Hemsley Walkup and Knickerbocker. Feller injured his arm in the first inning.

Frick Is Told To Confine Analysis Players To His Own Baseball League

CLEVELAND, April 29—Cyril C. Slapnicka, vice-president of the Cleveland Indians, last night answered Ford Frick's statement that Bob Feller "should go to the minors" with a suggestion that Bill Terry (New York Giants' manager) should send "his entire team to the minors for a year or two."

Frick, National League president, said in Buffalo Tuesday he believed the Indians schoolboy pitcher should spend some time "in the minor leagues," that he "still is pretty wild."

"I believe it might be well for Mr. Frick to confine his analysis of players to his own league," Slapnicka said. Frick had added that he believed Feller "has a jerky delivery." Slapnicka said: "Bob demonstrated this spring on many occasions that he could take care of the Giants quite easily. Likewise, last year he demonstrated that the Cardinals needed some more minor league experience, as all he did was to set down eight out of nine Cardinal hitters in three innings on strike-outs.

"If any pitcher can win five out of eight games in less than two months in the major leagues as Bob did last year, and come in second as far as pitching effectiveness is concerned, I am of the opinion that Mr. Frick had better brush up on his player analysis."

Frick added that if Feller were to last long he "must get his body behind his throwing arm." He had said his "jerky" delivery would shorten his pitching arm's life.

Howley's Early Season Job Given Orchids By Syracuse Sport Writer

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—It's second down and 33 to go for Dizzy Dean, who promised the Cardinals 25 wins this season.... Old Ty Cobb won himself a golf tournament out on the coast the other day... Mike Jacobs is sporting a new green overcoat that positively is the last word in spring loggery.

Cleveland writers are urging the Indian Moguls to do some serious thinking about the case of Paul Deal, who, they say, was worked too hard at too early an age, and not make the same mistake with Bob Feller.

BANTAM CHAMPION HAS MADE PROTEST

Conspiracy To Ignore Canadian Boxing Federation Head Claims

MONTREAL, April 29 (C.P.). — Protest against alleged unfair treatment of Frankie Martin, Canadian bantam boxing champion, was sent to-day to the New York Athletic Commission, Frank Hogan, chairman of the Canadian Boxing and Wrestling Federation, announced.

The Federation claims Martin had a "tacit agreement" with the New York body for a title fight with Sixto Escobar, world's bantam champion. It protests approval by the Commission of a fight between Indian Quintana and Harry Jeffra to produce a "legitimate opponent" for Escobar.

Quintana has been knocked out by Escobar in one round and was soundly beaten by Martin, Hogan's letter says, and Jeffra is said to have refused to fulfil a contract to fight Martin in Montreal.

"There seems to be a conspiracy among managers to ignore Martin," Hogan says.

CINCINNATI REDS HAMMER CHICAGO FOR 10-3 VICTORY

Cubs' Pennant Chances Totter As Last Ace Hurler, French Injures Hand

DODGERS TAKE GIANTS 3-2

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Things "ain't what they used to be" at Wrigley Field. Chicago Cubs' pitching staff once the pride and envy of the big baseball leagues, has been reduced to a bunch of sure named Joe. And old man injury jinx is laughing up his sleeve.

Things were sad enough when Tex Carleton, top right-hander, turned up with a chipped elbow bone during spring training. They went from bad to worse when Curt Davis developed a sore arm.

But the bottom dropped out for Manager Charley Grimm and his pennant hopes yesterday. Larry French, the Cubs' only southpaw of any class, made a stab at a liner from the bat of Ernie Lombardi and fractured three fingers on his glove hand. Not only did the Cubs drop a 10-3 decision to Cincinnati Reds, but French took to a hospital bed alongside Carleton and Davis, and may be laid up for two months.

Of those on tap, Bill Lee has shown little or nothing to date; Roy Parmelee is anything but a Manager's dream of perfection; Charley Root has seen better days and the others are unproven youngsters.

All of which adds up to a terrific black eye for the Cubs' pennant chances. Although it's still much too early to be eliminating the mound corps of Pittsburgh Pirates, whose game with the Cards was rained out yesterday, and New York Giants, who dropped a 3-2 tilt to Van Mungo's three-hit pitching for Brooklyn, seems to leave little hope for the 1935 champions.

Look at Detroit.

But as has been proven year after year, anything can happen in baseball. For instance, Detroit Tigers had a couple of tough pitching breaks before the season opened, when their top tossers, Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges were sidelined with ailments. Two others, Roxie Lawson and Elden Auker, came through with some unlooked for class and the Detroits are now in second place in the American League.

Lawson made it two in a row yesterday with an 11-3 victory over the St. Louis Browns, aided by some timely batting by Gerry Walker. The win didn't cut New York Yankees' first place edge, however, since Lefty Gomez treated himself to a five-hitter, and the world champions chalked the Senators 6-1 in a game that sent Cecil Travis of the Nats to the bench for two weeks with a torn leg ligament.

Earl Averill banged in five runs, including a homer with the bases loaded, as Cleveland Indians walloped Chicago White Sox 7-2, with Mel Harder hitting top form with a five-hit pitching job. In the only other game on the big league front, the Phillies clubbed Danny MacFayden to the showers and tonned Boston Bees 7-4. The Athletics and Red Sox were rained out in Boston.

MAY LIMIT BAGS OF GOLF STICKS

British Players Press For New Rule On Number Of Clubs Permitted

LONDON, April 29. — (CP) — There was great tumult early in the year when the Royal and Ancient Golf Club proposed a 14-club limit on golfers. Some argued the game should be preserved for democracy while others insisted it was a free country and they could use what they liked.

It was further contended the professionals should be handicapped but the ordinary fellow had rules to spare already. The proposal for some kind of restriction comes before the general meeting of the R. and A. at St. Andrews in May and if any action is taken the revision will come into force Jan. 1, 1953.

The Association of Golf Club Secretaries has come through with a statistical report as thorough as their despised monthly accounts, proving the percentage of amateurs using more than 14 clubs is not 0.7, that 80,809 players canvassed only 563 employed the heavy armament.

Not that the secretaries chose to take sides, for their report was impersonal and devotedly loyal to the R. and A., to which they sent the statistics "for their information and without comment." In an accompanying note, however, the secretaries rather pointedly suggest that "when any important alteration of the rules under which we play is in contemplation by the ruling body, it would surely be wise for the Royal and Ancient Club to consult the Golf Unions and the Professional Golfers' Association."

But if the secretaries were restrained in their language one "W. M." writing in The Observer had more definite views. He declared: "The straight speaking of the secretaries should even penetrate the R. and A.'s granite fortress at St. Andrews. By its action, the secretaries association has effectually dealt with a lot of nonsensical talk about the evil influence of the multiple club golfer, and the supposed hardships which he inflicts upon the poor, suffering caddie.

"Never have the public been asked to swallow such rubbish, and I should not wonder if the rank and file of members of the Royal and Ancient Club do not laugh the proposal out of court."

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—More open air flight clubs will operate in New York's metropolitan area this season than ever before....St. Louis Cardinals are readying an announcement for the press on the Paul Dean situation....Charle Gelbert of the Reds is having a tussle with charley horse.

Last coast reports say Promoter Tom Gallery of Los Angeles will charge $100 tops for a benefit show next month featuring Bob Pastor and Bob Nestell .... Lee Grissom, Cincinnati southpaw, had a fight with Al Todd of Pittsburgh three days after Lee became a bridegroom ....Pie Traynor is perhaps the most superstitious manager in the majors ....He carries a suit case loaded with a dozen varieties of good luck charms around the circuit....Phil Weintraub is the first Jewish player the Cincinnatti Reds have had since Sammy Bohne was with the Rhinelanders.

Dizzy Dean only has 37 more innings to go, if he's aiming at Carl Hubbell's National League record of 46 consecutive scoreless innings pitched...King Carol (who hasn't been scored on yet himself, nor beaten in regular league play since last July) ran up his record streak in 1923....The major league mark of 56 scoreless chukkers was set by Walter Johnson in 1909....

The stampede to Samuel D. Riddle's Man-o' War colt, War Admiral, may send this little brown hoss to the Kentucky Derby post in the favorite's role....Since cake-walking to victory in Chesapeake Stakes at Havre De Grace, War Admiral's price in the future books has been cut to 5 to 1 and soon will be 4 to 1....

BOWLING TOURNEY UNDER OLD SYSTEM

Ontario Association Reverts To Old System Of Elimination

HAMILTON, Ont., April 29 (C.P.) —Ontario Lawn Bowling Association's 49th annual tournament starts here on July 7, it was announced yesterday. Wiener-Smith Trophy competition will be the first event of the tournament including changes in styles of play were made at a meeting on Tuesday night.

The tournament will be held on greens of the Roselawn Club, Gage Park, and games for the three rink trophies, the O.B.A., Buckingham, and Spectator, will all start the opening day.

Reversion to the old system of straight elimination was decided upon at the meeting. Singles start on July 9 and consist of a four-card draw of 15-end games.

LEAF YOUNGSTERS WIN 6TH IN ROW BY LACING JERSEYS

Eight To One Victory Gives Toronto Undisputed Lead Of League

BUFFALO BEATS BEARS 7-3

(By the Associated Press.)

Dan Howley's young, hustling Toronto Maple Leafs were undisputed rulers of the International Baseball League to-day, but what looked to be more important was that Howley seemed to have one-half of his pitching problem solved in the person of Woodrow Wilson Davis.

Davis, a tall, lean right-hander making his first starting assignment in the loop, held Jersey Clanis to six hits as the Leafs won their sixth straight game 8-1 yesterday, while Newark Bears were dropping their game to Buffalo 7-3.

Davis, who won 17 games and lost three for Cordele in the Georgia-Florida League last season, was seldom in trouble as he fanned six and walked only two batsmen. He allowed no runs until the eighth inning when the Little Clanis got together a double and single for their lone counter.

Six Runs in Last Three.

Meanwhile his mates, led by Tommy Heath and Jim Walsh, passed across six runs in the last three innings to clinch the contest. Heath connected for three hits, two doubles and a single, while Walsh also slammed out two doubles.

Buffalo Bisons, defending champions, put an end to the Newark five-win streak in a battle of home runs. Charlie Keller, Newark outfielder, belted for the circuit in the first inning with two Bears on base to give Newark all their runs. The Bisons more than made up for that in the seventh with John Tyler's four-baser that put the Bisons ahead. Ollie Carnegie and Ray Pepper also poled homers for the victors. Bob Kline limited the Bears to seven hits.

Robbin Maranville's Montreal Royals finally scored their first victory of the season defeating the still winless Baltimore Orioles 7-3 in the only other game of the day. The Rochester-Syracuse game was rained out.

Porter Shines

Porter provided the fielding feature of the day in the Toronto game when he made a brilliant gloved hand stab of a hard smash to deep right-centre by Catcher Madjeski in the third frame. Madjeski was first to bat in the home half of the frame and Bobby took the ball over his shoulder while in full stride.

Dan Howley inserted a pair of pinch-hitters into the pastime, both in the ninth, when the Leafs staged a three-run rally. Heath and Davis started off with singles and Madura walked. Gantenbein struck out, and Comorosky, batting for Mayo Smith against Southpaw Gilvary, walked, forcing in Heath. Petoskey also walked, Davis scoring, and Blackeny hitting for Porter, singled to right, scoring Madura, but Comorosky was thrown out at home. Walsh popped up to end the rally.

In the eighth, Smith singled with one out and stole second. Porter walked after Petoskey flied out, and Walsh scored both runners with a two-bagger to left-centre. The Giants replied in their half, with their only run of the game. With one out, Gomez hit to centre for two bases when Smith failed attempting to make a shoe-string catch. He scored on Lee's hit to the same spot.

Walsh, Heath Hit Doubles.

A walk to Madura, Gantenbein's single, on which Lee erred, and Smith's infield out gave the Leafs one run in the first, and they scored another in the fifth when Petoskey led off with a single. He went to second on Porter's sacrifice, and to third on Walsh's infield out. Don Ross pulled a surprise move to score him with a safe bunt down third. Walsh opened the seventh with a double, and was caught off the base on a quick throw by Madjeski. Ross then walked and scored on Heath's two-bagger to deep left-centre field. Frank Madura drew three passes and scored twice on them. That brings his total to seven walks in six games. His batting average is just a shade under the .300 mark.

Dan Howley intends to start John Berly against the Giants to-morrow. Berly has done some fine relief work in two games, and stopped a pair of rallies cold. Rollie Stiles, veteran southpaw, will probably get the call against Jersey City on Saturday.

Remember When—

Babe Ruth was making a name for himself as pitcher and home run hitter with Chicago White Sox. It was just 19 years ago today that the American League club refused a $100,000 offer for his services. Later going to right field, Ruth joined New York in 1920 and after 15 years with the Yankees played with Boston Braves until his retirement June 2, 1935.

TWO HEAVY HORSES, TEN PIGS six weeks old. 'Phone 976 ring 4.

THINK THIS OVER!
EGG PRICES UP (3c TO 3c ABOVE last year at this time). Feed prices down. Wheat dropped 20c in 4 days. New crop promising. Poultry Services, Ottawa, state: "With laying stock away below normal combined with reduced purchases of Baby Chicks real concern is felt over the possibility of a grave egg shortage next fall. The impression prevails that eggs will be scarce from September to January, and authorities are advising producers to raise every chick they possibly can this spring." Owing to good breeding stock and strong hatches, Hill-Crest can offer you the best Leghorn and New Hampshire Chicks we ever owned. Tell you how to raise them successfully at little higher cost than normal years —in short, start you right on the way to share in the higher poultry profits promised for the coming months. Prices reduced. Get in on the Hill-Crest kind. Write or 'Phone today. C. A. Brethen, Norwood.

CHAPTER 26

AS HIS OFFICE was flooded with light Charles took in the scene at a glance—the open safe, the open drawer of his desk, the figure in stalking and scrivester standing with a hand on the handle of the safe door. He saw the figure start and spin round.

"Lutman!" he exclaimed. "What the devil!"

Lutman gave him a genial smile.

"Good evening, Charles."

The lawyer strode quickly across the room and paused beside the desk.

"What the devil are you doing here, Lutman?"

"Signed in the wrong place, was it, Charles? That would have been quite an ingenious idea if it hadn't been so obvious that you were lying. That has always been your weakness, Charles: you never can lie without looking like a conscious-stricken schoolgirl."

"Give me back that deed, Lutman."

Lutman ignored the demand.

"I've never trusted that conscience of yours," he went on, "and since you met Jacqueline Smith it has been less reliable than ever. I've been watching you pretty closely, and your game all along has been dreadfully transparent. You've been playing for time, trying every scheme your fertile brain could invent to hang things up and postpone the marriage, hoping, no doubt, that before that swine Lutman could work his foul designs, Jacqueline might hear of the legacy. Someone, perhaps, might send her a copy of the New York Press with the whole story splashed across the front page."

Charles made a gesture of impatience.

"I'm not arguing, Lutman. I want that deed."

"First the draft agreement at Cobenall," continued Lutman, "and the yarn that it had to be registered in London. That wasn't so bad, Charles because you were the lawyer and nobody was in a position to contradict you. And then this deed was signed in the wrong place—that wasn't so good, because if a deed isn't signed in the right place the mistake is quite obvious when one examines the document. I'm not a lawyer, but you can take it from me that this deed"—he tapped the breast pocket—"is all in apple pie order. And you can take it from me that when Jim and Jacqueline are safely married it will be produced and put into effect."

"What concerns me at the moment, Lutman, is that you've stolen a document from my safe. Either you give it to me . . ."

"So that you may destroy it? That's the great idea, isn't it?" He shook his head. "Safer in my pocket, Charles—much safer."

"Either you hand it over, Lutman, or I telephone the police and have you arrested for breaking into my office."

"Oh, cut that out!" interrupted Lutman with sudden impatience. "You can't bluff me with that sort of talk. Call the police, will you? All right—call them!" He picked up the telephone receiver and held it out. "Call the police, Charles. They can take us both to the station together."

Charles made no move, and Lutman slammed the receiver back onto the hook.

"You would have known me better than to try to pull that sort of stuff. Calling the police isn't going to help you. I know it, and you know that I know it. You might have the satisfaction of charging me with safe-breaking, although, as a matter of fact, I haven't broken anything. I just opened the drawer of your desk, where I knew the safe key was kept."

"Is there anything you don't know, Lutman?"

The Colonel smiled.

"It's not a good place to keep a safe key," he added. "I'm not an expert cracksman, but it took me rather less than a minute to pick the lock of that drawer. Anyone could do it with a hairpin. But let's keep to the point."

"The point is, Lutman, that you're not leaving this office with that deed in your possession."

Lutman shook his head.

"The point is," he said, "that calling the police wouldn't help you to what you want, Charles. What you want is Jacqueline Smith." He shrugged his shoulders. "I gave you your chance, and you wouldn't take it. I offered to let you take Jim Asson's place, but you wouldn't listen to the suggestion. But if you won't take the girl on those terms, you won't have her at all."

"I can stop Asson from marrying her. And I can stop her from being swindled out of her fortune."

"But at what a price!" smiled Lutman. "I can hardly imagine Jacqueline regarding you as the ideal husband, Charles, if she knows the truth about you." His smile disappeared. "And if anything goes wrong with the scheme through your interference, she will know the truth. She'll know just what sort of a blackguard you are—that it was you who first heard of the legacy, that it was you who drew up the deed and advised her to sign it, that you were willing to let her marry Jim Asson and to take your cut of the loot. If you think you can persuade her that it was all done because you loved her, you're overestimating your powers of persuasion, Charles, and under-estimating Jacqueline's intelligence. And she will know—because I shall tell her."

Charles shook his head.

"All that cuts no ice, Lutman," he said, "because in any case I'm going to tell her myself."

Lutman glanced at him quickly.

"I think not, Charles. You're not the heroic sort."

"I'm going to tell her everything—that I agreed to the plan to swindle her, that I conspired with you and Jim Asson . . ."

"That's grand, Charles, and then she'll come into your arms, eh? I dare say she'll come to see you in the pen and fix the wedding day."

"She won't marry Jim Asson anyway."

"Oh, yes, she will."

"Not when she knows."

"She's not to know. You're not going to have the chance of telling her. Until she's safely married you won't be seeing her again. I arranged that at lunch today. Jacqueline is to retire to some quiet retreat, and the wedding is to take place—you'd like to know where, Charles, wouldn't you? But I'm the only one who knows that at present. Even Jim and Jacqueline haven't been told yet. And Mrs. Smith quite agrees that Jacqueline shouldn't see you again; she thinks you're a bad influence."

The solicitor was silent for some moments, frowning. Then his hands clenched and he faced Lutman again with a dangerous look in his eyes.

"Lutman," he said, "I don't doubt that what you've said is true. I've discovered that about you: if you say you'll do a thing you always do it."

Lutman, with a cynical smile on his lips, made a deep bow.

"You say you're going to hide Jacqueline and keep her away from all chance of hearing the truth until she's married, and I don't doubt you can do it. But she's not going to marry Jim Asson and I'll give you one more chance. Give me that deed."

Lutman turned and took a step toward the door, but Charles reached it first and planted himself with his back against it.

The Colonel raised his eyebrows.

"I'm in rather a hurry," he said. "I came by boat, you know, and I want to catch the tide."

"Cut out the talk, Lutman. I want that deed."

Lutman's eyes narrowed.

"If you're not a darned fool, Charles, you'll stand clear of that door."

The solicitor did not move.

"Jacqueline is not marrying Jim Asson," he said, "and you don't leave here until you've handed over the deed."

"For heaven's sake, stop playing the fool!" exclaimed Lutman angrily. "Jim's going to marry the girl."

"No!"

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S RED GLASS.

"Fire! Fire! Fire!"

When Uncle Wiggily heard this cry as he was hopping e—— the field one day he stopped, twinkled his pink nose and said:

"That's too bad! I wonder whose place is on fire?"

But he soon saw a crowd of animal children playing in a little dingly dell of the woods on the edge of the field. Some of his own little rabbit children were there but Uncle Wiggily saw no sign of a fire. For this he was very glad. For fire is a terrible thing and that's why children should never play with matches.

"But they don't seem to have any matches. I'm glad to notice," said Uncle Wiggily twinkling his pink nose again. "But I wonder why they are shouting about fire?"

Just then he saw Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, hopping around and holding before her eyes a piece of red glass. She and the other animal children had found pieces of colored glass and were looking through them.

Looks Fiery

"You ought to see how lovely everything looks through red glass, Unkie Wig," said Baby Bunty hopping to him. "It looks like a lovely fire on a cold Winter day. And it makes the ground seem to be blossomming with roses."

"Yes, red glass gives a lovely color even if the color goes away when you take the glass from your eyes," said Mr. Longears.

All of a sudden Jangle, the little rabbit girl whose tangles her daddy had combed out with a teasel bure, began to cry.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, everything seems so sad," said Jangle, crying more tears. "Everything is black and gloomy and the sun doesn't shine and the clouds look as if they would spill rain. Oh, dear!"

"What color glass are you looking through, Jangle?" asked her father.

She held it out to him. Then Uncle Wiggily saw that Jangle had picked up a dark piece of glass that seemed to have fallen in a fire, it was so smoky.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "That color glass is very good to look through when you want to see an eclipse of the sun, Jangle, and when you couldn't look at it through white glass or even Baby Bunty's red glass. But smoked glass isn't very good to look through if you want to be happy, Bunty, please give Jangle a bit of your lovely rose-red glass."

Laughs

"Here you are!" laughed the orphan rabbit. Soon she and Jangle were both laughing as they saw how the red glass made everything rosy they looked at.

Leaving the children playing with the colored glass, Mr. Longears hopped over the woods and through the fields. Soon he came to the kennel where an old dog gentleman lived. Uncle Wiggily knew Dr. Dog and he was going in to see him when, all of a sudden, the rabbit heard Mr. Dog whining:

"Oh, it's terrible! Oh, how sad! What an unhappy place I live in! Oh what shall I do?"

"Dear me!" thought Uncle Wiggily. "Mr. Dog is in trouble. Perhaps I can help him. I'm going to try!" So he hopped into the kennel house.

And if the clouds will drop down some dry rain for a change so the umbrella won't get all wet, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's magical change.

TECUMSEH GROUP WINS IN CONTEST

Guests Of Honor At Meeting Of Lakefield Young People's Society

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 29 — The Tecumseh Group, winners of the contest in connection with the membership campaign, were guests of honor at the meeting of the Young People's Society of Lakefield United Church, which was held on Monday evening, April 26, in the Sunday School. The meeting took the form of a social evening, with the Mohawk Group providing the program and the Hurons and Iroquois responsible for the service of refreshments.

The first portion of the meeting was spent in active games, with Rev. O. F. Kelly and Robert Spence in charge. Everyone joined in a wholesome frolic which left the participants breathless at the end of the hour. While the audience cooled off, the Mohawks presented their program, with Miss Hannah Webster, leader of the group, acting as chairman. She called first upon Earl Robinson, who gave a humorous reading. This was followed by the reading of the May edition of the society's paper, "The Sunny Sentinel," by the publications' convener; Mrs. Hopkins, then rendered an instrumental solo, after which Robert Spence amused the audience when he read some "Whoppers" from a current magazine. The program concluded with a solo, "The Sunshine of Your Smile," by Mrs. J. R. Hull.

After a second period of games, dainty refreshments were served in cafeteria style, and the party closed with the singing of "Good-Night Ladies."

TRAFFIC RESUMES IN FLOOD AREA

Ontario Motor League Details Routes Passable Between Toronto, Windsor

TORONTO, April 29. (CP)—Road conditions in the flood ravaged section of Western Ontario were described in a report from the Ontario Motor League here to-day. The report follows:

Owing to recession of flood waters in London and vicinity most of the bridges are open in the city. East of London the bridge at Ingersoll has been temporarily repaired and light traffic is passing through, entering the city on Highway No. 2. Trucks from the east and west are using No. 7 highway via Stratford, St. Marys and Elginfield.

Traffic proceeding westward to Windsor is using No. 4 highway south of London to Talbotville in order to avoid the bridge washed out at Delaware, then west on No. 3 highway through Leamington to Windsor. The Dorchester Road from Ingersoll, used as a detour into London yesterday, is badly broken due to heavy traffic.

The bridge is out at Strathroy on No. 22 highway running west of London to Sarnia. A local detour around Strathroy over the old Sarnia gravel road overcomes the difficulty.

No. 3 highway from Port Erie to St. Thomas is still impassable to Tillsonburg. In order to reach Tillsonburg traffic turns south at Ingersoll from No. 2 highway to No. 19 highway. Traffic west of Tillsonburg detours north from Tillsenburg to the 10th concession, west to Brownsville and south to No. 3 highway. A local detour is necessary at New Sarum because of a washed-out bridge.

Peace Bridge Robins Back To Penthouse

Fort Erie, Ont., April 29 (CP) THOSE Peace Bridge robins are back again—back to their penthouse at the immigration headquarters of the international span between here and Buffalo.

Two years ago the famous robins attracted attention during a futile 15-day fight to maintain a home on a steel window ledge. Peace Bridge employees thought the location too hazardous and built a wooden shelf to protect the nest.

The birds returned from their annual trip south today and unerringly found their old homestead. A new nest was started immediately upon arrival. The robins became quite tame last year after the immigration men started feeding them. They also enjoyed basking in the glare of electric lights shining through the window at night.

BULLET REMOVED FROM GIRL'S LUNG

15-Year-Old Victim Of Shooting Recovering After Difficult Operation

TORONTO, April 29—(CP)—Edna Leadingham was recovering today from one of the most difficult operations performed at the Sick Children's Hospital. Lodged deep in her right lung, a bullet was removed by Dr. E. S. Wishart with a bronchoscope yesterday. Dr. Wishart, head of the nose and lung service at the hospital, said the 15-year-old girl was "doing nicely."

Miss Leadingham was hanging out clothes at her home in Niagara Falls, Ont., April 5, when she was struck by a stray bullet from a .22 calibre rifle. Nick Kobsey and Walter Brown were charged with violating a Stamford Township bylaw by letting off fire-arms within less than 1,000 feet of a house.

Rushed to hospital here, the bullet was located in her lung and a bronchoscopic operation decided upon. The instrument was brought here from Philadelphia. Although such operations in late years have become common, difficulty was encountered because the bullet was lodged far down in the girl's lung.

TORONTO ATHLETE DIES

TORONTO, April 29 (CP)—Grace Eunice Van Horne, 21, well-known Toronto athlete, died in hospital today from complications resulting from an attack of influenza last March. Miss Van Horne was a member of the Sunnyside Ladies' Softball League.

COLLEGE TO HONOR TWO MACDONALDS

RED SPRINGS, N.C., April 29—(AP)—One hundred and sixty years after their death, the remains of two of Flora MacDonald's children will be enshrined here to-day on the campus of the college named for the Scottish heroine.

Lineal descendants of the Scottish lassie who saved "Bonnie Prince Charlie" after the disastrous defeat of his Highland supporters at Culloden will join with other prominent men and women of Scotch blood in the service that will accompany the re-interment.

The principal address will be made by Mrs. Edith Scott Mazza of New York, past president of the daughters of the American revolution and daughter of the late Col. Walter Scott, himself of Scotch ancestry.

The revolutionary war, from which the D. A. R. originated, brought tragedy to the life of Flora McDonald. She arrived in North Carolina, where thousands of other Highlanders settled in 1775. When the colonists began their war for independence, she remained loyal to the British crown. Her husband and son were made prisoners of war at the battle of Moore's Creek bridge, one of the early decisive combats of the seven years struggle, and her daughter was made a widow in the same skirmish.

Her small son and another daughter died and were buried in Richmond county before she and her husband, Allan MacDonald, returned to Scotland after a five year residence here.

DOG CATCHING IS NOW RACKET CITIZENS SAY

Protests Are Made To Finance Committee—Consideration Is Promised

CATCHER ASKS DOLLAR

Citizens Refuse And They Are Haled Before The Magistrate

Charges that dog catching is a racket in Peterborough were levelled by two prominent citizens in a representation to the Finance Committee of the City Council Thursday evening. Consideration of the matter was promised by Alderman James Hamilton, committee chairman.

Reporting he had been fined in Police Court Thursday morning on a charge of allowing his dog to run at large, Milford Hardill, 310 Frederick avenue, alleged that dog catcher Charles Holland merely saw his dog playing with some children out in front of his Frederick avenue home and, without catching the dog, demanded a dollar.

Failed To Get Dollar.

"He tried to wheedle a dollar out of my wife but he didn't get it," Mr. Hardill said. "The dog was merely playing with the kids in the street. Mr. Holland got one of the kids to say the dog bit him but I found that was without foundation. It seems to me nothing else but a racket. It amounts to him saying: I saw your dog on the street, give me a dollar."

ALBERTA MINISTER ASKED TO RESIGN

Hon. W. N. Chant, Agriculture Chief, Will Be Second Aberhart Has Ousted

EDMONTON, April 30. (CP). — Hon. W. N. Chant, Minister of Agriculture in Alberta's Social Credit government since it took office in September, 1935, said here today he had been asked for his resignation by Premier Aberhart. No official announcement was made concerning reasons for the demand for the minister's resignation and the Premier had no statement to make.

"Has the Premier asked you for your resignation," Mr. Chant was asked.

"Yes," he replied. "I have nothing further to say at the present time."

It was understood the minister had not yet sent in his resignation but he was expected to resign later in the day when he would issue a statement.

D. B. Mullen, Social Credit member for Edmonton, will be his successor, it was reported. Mr. Mullen, long active in marketing plans, has postponed a trip to the coronation. Since his election in August, 1935, Mr. Mullen has devoted considerable attention to agricultural problems.

Second One Demanded

Mr. Chant's resignation is the second requested by Premier Aberhart since the government took power. C. C. Ross was asked to resign as Minister of Lands and Mines after disagreeing with the Premier in December concerning proposed cabinet appointments. Mr. Ross vacated office, and Premier Aberhart appointed Maynard was named Minister of Municipal Affairs in charge of Relief.

Charles Cockroft, Social Credit Member for Stettler, resigned as Provincial Treasurer Jan. 31, stating he was leaving the cabinet for health and business reasons. However, last week he announced in a statement to his constituency executive he had found his position in the cabinet "intolerable." The statement also charged Premier Aberhart with errors in government policy.

Mr. Chant, member for Camrose, was born in Brampton, Ont. in 1895.

Some time before the session of the last legislature opened Feb. 25 it was reported Social Credit back benchers would make attacks upon Mr. Chant, which might result in his resignation.

Last Minute News Flashes

BASTANDER, Spain. — The government aerial bomb that sank the insurgent battleship Espana to-day went squarely into her single funnel and burst in her munitions magazine below decks, it was reported here to-night.

TORONTO. — Premier Hepburn said to-day Ontario would "take up the slack" between amount granted by the Dominion for direct relief the first four months of this year and reduced grants going into effect to-morrow. The Federal grant for direct relief in this province has been $803,250 monthly since January 1. From May 1 to July 1 it will be $600,000 monthly, the Premier said he had been informed by Labor Minister Norman Rogers.

Flood Crest Over--Chatham Escapes Lightly

Red Cross Seeking $250,000 In Funds To Help Refugees

Over $4,000,000 Damage To Homes, Highways, Railways, Bridges, Stock, Furniture

WATER DROPS FAST

500 London Factories Slow Up To Conserve Water For Drinking Purposes

TORONTO, April 30.—(CP). — Western Ontario, emerging from the muck and debris of rampaging flood waters, went ahead to-day with plans of reconstruction in the stricken towns and cities as the unruly Thames river, cause of the havoc, tumbled on to empty its swollen waters into Lake St. Clair. Danger of further flooding appeared past.

Work of rehabilitation was speeded by the Canadian Red Cross Society which issued an appeal for funds. Care of the thousands of homeless received first attention, with relief efforts concentrated in London, hardest hit centre of a widespread area along a 150-mile stretch of the Thames. Restoration of public services was hurried.

Thousands of flood-damaged homes were left behind as the Thames rushed to the lake. Scores of bridges had been swept away and miles of railway track and highway washed out. The toll of human lives was five; three men died in a train wreck and two were drowned. London's flood damage was placed at approximately $3,000,000. Loss in other flooded communities was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

The Thames swept through Chatham last night but caused comparatively little damage. There, the 16,000 residents had feared the worst as the flood swept down from London. But as the crest of the flood raced through the rich farming district it left only 10 houses seriously damaged and flooded the cellars of about 100 more.

Residents Go Up One Storey

The villages of Prairie Siding and Jeannette's Creek received the final thrust of the roaring river as it flowed on its final 25-miles course from Chatham to Lake St. Clair. Almost every house in Prairie Siding was flooded, but the 200 residents merely moved to second

HALIFAX SHOOTING TAKES TWO LIVES

Husband Dies In Hospital After Being Found Beside Dead Wife—Son Mystified

HALIFAX, April 30 (C.P.). — Albert W. Channell died in hospital early to-day, bringing to two the deaths from a midnight shooting that took the life of his wife Margaret.

Police pushed a probe into the double shooting, but with only a few incoherent statements from the couple's 16-year-old son, Donald, to work on.

Questioning of Donald, after he found the bodies in the basement of their home at Chase Corner, revealed little to police. He heard no shots or outcry from the kitchen, nor did any of the roomers in the three-storey house.

Shanghai To Open School For Brides

Shanghai, April 30. (CP) PREPARATIONS were being made to-day for construction of a "school for brides" at Kiangwan Village, a Shanghai suburb, made possible by donation of $30,000 from a wealthy Chinese woman whose name has not been revealed.

The institution will be operated by Mrs Herman C. E. Liu, a Chinese woman writer, wife of a leading Shanghai educationist, and now General Secretary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. She already has charge of two schools for former slave girls.

THREAT AUTHOR IN SMITH'S FALLS CASE IDENTIFIED

Note Signed "King Of The Flames" Believed Hoax But Charge Will Be Laid

TYPEWRITER THE CLUE

SMITHS FALLS, Ont., April 30 (CP)—Identity of the man who signed "King of the Flames" to a threatening note, part of the firebug scare which has terrorized north-end residents for a month, has been determined, it was announced here today by Edward Desjardins of Ottawa, an official of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department.

Desjardins would not reveal the name of the man who, he said, had confessed when confronted with evidence of his guilt. The man, he said, claimed the letter was intended as a hoax. Desjardins said court charges would be laid against the man.

Identity of the man was established after a painstaking investigation, during which the assistance of United States "G-men" was sought. The typewriter on which the note had been typed was of an obsolete make and the federal bureau of investigation in Washington was asked to help trace it. More than 20 typewriters in Smiths Falls were examined by the police. Desjardins said the right one was found before the F.B.I. report had been received.

While the letter was believed nothing more than a hoax, police report definite progress toward the solution of five fires believed to be incendiary, which have caused damage in excess of $6,000 in April.

WAR VETERAN FREED

81-Year-Old Boer War Fighter Refuses to be Committed to Home.

STRATFORD, Ont. April 30. — (CP).— Frank Watt, 81-year-old happy-go-lucky Boer war veteran, resumed his wanderings to-day. He was given his freedom in police court after being in jail on a charge of vagrancy for three weeks. Single and homeless, the veteran thanked the court and went on his way, saying his destination was Guelph and that he was still good for 25 miles a day.

He objected when apprehended in a Manahard bush where he was living outdoors, to being committed to a home. He had gone through tough winters in the bush and needed help from no one, he said.

Child Victims

While considerable damage has been done to property throughout western Ontario by raging flood waters, children of all ages, forced to flee their homes, are being cared for by Red Cross agencies at improvised hospitals. And much as they wish to keep awake and see what is happening, these young children obey their natural impulses, a few miles from the raging waters, and take a little sleep.

Yukon Wants Vote By People Before Territory Goes To B.C.

Council Passes Resolution Protesting Action—Sends It To Ottawa

WANT NO ANNEXATION

DAWSON, Y.T., April 30 (CP) — The Yukon Council today passed a resolution "firmly and emphatically" protesting the proposed addition of this northern territory to the Province of British Columbia.

The territorial council of three elected members, comprising the governing body of the Yukon, decided to send to the Governor-General in Council a memorial setting forth opposition to placing the territory under administration of its neighboring province.

In the first official comment on the annexation, announced by Premier Patullo last Monday as having been agreed between the province and the Federal authorities, the territorial council "respectfully pray that no action be taken to carry out the proposal without the approval of a majority of the people of the Yukon first having been given by plebiscite."

LONDON DRAINING ITS WATER SUPPLY

Officials Worried As Consumption Jumps 25 P.C. Over Normal Despite Appeals

LONDON, Ont., April 30 (C.P.)— The water shortage in this city is approaching a desperate situation, officials said to-day as the water consumption in the past 24 hours was 25 per cent. higher than normal.

Warnings and appeals for conservation have not made the slightest evident impression although some of the larger industries using water for industrial purposes to-day stopped operations following appeals from the Public Utilities Commission, at a special meeting yesterday.

Tests have been made of mains carrying the water across the river at several points and no leaks have been discovered. Services in houses affected by the flood have been disconnected to stop possible loss of the water. At noon the water in the Springbank Reservoir was falling, the level having gone down two inches in four hours.

Following the checking of leaks, waterworks officials had one other explanation to offer for the enormous increase in consumption. This was the likelihood that domestic consumers are filling every available container with water when announcements of shortage are made.

HAMILTON. — Gordon C. Nichol, Hamilton, driver of the car in which Steve Conick, Sudbury hockey star, was killed here last Saturday, was arrested to-day on a charge of manslaughter.

Fleet To Protect All Refugee Ships

London, April 30. (C.P.-Havas) — The cabinet was reported to-night to have decided to accord the protection of the fleet to all ships evacuating civilian refugees from the Basque port of Bilbao.

The Basque government has been advised by London to start embarkation of women, children and aged men in the besieged city, it was reported.

The refugees would be placed aboard Basque ships and escorted to the limit of Spanish territorial waters by Spanish warships and then turned over to a British naval escort. Most of the refugees would be taken to St. Jean de Luz, France, it was expected.

NOTED SPORTSMAN TEDDY OKE DIES

Known as "Good Angel" In All Lines Of The Game—Financier And Soldier

TORONTO, April 30.—(CP)—Financier, soldier and sportsman, F. G. (Teddy) Oke died at his home here today. A month ago he was ordered by his physician to take a complete rest but he continued directing his business and sport activities from his bed. He was 51.

Known as the "good angel of sport," Oke at one time probably had more sport connections than any man in Canada. No athlete preparing for a contest and in need of equipment was ever turned down by Oke if the embryonic record-breaker was in earnest.

Born in Uxbridge, Ont., he went north when quite young. As 16 years of age he was a star with a Northern Ontario baseball team and played lacrosse and hockey. Later he was a member of the famous Tecumsehs hockey team which later came here and turned professional in a body. Summers he divided between prospecting and baseball.

In 1915 Teddy received a commission as lieutenant with the 180th (Sportsmans') Battalion and sailed for France, where he stayed until late in 1917. Some years later upon his return to Toronto he went into business and bought a seat on the old Standard Mining Exchange.

His Best Club

One of Oke's greatest sporting efforts was formation of Parkdale Ladies' Athletic Club here. Swimmers, divers, runners, runners and girl athletes in every line of sport were included in the club, training school for many Olympic competitors.

Oke came to Kitchener in 1927 and leased the Kitchener Auditorium for 10 years and entered the "Flying Dutchmen" in the Canadian Pro-

TWO KNOWN DEAD AS TORNADO RIPS ACROSS MISSOURI

Woman Victim's Husband And Two Children Injured—Rain, Hail Follows

MANY HOMES LEVELLED

ST. LOUIS, April 30 (AP) — At least two persons were killed and a family was believed trapped in a demolished farm home as a severe wind storm swept diagonally across Missouri last night.

Mrs. George Snider, 22, and her cousin, Elmer Corbin, a 52-year-old farmer, were killed and Mrs. Snider's husband and two children were injured as a tornado levelled four houses a short distance from Ash Grove in southeastern Missouri.

Roaring northeastwardly, the storm, which was accompanied by hail and rain, wrecked several homes in the community around Swedeborg in the central part of the state.

Walter Tyler, Waynesville Telephone Company manager, said it was feared several persons were inside a house blown down near Swedeborg.

DOG RECOVERS WATCHES

How Toronto Dog To Get Award Has Not Been As Yet Explained.

TORONTO, April 30 (CP)—Just how he'll get his cut remains a mystery but Michael, a pointer, has earned a reward offered by an insurance company for return of 81 stolen watches. The tube pieces were taken a few days ago from a parked car.

Out for a run on a wash yesterday with his master, the dog, owned by Elwood Scott of Toronto, scratched into a pile of rubbish near a fence and dug up a parcel. Inside were the 81 watches.

Answer Help Call British Freighter Running Blockade

Leadership Decision On Bennett's Return

Montreal, April 30. (CP) — "I'LL HAVE a statement to make about my leadership of the Conservative Party when I get back to Canada," said Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Prime Minister of Canada, as he sailed to-day on the liner Lancastria for the coronation. He refused to discuss further his rumored retirement.

Mr. Bennett was in jovial mood as he posed for photographs and chatted with newspapermen and acquaintances. He hoped to accept an invitation from the French government to visit the Paris Exposition after the Imperial Conference in London, he said, and would remain in Europe for some time.

"I'll visit one of the watering places; I think they call them Spas," he smiled. "I am going to one that specializes in hearts."

FRANCO'S AIRMEN BLAST OUTSKIRTS BESIEGED BILBAO

Dozen Homes Destroyed In Suburbs And Inhabitants Machine-Gunned In Flight

BRITISH SHIPS SPLASHED

By Robert B. Parker, Jr.
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BILBAO, Spain, April 30 (AP)— Insurgent warplanes blasting at Bilbao's "maginot line" of fortifications sought today to clear the path ahead of an insurgent army crushing its way from the east.

Low-zooming and machine gunning planes lashed at Galdacano, a strategic point on the last line of entrenchments encircling the Basque capital where 30,000 troops were in readiness to meet Gen. Emilio Mola's army.

The air raiders swooped down on Galdacano and Bilbao yesterday, spreading destruction in the suburban town and menacing four British food carriers in Bilbao harbor.

The freighters, which reached the jammed capital yesterday, and other ships at anchor escaped damage, although bombs splashed the decks with spray.

Inhabitants Shot Down

Fifteen bombing planes, accompanied by six pursuit ships, staged the 15-minute onslaught on the harbor and Galdacano to the east. Twelve houses were destroyed in Galdacano and the aerial machine gunners were reported to have turned their weapons on the fleeing inhabitants.

The raids aroused anew Basque fears all villages in the line of the insurgent march faced devastation from the air.

Galdacano is on the road from Durango, 18 miles southeast of here, on which the Basque defenders were reported today to have halted at least for the moment one column of Mola's army.

Meanwhile, other insurgent forces continued their encircling movement through the coastal sectors north of Durango where a Basque communique said "our troops protected the orderly retreat."

In one flurry of counter-attack, the report added, "17 Moors and several Italian soldiers" were captured and "the rebels" suffered "heavy casualties."

Bomb From One Of Five Government Craft Sends Espana Down In 45 Minutes

FIRST EVER SUNK BY PLANE

Uncertain How Many Of 854 Crew Saved—British Cruiser Finds Only Wreckage

BILBAO, Spain, April 30.—(C.P.-Havas)—Spanish government airplanes, going to the aid of a British freighter, today bombed and sank the 16,140-ton insurgent battleship Espana off Santander in 32½ fathoms of water in one of the most spectacular sea engagements of the civil war—with the loss of possibly hundreds of lives.

She was the first war vessel of any size to be sunk by an airplane in naval history.

One hundred and ten members of the crew of the 16,140-ton Espana were known to have been saved by the insurgent destroyer Velasco, by government fishing boats and by armed government trawlers from Santander.

Hence, if the Espana carried her full complement of 854 officers and men, that would leave 744 unaccounted for. It was possible, however, many of the rescued were not immediately reported.

It also was possible the Espana was far short of her maximum complement. (Insurgent communiques up to this evening did not even mention the sinking. Tonight the governor of Santander said reports indicated nearly all the crew had been saved.

The short-lived incident was reported to have occurred four miles off Cape Mayor, while the Espana, her eight 12-inch guns cleared, was helping the Velasco keep the 1,061-ton British freighter Enora from the government port of Santander.

The Enora was one of a number of merchant vessels which have been running food and supplies to Santander or Bilbao, besieged Basque capital on the Bay of Biscay.

WEDDING OUTFIT REQUIRES A TRUCK

Huge Load Of Exotic, Ultra-Modern Creations Arrive At Chateau For Mrs. Simpson

PARIS, April 30 (A.P.). — A truckload of new clothes, exotic creations of fashionable Paris dressmakers in ultra-modern, glamorous designs, have been sent to the Chateau de Conte near Tours for Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Dressmakers, hatmakers, hairdressers, and manicurists journeyed to the chateau yesterday to serve the woman who soon is to become the bride of the Duke of Windsor.

Blue—the Duke's favorite color—predominated in her choice of 17 costumes made by Schiaparelli. Ten were of that color. She showed a decided taste for the ultra-modern and severely plain in dress designs preferring the fitted effects with clinging lines.

Wet London Homes Unfit For Ten Days

LONDON, Ont., April 30 (CP)— Even the aid of warm sun and drying wind cannot render the bulk of water-soaked houses in West London fit to live in again in less than 10 days.

For the third time, weary hundreds of West Londoners streaked across the Thames River bridges into their shop town, to go on with the heartbreaking task of cleaning up the wreckage.

The third day of the clean-up found houses still soaked with moisture, and mattresses and furniture oozing water, where they lay scattered over hundreds of lawns, drying in the sun.

Water which soaked into every crevice of houses during 36 hours the district was beneath the overflowed Thames, still clings to the woodwork and walls. Plaster is still wet to the touch, upholstering on furniture dens water when it is squeezed.

Forgets Tiff After 23 Years Son Thought Dead, Comes Home

Went To War In Anger—Now Taking Aged Parents On Trip To Celebrate Reunion

RANCHER IN WINNIPEG

By J. L. Leblanc
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

SHERRINGTON, Que., April 30 (CP)—Reunited with their boy after 23 years, an aged father and mother forgot the toil of the farm today in a joyful pleasure trip with the son they had counted dead in the Great War.

Still scarcely able to believe their Maurice was back, Armand Pierre and his wife embarked from this village 40 miles south of Montreal on a trip toward Western Canada with a 41-year old man who had run away to war—and apparent death — as a stripling youth of 18 nearly a quarter century ago.

As they travelled towards the nation's capital on the first stage of their tour of happiness, the septuagenarian couple marvelled at the homecoming of their son. For Maurice, well-to-do rancher near Winnipeg, had been, to them, consigned to a soldier's grave many, many years ago.

So long ago it was that disbelief all but barred the returning roamer from their home when he came back

"GYPPED" TAXI DRIVER

Brantford Police Looking For Man Who Jumped $15.00 Taxi Fare.

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 30—(CP)—Police are looking for a man who "gypped" an Oshawa taxi driver out of a $13 fare. The man asked Albert McDonald to drive him from Oshawa to Brantford as his mother was dying in hospital here. When they reached the city, the man was set in front of a Park Avenue address for a couple of minutes first. He did. The taxi waited—and waited. McDonald gave the police a thorough description of the man.

CALLED TO GET SKUNK

One Animal Humane Society Inspector Did Not Bring Back Alive.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 30.—(AP) —Inspector Robert Inglis of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals didn't bring this one back alive. Equipped only with apparatus to snare stray dogs, he was called upon to capture an ill-tempered skunk. The inspector laid a length of hose from his automobile's exhaust pipe to the cellar where the Polo Cat hid and let carbon monoxide kill the skunk.

Nurse Spots Tornado And Urges Faith, Mother, Babe Unhurt As Home Tumbles

Ash Grove, Mo., April 30. (AP) TWO hours after Mrs. Cyril Watson gave birth to a 10-lb. boy in a farm home northwest of here yesterday afternoon Mrs. Mary Dunkle, a nurse, looked out the window and saw a tornado approaching.

"Now Bertha, something terrible is going to happen," said Mrs. Dunkle.

"Don't get excited. Just keep calm. Remember Peter on the water and how the Lord took care of him."

Then she pulled the mattress around mother and the baby "just as the walls pushed in on us." They were unharmed. Mrs. Dunkle suffered leg injuries.

Architect With Huge Staff Making London Riot Of Color

Whole Procession Route To Be Mass Of Red, Gold And Blue Hiding Grey Walls

MASSES OF FLOOD LIGHTS

By Pat Usher
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 30. (CP).—Behind the scenes as London decks itself in coronation finery, a staff of experts under the direction of Grey Wornum, an architect, have been planning and designing color schemes and flood-lighting effects.

In all part of an elaborate scheme of decoration which is transforming the city into a riot of color, Lamp posts have been freshly silvered, iron fences gleam with new paint, metal work has been refurbished. At 70-foot intervals along the coronation route are masts surmounted with crowns and lantern devices.

Sombre gray of buildings in many places is concealed by brightly-colored bunting. Flags and banners are everywhere in evidence, particularly along the coronation route. Stands for spectators have their woodwork hidden behind red, gold and blue cloth.

White plays an important part in the scheme. "I am trying to bring lightness into the streets by the use of white," explains Wornum. "This has been made possible by the use of

WARRING NATIONS WILL HAVE TRADE LIMITED WITH U.S.

Purchasers Must Pay Cash And Transport Goods In Own Or Other Foreign Ships

LENIENT WITH CANADA

WASHINGTON, April 30—(AP).—Winning a race against time the United States' Congress supplanted a temporary neutrality law to-day with a statute broadening restrictions against trade with warring nations.

One clause giving the law flexibility prescribes exceptions to the "cash and carry" feature as it might affect Canada. President Roosevelt is granted discretionary powers to apply the law in a manner leaving trade between Canada and United States flowing smoothly should Great Britain be at war with another nation.

Leaders decided to rush the new measure by plane to President Roosevelt, vacationing on the Gulf coast, for signature before the present act expires to-morrow.

The principal change from the present law is the so-called "cash and carry" provision, which insurgurates an entirely new aspect of neutrality policy. Operations of this section is limited to two years.

Under it, the President at his discretion may apply certain limitations to the export of war materials to belligerents as well as prohibit outright the shipment to them of arms, ammunition and implements of war.

American merchant vessels will be prohibited from transporting to belligerents any commodities or materials which the President may designate. American sellers of such goods will be required to relinquish all title to the wares before they leave the country.

Thereby, would-be purchasers will be compelled to pay cash for such goods and transport them in their own or other foreign ships. Present restrictions continue against Americans travelling on belligerents' vessels.

THREE ARRESTED IN BELLEVILLE

Police Believe Epidemic Of Housebreaking Is Solved

BELLEVILLE, April 30 — Police believe an epidemic of housebreaking and minor thefts throughout the city is solved with the arrest of three Belleville youths. The break-ins date from last fall, when Queen Mary Public School was entered and a quantity of school supplies and a small amount of silver were stolen.

According to local authorities, the three boys admit responsibility for the majority of the burglaries which have annoyed both police and Belleville householders for the past six months.

The three admit breaking into Queen Mary School a second time, in February, by the boys' entrance in the north end of the building, and again stealing school-room articles and less than a dollar in silver. Later, King George Public School was entered, according to the three youths.

Other burglaries included Col. D. Barbar's home in March; the home of Mrs. Bacon; the home of Mrs. Howe, and the home of Mrs. Drew.

DURANGO FALLS IN REBEL HANDS

Basque Defenders Reported Routed And Many Taken Prisoners

HENDAYE FRANCO — Spanish Frontier, April 30 (AP)—Conquering Insurgents massed today for a battering-ram thrust at Bilbao down the Durango highway while the Basque government sought to clear the field of non-combatants for a fight to the death.

The defence of Durango, 16 miles southeast of Bilbao, crumbled last night and opened the well-paved highway to an Insurgent attack on the Basque port city.

The Insurgents, part of the northern army commanded by Gen. Emilio Mola under Generalissimo Francisco Franco, took the town in an assault against hastily improvised fortresses in churches and houses and against street barricades. It was described as "a great rout" in which many prisoners were taken from the 5,000 Basque defenders.

Government reports on the sector lapsed into significant silence and there was no word of the fate of an embattled Basque detachment that dragged artillery into the church of Santa Maria at Durango and turned its thick, ancient walls into a fortress.

On To Bilbao

Frontier observers expected the Insurgent motorized forces would push on down the Durango road coincident with mass evacuations at Bilbao. The situation foreshadowed a bitter siege such as has been laid to Madrid or a sudden capitulation.

Franco's warships have formed a blockade of refugee-jammed Bilbao on the north, in the Bay of Biscay, but several food ships have made their way through it to succor its 400,000 inhabitants, about twice the normal population.

Residents of the city had scant news of the fighting, save that their defenders were resisting "strong pressure" in the Guernica sector about 20 miles east of Bilbao.

Insurgent sources asserted the Basque government had demanded more fighting planes from Valencia. These sources said Bilbao would surrender within 24 hours unless they came.

FREIGHTER AFLOAT

SARNIA, Ont., April 30 (CP)—The freighter John J. Boland which ran aground in the lower St. Clair River Wednesday has been released.

The ship in charge of a tug and a lighter was believed headed for Scorse, Mich., for repairs. It lost its rudder in the grounding.

Train Wreck Mail Gets Good Soaking

Toronto, April 30.

FIRST mail from the wrecked Canadian National Railways train which hit a washout near Tillsonburg at the height of the floods on Monday, arrived in Toronto last night. The mail was discolored from the soaking it had received in the baggage car which plunged into the washout. Letters were stamped "damaged by water due to train wreck."

MONTREAL'S PIERS SEE STEVEDORES FIGHT OVER WORK

Police Horse Killed, One Man In Hospital As Rival Unions Clash

FORTY OFFICERS ON PATROL

MONTREAL, April 30. (CP). — Quiet prevailed on Montreal's waterfront to-day as stevedores of the International Longshoremen's Association local No. 375 began work on the freighter Lionel.

While 40 police patrolled pier 47 to prevent repetition of yesterday's violence that saw one man taken to hospital, the men started unloading molasses from the west Indies steamship.

Nearby, 50 members of I.L.A. No. 375—barred from work by the rival group's contract—watched the men of 375 at work on the liner, but none made any attempt to interfere with the unloading.

As an extra precaution mounted police rode up and down the railroad yards and streets adjoining the waterfront sheds.

At another pier farther down the St. Lawrence members of 375 were at work on the lake boat Sorel Dock. Here there were fewer police and No. 375 men in sight.

The original outbreak of violence, bringing to a head two years of waterfront rivalry in this port, came yesterday when members of 375 attempted to prevent unloading of the freighter Kenbane Head.

Fists and weapons came into play as the other longshoremen sought to fight their way through shed 19 to the head freighter, first of its line to reach here this year.

Harry Rogue, 29-year-old 375 foreman, received severe head injuries in the battle and was taken to hospital. Other members of both groups were bruised and cut and a police horse killed after its leg had been broken.

Police officers quelled the disturbance only after driving the men with their batons from the shed.

ENGINEERS SENT TO LONDON'S AID

Sanitary Experts And Epidemiologist Will Distribute Chlorinating Outfits To Residents

TORONTO, April 30. —(CP)—Two sanitary engineers and an epidemiologist were sent to the London flood area today by the Ontario Department of Health to direct precautionary methods against the possibility of disease.

Dr. R. Hardman, of the public health staff, the epidemiologist, will co-ordinate the medical services and the sanitary engineers will distribute emergency chlorinating outfits to residents dependent on private water supplies. A nominal charge of 60 cents is being made for the chlorinating equipment but, of course, in cases of need they will be supplied free.

Dr. B. T. McGhie, Deputy Minister of Health issued a statement outlining methods of assuring uncontaminated water supplies. The statement follows:

The attention of all residents in flooded areas, who are dependent on private water supplies, is drawn to the necessity of ensuring the purity of the water used for domestic purposes. It is urged that either boiling or home chlorination be carried out. While boiling for a period of five minutes is probably the simplest method, water for drinking and domestic purposes can be effectively chlorinated without injuring its palatability, at a nominal expenditure.

It must be borne in mind that every precaution must be taken even after the floods have subsided, until the user can be assured that the water supply is no longer contaminated.

The department suggests that during the period of flood, all water be boiled; that, when the waters recede, all wells be chlorinated. One half pound of chlorine of lime should be dissolved in a pail of water and the solution emptied into the well and allowed to stand for 12 hours; after which, water should be pumped out until any resulting taste disappears.

SAFE DRIVING SCHOOL

Motorist Who Persists In Traffic Offences Must Attend Class.

TORONTO, April 30 (CP)—Motorists who persist in traffic offences will be notified to attend an instruction class in safe driving, Brig.-Gen. D. C. Draper made the announcement yesterday at the opening of the Toronto City Police Safety and Accident Prevention School.

Hogging the centre of the road, disregarding pedestrians' right-of-way at intersections, disobeying stop signs, passing children playing in the streets at too fast a rate of speed without having car under control, are among offenses qualifying drivers to enroll at the school.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

Scotland and Glamis Castle attract a royal trio

SCOTLAND—and Glamis Castle—which have loomed so large in the life of King George and Queen Elizabeth and their daughters, is again the setting for this charming picture.

Following the custom set up by his father, who, whenever his court was resident in Scotland adopted the kilts and tartan of the country, King George is attired as a real Scotsman. With her parents in this enjoyable visit in the ancestral home of the Queen, is Margaret Rose, Scotland's own little royal sweetheart.

Princess Margaret Rose was born at Glamis in 1930, an incident which created deep satisfaction to Scotsmen and linked the royal family, and particularly the then Duke and Duchess of York, very closely to the hearts of Scottish people. No royal princess had been born in the country for many centuries, and when the name Margaret was chosen for the infant, it was a direct tribute to the Scottish people and their ancient royal line.

Visits of the family to Scotland and to Glamis have been as frequent as it has been possible to make them, sandwiched as they must be, between the tasks which the new king's position has imposed and it is a foregone conclusion that once the coronation is over and his majesty can find time for a holiday, that Scotland will see him again.

Indication of the continued interest in Scotland came when it was announced that one of the royal courts that will follow the coronation, will be held in Holyrood palace, scene of many a historic gathering in the past, but which has not seen a royal court for many years. It is expected that this year's revival will be one of the most brilliant pageants of the season apart from the coronation itself, and Scotland will be waiting to welcome its king and its native daughter, the Queen.

STALYBRIDGE-HYDE IS WON BY TORY

Majority Is Only 344 Compared To 5,073 In Last General Election

HYDE, Cheshire, April 30. —(CP Cable)—A Conservative won the Stalybridge and Hyde by-election today. His majority was 334. In the 1935 general election the Conservative candidate had a majority of 5,073.

The successful candidate was H. B. Trevor Cox, who polled 21,901 votes. His Labor opponent, Rev. Gordon Lang, had 21,567. Polling was held yesterday.

Lang, a Congregationalist minister and a noted pacifist, waged a strenuous campaign on the government's foreign and Spanish policies, and enlisted the support of the opposition Liberals. David Lloyd George paid a visit to the constituency to speak on his behalf.

The vacancy was created by the retirement due to ill health of Philip Dunne. Voting was taking place in two other by-elections today—West Birmingham and Central Wandsworth.

CONTROL FLOODS COST 300 MILLIONS

Plan Of Single Dam To Control Flooding Of Ohio River

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP)—Members of the United States House of Representatives learned today Tennessee Valley authority engineers had approved the feasibility of a single, gigantic reservoir to control floods on the Ohio, Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers.

Dr. A. E. Morgan, chairman, disclosed the huge project had been under consideration for two years. He expressed belief, it would be if constructed, "almost the greatest engineering project in America." He said it would cost about $300,000,000.

Testifying before a house appropriations subcommittee on a request for $742,439 to continue studies for construction of the proposed Gilbertsville dam on the Tennessee River, Morgan said that could be extended at any time to embrace the three rivers.

"There is a possibility for the future," he said, "that by locating a dam at the Gilbertsville site, having in mind flood control, it would be possible to build a single dam across the Cumberland and the Ohio Rivers at the mouth of the Cumberland and get one enormous reservoir that will tend to control floods on the three rivers at one water level."

DURANGO CHURCH CENTRE OF BATTLE

Hard-Pressed Basques Drag Cannon Inside Walls In Last Stand

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, April 30. —(AP)— Determined Basques turned a Durango church into a fortress to-day in an attempt to stem the march of the insurgent northern army on Bilbao, their regional capital.

The Basques, members of three decimated battalions, crammed the church of Santa Maria in Durango, 16 miles from Bilbao, dragged their cannon within the walls and blasted at insurgent attackers in ferocious salvoes.

But insurgent advices indicated their stand might be in vain. These reports said the vanguard of one of three insurgent columns marching to the sea had encircled Durango and already was hurrying virtually unopposed along the broad highway toward Bilbao.

Intense fighting surged around the once peaceful church in Durango. Forces of insurgent General Emilio Mola appeared confident they soon would capture the city's office. But the Basque apparently believed a successful defence might save both Durango and Bilbao.

Used Armored Cars.

Before they go into the church for their seemingly suicidal stand, the Basques had opposed insurgent conquest of Durango with armored cars.

Then, it appeared, some of the insurgents began an encircling movement to get to the Bilbao highway on the other side of town and to starve out the defenders of Durango. Others continued fighting the defenders in Durango itself.

Activity in the Durango sector was conducted by the southernmost of the three insurgent columns which are pressing Bilbao. The northern-most column was driving on devastated Guernica—shrine of Basque freedom, where 900 died in Monday's aerial raids which the Basques charged were directed by an insurgent "German - Italian staff."

DRUG STORE SELLS DRUGS

No Mystery About Term, Judge Rules.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 30. (AP)—To Judge James P. Hughes of the Indiana Supreme Court, a drug store is a store in which drugs are sold.

The jurist so ruled in upholding a circuit court's decision that a Fort Wayne perfume company was guilty in 1935 of operating a drug store without a state license. The company charged that statute books do not define clearly what constitutes a drug store.

"We do not think there is much mystery about the term 'drug store'," Judge Hughes said in his ruling.

CHICAGO, April 30 (C.P.)—Alba, the albino black spider monkey at the Brookfield Zoo, got an awful inferiority complex when six of her cage mates ganged up on her the other day.

STRATFORD, Ont., April 30.—(C P)—There was fun in the flood as well as disaster, according to a Western Ontario newspaper photographer. He had just completed a picture of a badly damaged automobile in a mud-spattered garage when a woman ran out and asked him not to use the picture. "We can't let that picture go into the paper," she said. "The garage hasn't been painted since last fall."

300 ARTISTS READY FOR FIGHT AGAINST N. YORK SALES TAX

Not The Money, But The Idea Of Calling Their Pictures "Products" That Hurts

CITY WANTS REVENUE

NEW YORK, April 30—(A.P.) — Those dewy-eyed girls on magazine covers, it appears, are "just mental" —whatever their physical charms.

And 300 leading artists and illustrators poised their paint brushes like battle spears to-day to prove it. They will not, they said, pay a red cent in tax on the red lips of their glamor-girl creations—as demanded by the New York City Sales Tax Commission in "cracking down" on artists as a new source of revenue.

"Let 'em try to collect," said Arthur William Brown, noted illustrator, formerly of Hamilton, Ontario, spokesman for the easel army.

Already cited by the Tax Commission for two years' arrears, Brown spoke broadmajy of "chaos" on Mt Parnassus" if the tax is enforced.

"Artists aren't bookkeepers," he said, "and yet these revenue agents come up and say, 'You gotta keep books. You gotta keep books so you can pay the tax.'

"You Paint, I'll Keep Books."

"I told this revenuer, 'All right, I'm an artist and you want me to keep books. I'll keep books, all right, if you'll draw pictures. How's that?' he just laughed. He said I was another one of these cuckoo artists.

"We paint a picture of a pretty girl and sell it to a magazine, and the city says we are 'vendors'—just like a butcher or baker or grocer—and that we have to pay a two per cent. sales tax."

He winced. "It isn't the money. It's the idea. It's the idea of calling an artist's creation a 'product.' That's what hurts. A product—as though a work of art was a can of pork-and-beans.

"It's the artist's mind that has value—how he interprets ideas—not the material matter he used in portraying those ideas."

Trio London Houses Go Cruising; Vanish

London, Ont., April 30 (CP)

AT least three houses went bobbing downstream while the flood-maddened Thames was at its height and today householders sought for some trace of the buildings where once they lived.

The home of Orin Bulson of Front Street, vanished. Only the water-filled basement marks the spot.

The home of Thomas Jackson in West London was anchored with strong rope but anchors and all are gone.

STRIKERS CLASH AT TORONTO PLANT

Strike-Breakers Going to Work Are Surrounded By Strikers Of Silknit Mills

TORONTO, April 30 —(CP)—Men and women strikers at the Ontario Silknit Mills here clashed with strike-breakers today and several suffered bruises. No one was seriously hurt, police said.

The affair started when strikers surrounded those who wished to go to work. One woman threw herself on the sidewalk and suffered bruises.

Police forced their way through the group and escorted the workers into the factory. The strike was called yesterday by the United Textile Workers of America, a C.I.O. organization.

Brown said more than 300 artists have pledged the amount they would have to pay in 1936 sales taxes to fight the levy, and that the movement lists such notables as James Montgomery Flagg, John Le Gatta, McClelland Barclay, Wallace Morgan, Dean Cornwell, and Bradshaw Crandall.

CANDY PROFITS MEAN BENEFITS TO MODEL TOWN

Surpluses Of Great Industry At Hershey, Pa., Provide Community Interests

FOUNDED BY FARM BOY

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 30. — (CP) — Attention has been directed to the background of the model town of Hershey, Pa., by a strike of workers in the $20,000,000 chocolate plant there. The first phase was the rout of "sit-down" strikers with the assistance of hundreds of farmers who sell their products to the factory.

The Milwaukee Journal says:

Hershey, Pa., like Kohler in Wisconsin, is a model town, largely developed by industrial benevolence. Hershey, however, turns out a product which requires milk in quantities and suffers a slack season yearly when warm weather makes shipping chocolate difficult and the demand less.

The Hershey Chocolate Corporation is a $20,000,000 enterprise which nets about $5,000,000 year after year and pours most of these earnings into philanthropies in Hershey. Under the chairmanship of Milton S. Hershey, founder and owner of most of the company's stock, the corporation is run on a business basis, however. Philanthropy begins after the declaration of dividends.

These dividends go into the Hershey industrial ... d for the housing and education ... about 800 orphan boys.

Figures to indicate whether the town or the school has gotten most of the earnings of the Hershey corporation since it was established in a corn field in 1903 are difficult to obtain. The school, however, seems in the lead. Hershey founded the school in 1909 on the old Hershey homestead. By 1923 he had built it to an estate for which he thought it wise to put $60,000,000 in trust as a perpetuating endowment, representing the bulk of his accumulated wealth.

Meanwhile he had given to his workers a town with planned model housing, lawns around each house, tree-shaded streets, utilities, a model school system, a monumental community building with theatre, library, hospital, clubrooms, swimming pool, gymnasium and dormitories.

From time to time these benefits have been expanded out of further dividends of the corporation. At present the town of Hershey boasts five golf links, one of which is the only juvenile course in America, together with one of the finest hockey arenas in the world, supporting one of the foremost amateur teams in the east.

Distributed Excess

The golden intake of this candy business even during the depression is indicated by a total of $35,000,000 in dividends paid out since 1929, plus an increase of $6,000,000 in the earned surplus retained in the corporation. Hershey explains that the profits of his business early outgrew his expectations and needs. He consulted his wife and they decided to distribute their excess in philanthropy among the workers. In addition, since the Hersheys were childless, they decided on the orphan institute.

The life story of Milton Snavely Hershey is otherwise in the pattern of the poor farm boy who goes out in the world without advantages, works hard at one job all his life and accumulates a fortune. Born in 1857, of Reformer Mennonite parents, he got his first job as a printer's devil in a newspaper office and might have developed into a journalist. It was summer and his straw hat fitted him so loosely that it fell into the printing press and he was fired. His next job was with a candy maker, and he stuck to that.

MARBLES TITLE A VILLAGE FEUD

'Universe Championship' Has Been Decided At Old Inn For 300 Years

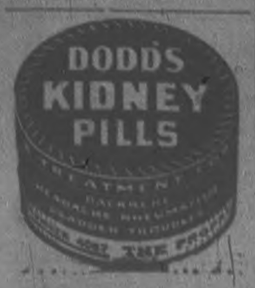
TINSLEY GREEN, Surrey, England, April 30.—(CP)—Schoolboys in other parts of the world may not have heard of this secluded settlement nor be willing to concede local claims to this particular title—the marble championship of the universe.

However, the claim stands so far as Tinsley Green folk are concerned and they have already installed W. O. (Glass-alley) Burberry as titleholder after his defeat of the former champion, F. O. Harding. The tournament has resolved itself into something of a community family fued. Outside challengers are invited, but it is explained the championship has been decided here in the yard of the Greyhound Inn for the past 300 years.

Conditions are severe. There is a six-foot circle, marking the limits from which a competitor may shoot. In the centre of this ring is a one-foot circle in which 13 marbles are placed. Each entrant shoots in turn a large marble, known here as a "bolley," held in the crook of the bent thumb and first finger. The first to knock seven marbles out of the big circle is the winner.

Burberry, after his victory, said he had acquired his deft touch as a boy and confided he didn't go in for special diet—except beer.

The prize, incidentally, helped him in his training—a tankard filled with lager. He shared his diet with the runner-up.



Hitler Reviews German Army On His Birthday

'Y' SECRETARY HELPS HUNDREDS OF YOUNG WOMEN

FINDS EMPLOYMENT

EDMONTON, April 30. — (CP) — "Mother" and advisor to hundreds of girls of all stations and races, Mrs. Eleda Perley Wellwood, general secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association here, today looked back on a successful career.

Girls and their many problems, multiplied during depression years, are as essentially a part of her life as the very breath she breathes, from her experience with the many with whom she has come in contact she feels the most important of all is that a girl be "taught to face a situation honestly and fairly and to do what comes to hand."

Associate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, professional singer and teacher of voice, wife, mother and one-time dean at residence of the Canadian Academy in Kobe, Japan, Mrs. Wellwood has been around since she left sheltered girlhood life in a manse near Kingston, Ont., where she was born.

"I'm always interested in meeting people, and I don't think I'm ever irritated by them no matter what they do," she said.

After graduating from Brockville Collegiate and Ontario Ladies' College at Whitby, she began her career as singer and music teacher. From Kingston to Montreal, then to Ottawa she moved, with one year spent in further study in Boston, another year travelling with the Montreal Trio Club through Ontario and Quebec.

Following the death of her husband, Dr. John A. Wellwood, in 1920, she accepted a position as teacher of music and dean in the Canadian Academy at Kobe.

Mrs. Wellwood came to the Edmonton post nearly seven years ago. "In the past we have stressed the physical side," she said. "Now we find we must stress the mental. In our social service work we help girls find employment."

Under her supervision numerous clubs have been established, with three classes weekly to train girls for domestic work.

WARM ON CANADA AS BEAUTY SPOT

Southam Writer Finds Inspiration In Scene And Story Of Dominion

NEW YORK, April 30.—(CP)—Between the green-and-white jacket of a book called "Canada Cavalcade" Bob Davis, globe-girdling New York newspaperman, has concocted a grand tonic for homesick Canadians abroad—and an eye-opener for Canadians at home.

The man the New York Sun told in 1923 to cover the world and not stop "until you've seen all there is of the globe" has collected scores of articles—drawn from many years of travelling in Canada—into a book which constitutes an advertisement akin to Canadian scenery or the Dionne quintuplets.

Arranging his chapters as if he roves leisurely from coast to coast, Davis misses nothing of the breath-taking beauty of Lake Louise, the Rockies and the placid Maritimes, but all the scenery is a mere frame for his human interest stories.

As a matter of fact, he confides toward the end of the book, he is "more interested in people than in ports" and that gives a pretty good idea of what his cavalcade attempts.

Aptly enough, his first stretch is an account of Victoria's famed Butchart Gardens, but he lets Mrs. Butchart, native of Ontario, tell the tale rather than filling pages with his own impression of the transformed quarries.

Between the gardens and his ramblings through Banff National Park, are interspersed tales of British Columbia salmon-fishing and an account of Mike, the "sea dog" near Qualicum Beach—the dog of almost human intelligence who will bring the thirsty customer a bottle, the necessary opener and take the money for it to the bartender.

Davis calls Lake Louise the "incomparable jewel of the Canadian Rockies." Instead of dilating on its beauty he interviews Tom Wilson, who in 1882 was the first white man to see the lake.

Easy On East

The prairies furnish him with tales of the mounted police, the fast journey of a silk special across the continent to New York, while in Winnipeg he hears from Ned Sawyer, former railwayman, about the ride from Manitou to Morden through a great herd of elk.

Ontario and Quebec are practically neglected. He never saw the Dionne girls but interviews someone who did. Under a Stratford dateline he tells of the Duke of Windsor being criticised by two farmers who met him while he left his special train when touring the country as Prince of Wales, and offered him a "fine job" at $50 a month.

In the Maritimes, Davis dwells on such stories as Angus MacAskill, the 8ft. Ann giant, the Mahaney quadruplets at Saint John, Pictou's lobsters and ice-breaking in Borden Strait.

Davis finds a sea captain to tell him of the escape of the Confederate cruiser Tallahassee from Halifax Harbor one dark night during the United States Civil War.

DEPLORES WANTON SLAUGHTER FUR-BEARING ANIMALS

Northern Legislator Says Protection Needed If Extinction To Be Avoided

SUGGESTS GAME PRESERVE

REGINA, April 30.—(CP)—Fur-bearing and big game animals will become extinct in Saskatchewan unless measures are taken for their protection, D. A. Hall, Liberal member of the Saskatchewan legislature for Athabasca, declared in the legislature just before adjournment.

He predicted wild life would not last for long when civilization got into the far north. At the new northern mining camp of Goldfields during the past year barren land caribou had been slaughtered due to shortage of food supplies. One man was reported to have killed 500 and another 600 of these animals.

The fur situation in the north this year was the worst it had ever been. Over-trapping was partly responsible and there was also a low ebb in the fur-bearing animal cycle.

Mr. Hall suggested a game preserve near Goldfields to protect wild life.

SCHOOL IS CLOSED BY SCARLET FEVER

Orangeville M. O. H. Takes Action As Precautionary Measure

ORANGEVILLE, April 30—By order of Dr. C. J. Scott, medical health officer, the public school was closed yesterday in an effort to end what has developed into a serious scarlet fever epidemic. The first case was reported two weeks ago, and the malady has spread rapidly. At present ten homes are under quarantine and some 15 cases reported.

Dr. Scott said the school would be closed until Monday. This is to allow any incipient cases to become known before the pupils are in contact again. The building, in the meantime, will be fumigated.

The disease is described as not serious, but from the milder type may develop one of a more serious consequence. The length of quarantine is placed at four weeks, during which time only heads of families are allowed out, and no personal contacts with patients is allowed.

MEALS IN CAN BASIS OF JOB

Young Woman Becomes Britain's First Tinned Food Consultant

PROMISING CAREER

LONDON, April 30. —(CP)— A young woman, Miss Janet Bond, decided a year ago to turn a hurried meal into a commercial enterprise, and today the rushed meals of several million housewives are the basis of her promising career. She has created for herself the job of the first canned food consultant in the United Kingdom. A kitchen is attached to her office in London.

With some 40 kinds of tinned food stuff now on the market in picturesque disarray, Miss Bond expresses herself as a believer in the tinned food life. "It is a fallacy to imagine that tinned foods are not good for people," she says, and she quotes figures to show that millions more cans are sold now than two or three years ago.

"Push and Pull" Driving is Out!

DRIVE TODAY...TOMORROW'S WAY

A flick of a finger . . . A touch of a toe!

TO SHIFT! TO STOP! TO GO!

Both hands stay on the wheel while gears shift themselves YET.. NOTHING NEW TO LEARN!

STEP into a car with a clear front floor. Notice, there's no gear or brake lever in your way. Settle back in that broad front seat. Get ready for a wonderful new experience . . . driving a 1937 Hudson or Terraplane with Selective Automatic Shift.

Let's go! Slip through traffic without ever pulling a hand gear lever or pushing a clutch pedal. Change gears with a flick of a finger and a lift of the toe from the accelerator. Start, shift, stop, go, with both hands always on the wheel.

The Car Does the Work

New? Yes . . . new in the speed and sureness with which you shift gears. New in the ease and safety with which you handle your car. Action of transmission and clutch is automatic . . . but you control the time and speed of shifting. And no "free wheeling."

There is nothing new to learn. Up under the wheel are the same familiar gear positions, but with the Electric Hand, a finger touch picks the gear you want. Remember, more than 100,000 Hudson and Terraplane owners are already driving with the Electric Hand. It has been tested and proved by over a billion miles of actual owner use.

The Selective Automatic Shift, with Electric Hand, is an optional extra on all 1937 Hudson-built cars. Of course, you can have the conventional gear lever if you wish, but we don't believe you will, once you experience the greater ease and safety of this new way of driving.

Canada's No. 1 Cars

You'll quickly discover many other advantages that make Hudson and Terraplane the real No. 1 Cars of 1937.

No. 1 in size, with the longest wheelbase in each price class . . . 117 inches in Terraplane; 122 and 129 inches in Hudson. No. 1 in power, too . . . ranging from 96 horsepower in Terraplane, on up to 122 horsepower in Hudson Eight.

No. 1 in roominess . . . 55 full inches of front seat comfort for three, more leg room and elbow room all around. No. 1 in performance and endurance . . . the only 1937 cars to bring you proof from official American Automobile Association records.

Some day, you'll drive this new and better way . . . why not now? There's a 1937 Hudson or Terraplane waiting for you.

Facing a Crisis

When flood conditions struck the western part of the province a train ran into a washed-out section, and both fireman and engineer were seriously injured, to such an extent they afterwafd died. It was necessary to have a doctor there at once, and a call went to Dr. J. D. MacDonald of Ingersoll. He knew what the flood conditions were; was well aware of what they had already done to many of the roads in his immediate district, and would also have reason to expect things would get worse.

But it was a call and apparently Dr. MacDonald was of the school which places the needs and dangers of an injured person above everything else. One could readily think of a number of reasons why he might have hesitated to make that trip, for it was his last.

But he went, and when he came to a bridge over the Thames near Beachville the water was running over the floor. But even there he decided to try and get through. His car was swept off the bridge and not until several days after was the body of the doctor found 400 feet down stream.

Dr. MacDonald never reached the injured men to whom he went to minister, but he did all he could. In his death the traditions of the medical profession are made richer.

* * *

As miles go London is not far removed from either Ingersoll or Beachville. London had its flood and it was a serious thing. There were brave and good things done in that city, but there was something else to spoil the picture. We read that Mayor Kingsmill left a committee meeting to go to police headquarters and swear in members of the Canadian Legion as special officers because there were reports of looting of flooded homes. It would probably be necessary to use force to make the looters desist and the special police were necessary because the supply of regulars was not sufficient.

But what a difference in the few miles between the bridge at Beachville and the flooded district in London. At the first place there was the doctor ready to give all he had because two men were in trouble and needed him, and in London there were those who were ready to take all they could get because there was no one to prevent them doing so.

Will Not Disappear

Peterborough relief picture is decidedly brighter than it has been for years according to figures released by Relief Officer Metheral. At the end of last month we had scaled down the numbers on relief and the cost of the assistance given by fifty per cent over the peak year and that is a chievement that affords solid ground for rejoicing.

Yet we are far from out of the woods. Beginning this month there were 402 families and a total of 1782 persons receiving public assistance and that means that in spite of the very material betterment recorded one in every thirteen persons in Peterborough is depending upon the municipality and on the governments for food and fuel and shelter. The number is being whittled down—it is expected this month's report will show at least twenty-five more families off the list—but it is fairly obvious that a large proportion of those remaining on the rolls will be difficult to establish in positions where they can take care of themselves and cease to look to the relief department for help.

In short, relief on a scale far beyond the expenditure that used to be made under the head of charity in the days before the depression threatens to become a permanent problem. Whether we will have to deal with it through the machinery now in use or whether a better and more satisfactory solution can be found is a matter that is giving municipal heads everywhere a great deal about which to think.

Safety Is Possible

Newspapers these days find it necessary so often to chide motorists for reckless and careless driving practices that it is a pleasant experience to be able instead to publish a word or two of commendation for driving of a different nature.

Thirteen employees of the district staff of the Bell Telephone Company who have compiled a total of 45 years of motor driving without a single accident have just had their achievement officially recognized by the Ontario Safety League by the presentation of medallions and certificates. Seven of these men have gone through three years without a mishap and the other six have carried on for four years in succession without a blemish on their driving records.

The Bell Telephone drivers have as a matter of fact demonstrated that it is possible to drive sanely and carefully. Their work calls for them to be abroad in all kinds of weather and road conditions, through summer storms and winter blizzards, under circumstances when accidents would seem to be almost inevitable and yet they have triumphed over all these hazards by using common sense in operating their cars and trucks. It is apparent they have not been guided by the policy of take-a-chance which seems to be the trend of a great deal of our automobile driving. No group facing the conditions these telephone men have had to encounter could have set up a record of forty-five years of accidentless driving if they had been inclined to risk life and property by reckless practices at the wheel.

John L. Takes a Hand

A writer on the New York Herald-Tribune, Edward Angley, was assigned by his paper to cover the recent automobile strike situation in Detroit, and he remained there as long as the trouble lasted. He has more recently written at length regarding a meeting in Washington of the 17 directors of the United Automobile Workers of America, this being an affiliate of the central organization, the Committee for Industrial Organization. Homer Watson, formerly a Baptist preacher, is president of the automobile wing, but John L. Lewis is the power behind the C.I.O.

Mr. Angley writes that at one point Mr. Lewis entered the meeting in Washington with the suggestion that the U.A.W. should accept an administrator from the C.I.O. to give direction and guidance to its campaign, and this move on the part of Mr. Lewis is interpreted as meaning that he desires to have a firmer hand on the movements of Homer Martin, head of the U.A.W. It is not claimed a split has taken place, but there has been a serious difference of opinion regarding the fitness of Martin for the position he holds.

The first break came when the Chrysler strike was called. Right then Wyndham Mortimer, first vice-president of the union and Ed. Hall, second vice-president, along with John Brophy, legal counsel of the C.I.O, were in the offices of General Motors seeking to finish a few details in the General Motors situation after which that strike had been settled. The first they knew of the Chrysler strike having been called was when they read of it in the newspapers, and John L. Lewis knew nothing of the move. The strike was called on the say-so of Homer Martin and Richard T. Frankensteen, an organizer not yet thirty years of age. Likewise it is reported Homer Martin's plan to call a second strike in U. S. plants of General Motors when the strike at Oshawa was declared did not meet with the approval of John L. Lewis.

Mr. Angley contends members of the U.A.W. are not disciplined union men, and they have joined up hurriedly without any previous experience in unionism or its meaning. So far the trouble between John L. Lewis and Homer Martin has been kept pretty much behind closed doors, but if the tension develops to breaking point then Mr. Martin will be the one to go. John L. Lewis is a shrewd organizer and when he is found tightening up on the reins something is in the offing.

Not the Solution

The National secretary of the Ontario Federation of Unemployed spoke in Peterborough recently. He was critical of Ald. Dutton of the Relief Committee for having said some relief recipients were not trying to find work, and his question was "Can Ald. Dutton show to the unemployed where they can get work?" The answer to that question, and it is an old and popular one, is that it is not the business of Ald. Dutton to find work for men who want it. He has his own business to which to attend and he is not an employment agency. That sort of work is attended to elsewhere. Looking for work may be somewhat like prospecting; the man does not find people who can or will tell him where to find gold; he has to go and hunt for it.

There was another claim made. This: "The Federation of Unemployed do not want relief, but a public works program that will give work to every able-bodied man."

We admit that would be a happy solution to the whole business, but the old question comes up: What are we going to use for money? A public works program is not a productive undertaking. It is not like a factory where something is being made and offered for sale, and where the procedure is repeated indefinitely. A public works program brings into existence a building, or a road or some such thing, and when that is completed the work stops, and those who were employed on it are likely to become unemployed again. That which has been created is not in itself productive. More than that, a public works program is likely to create something which becomes an added debt charge each year for maintenance, service or repairs. If a public works program were the way out, those who are unemployed can rest assured the city, the province or the federal government would have solved the problem long ago in that way. But the truth is the solution does not point in that direction.

The Young Folk Know

Out of the mouth of babes, etc. The Examiner in the last day or two has been publishing the prize-winning essays in the competition for school children sponsored by the Fish and Game Association and the treatment given by the young writers to the subject of fish and game conservation shows that they have not failed to grasp the salient features of the problems.

All three winners stressed the importance of tourist traffic and the part played by our supply of fish and game in attracting that traffic; they showed the shortsightedness of illegal fishing and hunting and the desirability of adopting a constructive policy of fish and game conservation and they emphasized the necessity of adequate patrols by properly qualified game wardens.

In fact the juvenile essayists do not seem to have overlooked much in presenting their case for conserving our wild life and we have an idea a good many of our adult readers could profit by reading and digesting their advice. There is reason to believe that too many of them have been guilty of just such offences as were described by the young contestants and that they have helped deplete fish and game resources in this section. These school boys and girls have pointed the way and they are right in their contention that it should be everybody's business to help protect the wild life of the district.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The accommodation on the Zeppelin Hindenburg is to include stalls for horses and kennels for dogs. The big blimp threatens to turn into a sort of flying Noah's Ark.

British Columbia is to absorb the Yukon Territory. Dominion election summaries of the future will look strange without the usual "Yukon Territory. Conservatives elected 1" in the list.

Only 670 electors out of 4991 on the lists were able to get out to vote at a municipal by-election in Brantford township. The loser will be able to offer the alibi that it was the flood and not his opponent that beat him.

The last rivet placed in the huge bridge at San Francisco was of pure gold, no doubt to symbolize the fact that the structure cost $35,000,000, which is coming across with a lot of money in order to come across.

We imagine that Dunnville poultry man who lost 48,000 eggs because the flood interrupted the Hydro service and allowed the electric incubators to cool off is suffering from a severe case of shell shock.

The Parks Committee of the city council has authorized agreements with various organizations for the use of city parks for summer sports so at least in official circles there is evidently the opinion that we are really going to have a summer.

The Deputy-Minister of Fish and Game in Quebec has had his finger bitten by a hungry trout according to a news story which seems to suggest that the first fish yarn of the year has beaten the opening of the season across the line.

The United States treasury has issued a total of $1,804,000,000 in bonus bonds to Great War Veterans and $1,390,000,000 of that amount has already been spent. It seems to have been a case of easy come, easy go, with most of the ex-servicemen.

A news picture showing Joe E. Brown taking part in the ceremonies at the first game in Chicago bears the heading "The Opening of the Season." However, Mr. Brown must be acclimatized by this time to cracks at the dimensions of his mouth.

When Downie township tried to cut the salary of the Medical Officer of Health he appealed to the courts and was granted a handsome increase over his previous remuneration. Obviously it does not pay to try to prune the health department too closely.

TROUBLE

(By A. E. K.)

¶ A goodly man is Neighbor A., and he works hard most every day, he keeps things rather neat; he has a goodly yard indeed, and when it's time for him to seed, he thinks of things to eat.

¶ He likes to have long rows of beans, and he is strong on beets and greens, and he'll grow lettuce too; he starts tomatoes in the spring, can make them grow like anything, seed spuds a peck or two.

¶ My neighbor's wife is different though, of course she likes to see things grow, but wants the grass and flowers; she wants them growing everywhere, so they will scent the summer air, she sort of dotes on bowers.

¶ She is artistic in her taste, on onions has no plots to waste, at beets turns up her nose; she says she needs the bloom around, so that right atmosphere is found, to match her summer clothes.

¶ I know they argue very much, on trying to grow just such and such, and Neighbor A. gets sore; when he speaks on green beans and peas, she shoves the notion off with ease, she'll buy them at the store.

¶ So when it comes to merry spring, they always war like everything, they deal in verbal heat; for Mrs. A. wants posies red, wants blue and pink ones overhead—while A. wants things to eat.

Why Wild Life Needs Guarding

(Third prize essay in the competition sponsored by the Fish and Game Association, written by Catherine Guerin, of the senior third book of the Immaculate Conception School.)

THE Kawarthas with their wonderful scenery, good fishing and abundant game are an ideal district for the sportsman and vacationist. With its rolling plains, wooded hills, crystal lakes and streams Nature endowed the Kawarthas with everything to make the section one of America's leading holiday resorts.

The Kawartha district is well stocked with every variety of fresh water fish. Here you will find the gamecock of all freshwater fish; the muskinonge. The dream of all fishermen is to land a muskie of ten pounds or more. Black and green bass are caught by the thousand. Lake trout, salmon trout, speckled trout are all plentiful, and pickrel and pike numerous. Fish draw tourists by the thousands and are therefore worth thousands of dollars to the district. They supply us with food. Many men make their living as guides and game wardens.

The water of the Kawarthas are a natural breeding ground for fish. Man cannot improve nature's ways so these waters must be protected. The water levels must be kept the same from the time the fish spawn until they are big enough to go into deep water. The closing of good sections of those waters for certain periods will give the fish a chance to increase. Game wardens must be men who are trained for their work, not chosen for their political views. A fish hatchery should be built and staffed by experts. Sportsmen's associations should assist and the public should be thoroughly familiarized as to the value of fish conservation.

The man with the gun must have his sport. He will find the Kawartha district can give him that. The waters are alive with water fowl and the woods are well supplied with deer, bear and wolves.

The wolves should be destroyed and the government should give a bounty large enough to encourage men to kill them.

Fur is an important asset of the district. Fur bearing animals abound in numbers, making them well worth the trapper's time. The professional guide depends upon the fish and game for his living. He should be licensed and appointed a deputy game warden. He knows where the places are that need protection and should be better than the ordinary citizen for this position. The game preserves established by the government should be enlarged and well patrolled.

Our schools would be a wonderful place in which to teach children to love wild life and to appreciate its value. Nature has been kind to our district and we should try and repay her kindness by keeping it true to its name which means, "bright waters and happy lands."

MORE GOOD NEWS.

(Kitchener Record)

IT is going to be a good year for fruits according to surveys made in various districts. According to some the prospects are the best in years. This will be good news not only to the fruit-growers themselves but to many householders who were last year disappeared in their usual supply.

The mild winter has proved favorable to orchards in Ontario and elsewhere. Small fruits will be more abundant while peach trees have not been damaged in the slightest degree by frosts. Housekeepers who depend upon summer supplies for their winter reserves will rejoice to feel that their depleted larders will be replenished from orchard and berry-patch. Few sights are more gratifying than rows of preserved fruit and vegetables laid by for the rainy day by provident housewives.

Of course one has the Ontario climate to reckon with. Our extremes of heat and cold, drought and rain, are likely to upset the most careful calculations. The unexpected happens much too frequently. But from present indications we can reasonably hope for bumper crops of fruit and that means a lot to most families. In any case—time will tell. Here's hoping.

MOVE ON, OLD TIMER.

(Bertha, Minn., Herald)

MOVE on, old timers, the world doesn't want you any more. You have outlived your usefulness. You have paid your way as you went along. You believe that the way to live is by practising industry, frugality and general thrift, saving up for a rainy day, a theory that went out with the horse and buggy age. The world does not want any of such doctrines. The theory that the world owes you a living without working or planning for it is the new doctrine that has taken hold of this nation, and what you have accumulated in the horse and buggy age, rightfully belongs to the fellow who subscribes to the new doctrine. Move on, old timer, you are not wanted.

CARELESSNESS FATAL.

(Toronto Telegram)

IT is a fact that there were a considerable number of fatal accidents, even at crossings where protection exists, shown, however, that no safeguard can be effective without co-operation from the public. Protection is of no avail when carelessness is at the wheel of a car. There would be very few level crossing accidents if drivers would exercise a reasonable care and refuse to take chances. To slow down and make sure that no train is approaching costs only a few moments. Failure to do so often costs life itself.

Begrudging the Radio Fee

(From the Oshawa Times.)

HUNDREDS of residents of the city have just parted with $2.50 each for their 1937 radio license and from expressions that have been heard that $2.00 expenditure was begrudged more than any other. The former fee of $1.00 seems to have been plenty, according to the thinking of the average radio owner. It also goes against the grain considerably to learn that the chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Commission, on his retirement from that position was given a handsome retiring allowance, $10,000 in fact, equal to one year's salary, it is alleged.

Recent investigations in Oshawa revealed sources of interference to reception of broadcasts, and some of these were corrected, and others are to be ironed out at a later date. None can deny but that the Commission is necessary and is doing a lot for the radio owners in keeping the air lanes from being cluttered up with a duplication of wave lengths, high powered stations, and the regulation of hours of broadcasts. However with the increase of radio sales throughout the Dominion there is a general feeling that $1.00 license fee is sufficient.

If the C.B.C. produced programs over the air that could be heard by all radio owners, we don't suppose there would be this outcry. Still we are called upon to dig down for $2.00 to pay a fee that goes toward a retiring allowance for a man who received $40,000 in four years, is given a retiring allowance of $10,000 and today is editor of a well-known and prominent financial newspaper, possibly receiving a yearly salary close to what the C.B.C. allowed him for retiring.

Developing Trade With Britain.

(From the Montreal Star.)

ONE of the most important announcements made at Ottawa since the session closed forecasts an organized campaign which will be undertaken in the British market to obtain more business for Canadian farm products, under the aegis of the Department of Agriculture. Hon. James Gardiner has planned a programme of vital concern to Canada, especially when one bears in mind export figures—which are directly related to the prosperity of this country—and the comments that have been made on Canadian business methods in Great Britain.

In 1935 the United Kingdom was the largest purchaser of our products, the value of exports totalling $274,182,737, which showed an increase of $46,581,326 over the previous year. In that year we had a marked favourable trade balance because the imports from the United Kingdom in 1935 were valued at $111,682,490. These figures show beyond any quibbling that the United Kingdom is a market well worth nursing. In fact, bearing in mind the population of the United Kingdom and the variety of imports which it requires, one might go even further and insist that it justifies more intensive cultivation than in the past.

Under the scheme formulated by Mr. Gardiner, an agricultural products commissioner will be appointed to co-ordinate the activities of the men already engaged in various trade efforts in the Old Country. He also intends naming another officer to keep a check on the quality and quantity of Canadian bacon marketed in Britain.

Among the principal exports from Canada at the present time are beef and beef products, hams and bacon, butter and cheese, fruits and honey. The Minister believes that these can be popularized to an even larger extent by proper attention to the market. To do this it will be necessary to obtain the most accurate and up-to-date information on the quality of products required and the best methods of grading and marketing them.

In the past our business men have been criticized for paying too little attention to the tastes of the British people. In fact, we have been rather lackadaisical in giving to this matter the minute attention which it deserves. It is all very well to argue that the British public have certain idiosyncrasies which need not be remembered when we send them our produce, but this is a very unsound method of reasoning. It is a well known axiom of salesmanship that to get the best results the seller must please the customer. When there is so much at stake, it is vitally essential that we should not overlook the importance of this fact.

Dinosaurs In a Calgary Park.

(From the Calgary Herald.)

WHAT promises to become a unique tourist attraction is being developed on St. George's Island in the creation of a Dinosaur Park by the Calgary Zoological Society.

The past two seasons have seen the commencement of the undertaking with three life-size models placed in an appropriate setting in the fossil garden. This year's program includes the reconstruction of a huge brontosaurus, largest of the denizens of the Jurassic geological period, as well as several of the smaller specimens of dinosaurs which lived during the Mesozoic age, possibly as far back as 200 million years ago.

The establishment in Calgary of such a collection is fitting. For while dinosaur fossil remains have been found in practically every part of the world, some of the best preserved and most numerous specimens have been discovered within 100 miles of the city among the so-called "Bad Lands" of the Red Deer Valley.

From the spectacular angle, reproduction in concrete of reptiles which in life weighed many tons and may have reached 100 feet in length, is impressive, but the society is not faced with the task of confining their collection to such massive structures. For all dinosaurs—and there are more than 8,000 species which scientists have identified—were not mammoths. They ranged from the huge brontosaurus and brachiosaurus who stood 35 feet at the shoulder down through a diminishing scale to creatures smaller than a cat, and any attempt to give an impression of a race which became extinct 65,000,000 years ago must show all sizes in the grouping.

In appearance, these saurians were as varied as they were diverse in bulk. Some were content to waddle on four short legs, others upright on their hind feet. Their bodies were smooth skinned, covered with scaly plates or armed with huge spines. There were toothless saurians as well as dinosaurs provided with hundreds of teeth. The heads in some were tiny, in others they were enormous. Among the largest carrying tons of cold-blooded flesh, their brains only weighed a few ounces. There were flesh-eaters and herbivores. Yet all shared anatomical characteristics which grouped them together in one vast order.

None of their near blood relatives has come down through the aeons of time, though they have distant kinship with the lizards and birds. Their extinction came with the drying of the vast marshes, the cooling of the climate and the multiplication of more adaptable animals which preyed on dinosaur eggs and young.

AVERTING STRIKES.

(Kitchener Record)

PREMIER Hepburn will make a valuable contribution to economic recovery in Ontario if he can get the newly-created Industry and Labor Board to function in such a way that it will bring about the settlement of disputes between employers and employees before walkouts occur. Even if the proposed set-up fails in some cases, it would undoubtedly prove worthwhile. In many instances industry has become so interwoven that a shutdown in a big plant is bound to affect feeder plants adversely. Thus the march of industrial progress is seriously interrupted.

A strike means that earnings are cut off until the differences are ironed out to the satisfaction of both parties to the dispute. If the strike lasts for any length of time, whatever pay increase is obtained is actually not an increase until the wage loss incurred during the cessation of work is wiped out. Hence it is to the interest of employer and employee to come to an agreement, if at all possible, while the wheels of the factory keep turning.

It is the practice nowadays to combat fire losses by heeding every effort towards fire prevention. In much the same way it should be possible to do away with major strike losses and the hardships they bring by concentrating more on strike prevention. To this end Mr. Hepburn aims to set up machinery that "will obviate, so far as it lies within the power of the government, portentous labor problems before the calling of a strike is necessary."

Constable—"He contradicted himself. At the accident he said he sounded his horn twice and afterwards in the charge room he said he didn't give two hoots."

To The Editor

DAYLIGHT TIME

Editor Examiner,

Sir: According to our City Council, we will have daylight saving with us again on May 24th. That will give our council lots of time for a friendly game of golf this summer. As for us hard-working people who don't get time for such games as golf, well, we don't matter anyway. That is easy to prove. We voted on daylight saving about three years ago and it was defeated, but the next year our council did not ask the people. They just decided among themselves what would be the best for all of us and we get daylight saving again. That's what we get for voting them into the council. It may be a different story next election then some of our bright councillors will have plenty of time to play their little game of golf.

But the part that hurts is that not one of our councillors is man enough to come out in the open and declare war on daylight saving. If it was voted on tomorrow it would be defeated, so if there is one councillor who is for the people, let him step out and start something. He can be sure of all kinds of support. I know this is a long, tiresome letter, but not as long as daylight saving.

THE UNEMPLOYABLES.

(Windsor Star)

IT is sometimes forgotten that on all relief rolls there are two distinct categories of recipients. They are the unemployed and the unemployables.

The unemployed are those who are unfortunate and have not got jobs. They have run to the end of their financial tether and they have to depend on welfare funds for their subsistence.

The unemployables are those who are not only out of work, but who could not work no matter how urgent jobs there might be available. These folks are either too aged, or suffering from some physical infirmity, or have some handicap that bars them from employment.

Before relief was placed on an organized basis, the unemployables were cared for by relatives or by private funds donated for such purposes. Nowadays the unemployables are included with the unemployed on the rolls.

HE'S BILINGUAL, TOO.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

COMMENTING upon "the trouble" into which Major Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, got into recently in Canada over the language question as the result of some remarks in a speech in Montreal, a columnist, "Peterborough," in The Daily Telegraph of London, England, points out the interesting fact that Major Murray himself comes of a bilingual Canadian stock—though in this case the other language is not French but Gaelic. He adds: "He told me once that his grandfather spoke no English, his father only broken English."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 30. — (C. P.) — Wheat prices were strong on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with support from southern interests where weather conditions in the United States winter wheat belt were unfavorable. Light export investments also helped. Rise prices in a dull session and at the close values were 3¼-2½ cents higher with May at $1.33⅜, July $1.29¾-⅞ and October $1.18¾-¼.

Prices touched the high-points in late trading and gains of more than two cents were noted.

Southern investment buying predominated in October wheat during mixed operations which found offerings light. Although exporters offered support it did not appear to represent actual export of Canadian wheat.

International Nickel pushed forwards to pass the 59 mark for a net gain of better than three points while Smelters added about 4 points. Hudson Bay and Noranda about two points each and gains of 10 to 25 cents were boarded for Sherritt, Coast Copper, Pend Oreille, Sudbury Basin, Waite-Amulet and Aldermac. Ventures and Chromium firmed a few cents each. Eldorado had a gain of 25 cents and Castle was steady.

Senior golds were strong from the opening and at the close net advances of 1 to 2 points were showing for Dome, Lake Shore and McIntyre.

Successful

The Coronation tea and Open House held at the King George School on Wednesday afternoon under auspices of the Home and School Association was a largely-attended and interesting event. Many parents took advantage of the opportunity to visit the children in their classrooms and see them at work and the teachers welcomed those who came to view the artistic display of clever handiwork. The guests were met at the top of the stairs by Mrs. E. Barry and Mrs. G. Eason, who directed them to the various rooms.

Afternoon tea was served later in the Kindergarten room, where the ladies were received by the president of the Home and School Association, Mrs. M. Swanston, and the vice-president, Mrs. C. Chapman. Arrangements, which were in charge of Mrs. J. Burgess and her committee, were carried out in line with the Coronation season.

Tea was poured by Mrs. E. Wand and Mrs. L. Eastwood, assisted by Mesdames Ian McRae, W. Welch, D. Miller, C. English, M. Cullen, H. Strickland.

During the tea hour, a pleasing program was given, including piano music by Miss Musa Cox and Miss Elva Throop and numbers by Miss Muriel Wilson's Rhythm Band, consisting of twenty little tots from the Kindergarten, led by little Marie Derry, and arrayed in trim little suits with capes and hats of red and blue. The children pleased the ladies immensely with their clever playing.

57th Regiment
Chapter's Anniversary

Celebrating in brilliant fashion the Silver Jubilee of the foundation in Peterborough of the senior chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, the members of the 57th Regiment Chapter welcomed scores of guests on Thursday afternoon in the recently-decorated and re-constructed Officers' Quarters at the Armories, where the pleasant spacious rooms form an admirable centre for social gatherings.

Among the ladies received by the regent of the chapter, Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, and Mrs. Dewart, wife of the C. O., Lt.-Col. J. A. Dewart, were several of the charter members and former regents of the organization: Mrs. Joseph Mills, Mrs. J. H. Eastwood, Mrs. L. Eastwood, Miss M. Higgins.

Mrs. R. E. Birdsall, one of the senior I.O.D.E. members of the district, and Mrs. Everett Birdsall, came from Birdsalls' for the occasion. Mrs. S. F. M. Tourelburn was down from Lakefield, and a group from Lindsay included the regent of the Lindsay chapter, Mrs. J. A. McLaughlin, with Mrs. F. S. Vrooman, Mrs. R. Harpur and Miss E. Neelands.

The Coronation colors so popular at the moment formed a glowing and beautiful floral centerpiece for the tea-table, in rich red carnations, blue iris and white gysophilia, filling a low silver bowl in which were placed also red, white and blue candles. A white Irish damask cloth was used, with silver services.

Tea was poured by Mrs. W. Sharpe and Mrs. R. E. Clarke, assisted by Mrs. C. H. Stuart, Mrs. G. R. Melton, Mrs. W. H. Ashby, Mrs. B. Cutmore, Mrs. V. Tully and Mrs. L. Groombridge.

Tea room arrangements were supervised by Mrs. D. A. Loomis, Mrs. R. Cottrell, Mrs. W. Hughes and Mrs. R. E. Clarke, and the ladies were ushered by Mrs. R. F. Poole and Miss Ida Wesley. A gift table, with parcels wrapped in white and silver, was in charge of Mrs. E. T. Lush, Mrs. P. G. Wallace and Mrs. P. G. Mann. Miss M. Rogers was treasurer.

The handsome rooms have recently been done over and re-constructed in a fashion that affords plenty of space for various activities. The former Sergeants' Mess and dining-hall have been converted into a large, long room where Badminton may be played and social affairs held. The floor is beautifully finished and the walls are done in the two-tone combination of warm buff and French ivory, with deep brown woodwork, which is used also in the other rooms. The curtains here, provided by the Badminton club are of homespun in warm Autumn tints. In the other large rooms, curtains are of mahogany silk slub material, very beautiful and rich-looking, and the walls have been all done over. A commodious kitchen is spotless and well-lighted and the dining-room, gun room and large club room are also handsomely appointed.

Among those who signed the register yesterday for the Silver Anniversary tea, in addition to those already mentioned, were Mesdames W. H. Hill, C. D. Mathias, G. A. Macdonald, W. McKee, J. Marsh, J. M. Gemmell, Langford, W. A. Greenslade, W. R. Morris, C. H. Rogers, S. J. Graham, N. M. Henry, J. Hull, O. R. Melton, T. A. S. Hay, G. T. Melton, Sr., H. Dodds, J. A. Cridland, C. H. McWilliams, J. ANCIENT ORDNANCE BUILDING LEVELLED

Historic Structure At Halifax Declared Unsafe, Given Over To Wreckers

HALIFAX, April 30 (CP).—Built during the dark days of the Anglo-American war, when Halifax was the key position in the struggle between Britain and the fledgling United States, the old "A" storehouse on Ordnance Wharf, Upper Water Street, has been razed.

Following an official inspection some time ago, the building was declared condemned, and the 125-year-old structure was torn down. Only the clock tower, in which is Halifax's famous military clock, has been saved.

Because of crumbling walls and settling foundations, it would have been impossible to save the building without a total renovation, the Department of National Defence, to whom it belonged, declared.

Although batteries were placed near the site of the building as early as 1760, when Halifax was already 50 years old, the storehouse dates back only to about 1812. In the century and a quarter which have elapsed since then, Halifax has played an important part in many events which were of world-wide importance; the war of 1812, the struggle for responsible government, the Crimean War, the Boer War. In Halifax are buried many victims of the Titanic's sinking.

Then the cataclysmic disaster of the World War, directly responsible for the greatest single loss which accident has ever exacted in Canada's history. Haligonians will never forget the blinding, searing, rumbling chaos of the Halifax explosion, in which nearly 1,800 people were known to be killed. Even today, twenty years after, the queenly old seaport city bears scars of the explosion, and the holocaust which followed.

Then, the Armistice, and the gradual rebuilding of the city which had been laid low in the folly of war. Through all this the old Ordnance storehouse went, and merged unscathed, only to meet its end at the hands of the wreckers' gang.

Tobacco acreage has been greatly increased in Wexford, Irish Free State.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta.

FAITH is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.—Hebrews.

I have been asked by "Katherine" to write once more on faith, so I'll do my best, and here is one taken from the Book which tells us more about faith than any other.

I know how easy it is for one's faith to get low, when things are done to you by those you love, when all your efforts seem to end in nothing, yet never forget there isn't a thing wasted, what you do meaning well, will eventually be well, and your faith restored again by someone.

And there is so very little we do unless by faith. We must have it to walk, to talk, to work, to travel, not a thing can we do without it. But the trouble is we have a tendency to have more in the things we can see and touch and sometimes hear.

Yet in such a small thing as boiling vegetables for dinner, you never stop to think why the heat will cook them, you just have faith it will be done so that your food will be ready to eat. Then why not have faith in God, that He will do what is best for us, and that all things will work together for good to them that love God.

Tennyson tells us:

"Thou canst not prove thou art immortal—no,
Nor yet that thou art mortal . . .
For nothing worthy proving can be proven,
Nor yet disproven: wherefore thou be wise,
Cleave even to the sunnier side of doubt,
And cling to Faith beyond the forms of Faith."

England is being remapped.

down goes our spirits and down goes our belief.

We forget the One who notices a sparrow's fall, also sees that we shall not be left like that. Not one of us but loses it sometimes, not one of us but wonders what it is all about. What I marvel at is that there is so much of it when there are so many things around to break it altogether. When we see some of the four-flushers getting ahead reaping the benefit of those who are working so hard.

When we are those in power who are paid by us, assume that they are so much better, so much more entitled to the good things of life, grabbing all they can get, travelling around at our expense, then look at people as if they were mud if they ask that some of these good things come the way of the ones who pay the bills.

When we see some who never did an honest day's work in their lives lording it over those less fortunate, then our faith is inclined to get low.

Tennyson tell us:

"Thou canst not prove thou art immortal—no,
Nor yet that thou art mortal . . .
For nothing worthy proving can be proven,
Nor yet disproven: wherefore thou be wise,
Cleave even to the sunnier side of doubt,
And cling to Faith beyond the forms of Faith."

DOG CATCHING

Limited, told the committee the first intimation he had that his dog had been out was when Holland appeared at his door in the evening and said he saw the dog on the street that day. He demanded a dollar. Mr. Lewis said he refused to pay and received a summons which eventually cost him $5.

"Is the dog catcher entitled to ask for a dollar because he sees a dog at large?" Alderman James Dutton asked.

Penalty Owner Must Pay.

"I think he is," Chairman James Hamilton said. "It's a kind of penalty the dog owner must pay if he lets his dog out."

"These dogs are a nuisance," Alderman Gordon declared. "One of them dug a hole a foot across in my lawn," he said. "I have two hundred bulbs planted. If people want to keep dogs they should keep them in their own premises."

Alderman Max Sloan said: "I think Mr. Hardill is quite right. The law isn't quite fair."

"We've appointed a dog catcher and if he's going to do his duty he must enforce the by-law," Ald. Hamilton commented.

"He came to my office today and warned me my dog was running loose," Alderman Glover said. "I guess tomorrow I'll be up to pay a dollar."

As Mr. Hardill and Mr. Lewis left, Chairman Hamilton said: "We'll try to get a little consideration of some kind or other."

FROM GIRL TO WOMAN

GROWING girls are often sufferers from female irregularities, headache, backache or nervousness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the vegetable tonic to give your daughter at such times. Mrs. A. Clarke of 178 Catherine St. So., Hamilton, Ont., said: "When growing into womanhood I became pale and thin, had no pep, appetite suffered from headaches, pains in my back and cramps. Mother gave me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I took it until all troubles disappeared. Soon my appetite improved, I had better color and all pain as well as the nervous feeling disappeared. I think this Prescription is a splendid medicine for growing girls." Now sold in tablets or liquid $1.00

Final Respects Paid To Late Mrs. W. M. Graham At Lakefield

LARGE ATTENDANCE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 30. — Many friends of the late Mrs. W. M. Graham of Lakefield were present at the funeral on Thursday afternoon, April 29, to pay their last respects to one of Lakefield's outstanding personalities. Following a private service at the home, a public funeral service was held at 3 p.m. in St. John's Anglican Church, Lakefield. Rev. Mr. Creighton conducted the service.

Bouquets of cut flowers behind the altar in the chancel were presented by the members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church as a tribute to Mrs. Graham, who has been for years a member of this society. The selection, "Peace, Perfect Peace," played softly on the organ by Mrs. J. Todd, made a fitting prelude to the service. The hymn sung, "Safe home, safe home in port" and "Now the laborer's task is o'er" were chosen by the late Mrs. Graham before her death.

In his address, Rev. Creighton paid tribute to Mrs. Graham's interest in missionary enterprise connected with the church, and in all civic and educational activities. "She did many kind deeds," he said. "It is fitting, in the spring, when all nature is taking on new life, that Mrs. Graham should be called to a higher life."

Hon. G. N. Gordon, Messrs. V. J. McElderry, and Keith Lech of Peterborough, O. O. Connell of Arthur, Ont., and Reeve C. S. Tanner and Dr. A. S. Fraser of Lakefield acted as pall-bearers. Interment was made in Lakefield Cemetery.

Mrs. Graham, who before her marriage was Susan Elizabeth Finlay, died at 7.30 a.m. on Tuesday, April 27, in her 77th year. She was born in Goderich County, on January 13, 1861, a daughter of Margaret Braden and John Finlay. At the age of six she moved with her parents to Lakefield, where she resided until her death. As a girl Mrs. Graham attended school in Lakefield and later in Peterborough qualified as a teacher. She taught in the local Public School for a year (about 1880) before her marriage.

Built Viamede Hotel.

In 1881 she became the wife of William M. Graham, a prominent dry goods merchant in Lakefield. Mr. and Mrs. Graham built the Viamede Hotel, a popular summer resort at Mount Julian, and for many years operated it successfully. Mrs. Graham will be remembered by patrons from both United States and Canada, as the charming chatelaine of that fashionable Stoney Lake resort.

Mrs. Graham has been a splendid type of citizen. Public-spirited, and keenly interested in education, she was for several years a member of the Public School Board in Lakefield. She showed great interest in the work of pupils, and rejoiced with them when any former pupil of the school achieved distinction in the outer world.

The deceased was a woman of great natural gifts. The descendant of a Scottish line, her ready wit indicated a strain of Irish ancestry, of which she was very proud. Although of aristocratic tastes, her strong democratic views made her a friend of all classes. She was a gracious hostess, and a finished platform speaker, her quaint charm of manner winning many converts to any cause she supported. She had fine literary tastes and during her life travelled extensively through Canada, maintaining an unswerving loyalty to her country and to the British Crown. She was a strong Imperialist, and keenly interested in Canadian and provincial politics. During her life she took an active part in several political campaigns, taking the platform on numerous occasions in aid of the Liberal cause which she staunchly supported.

Helped During Great War.

During the Great War she devoted some time to enlisting aid for soldiers overseas, and later was instrumental by her sponsorship and her generous donations in the erection of the local Cenotaph.

She was a woman of strong likes and dislikes, and true to the nature of her Highland forebears, she was a loyal friend to anyone whom she considered worthy of her confidence.

For years a member of St. John's Anglican Church and of the Women's Auxiliary, she generously supported all missionary enterprise connected with them. She was a nature-lover and a horticulturist, never failing to share the flowers from her garden with her friends. During the long winter months, many an invalid has received with delight a pot of hyacinth or daffodils from Mrs. Graham's own garden. She used often to say, "Flowers for the living, but not for the dead."

Mrs. Graham was a woman of indomitable spirit, unfailing loyalty, and noble ideals; and there are few persons in Lakefield who have not at one time or another benefitted by one of the many kind deeds she delighted in doing.

Mrs. Graham's husband predeceased her about seventeen years ago. An only daughter Blanche, formerly Lakefield correspondent for The Peterborough Examiner for many years, died suddenly in 1935. A brother and a sister also predeceased her.

Out-of-town guests who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham and Mrs. Martin of Toronto, Mrs. E. Ianson and W. Ianson of Oshawa, Hon. and Mrs. G. N. Gordon, Mrs. K. G. Lech, K. Lech, and V. J. McElderry of Peterborough, and Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Connell of Arthur, Ont.

CITY YEARNS FOR PRINCE CHARMING AS CASTLE WAITS

Prize Suggested For Feasible Plan For Disposing Of Casa Loma

'MIXED' ARCHITECTURE

TORONTO, April 30—(CP) — The thing in Toronto today which, more than anything else, is forcing civic officials closer and ever closer to the fringe of madness is a huge feudal chateau with a mingling of French, Italian, Scottish and English styles of architecture—and a Spanish name.

The trouble is that the city, involuntarily, finds itself lord and master of the chateau and doesn't know what to do about it. In fact, the city for some years has been in a considerable frenzy not knowing what to do about it. They got it for arrears of taxes in February, 1934.

Quarter of a century old, the behemoth chateau originally was called "Casa Loma" which in Spanish means "the house on the hill." what it has been called since has brought on one libel action and has divided people into two opposing ideological blocs, just like communism and fascism. Only there doesn't seem to be any middle-of-the-road on this question.

First there is the group who write poems and letters to the newspapers praising the picturesque glory of the turrets, towers and battlements of Casa Loma. They rise in arms as one man when city council proposes to wreck the building because it is too big, too expensive to maintain and cannot be put to any immediate practical use. Then the newspapers are flooded with purplish poems and letters which bristle with righteous indignation and Elizabethan eloquence.

There is also the anti-Casa Loma party. When its members are not feeling too bitter they refer to the building as Chateau Pellatt, after Sir Henry Pellatt who built it just before the war at a cost of $1,700,000 and spent another million furnishing it.

But they have other words and phrases for the house on the hill. For example, here are some of the names a casual glance over the records show: A mediaeval mongrel, an anachronism, a romantic affectation, a freak, a throwback to the days of pouring hot lead and boiling oil, a fake, a phony, Calamity House and many another.

Cost Fortune to Run

During his years of tenancy, Sir Henry Pellatt, who once took a regiment to England at his own expense to participate in military manoeuvres, paid $6,000 a year for coal, $12,000 in property taxes and $20,000 for servants. He moved out in 1923. After that there were unsuccessful attempts to operate the place as an apartment hotel and as a swank club. The depression spoiled both after another couple of million dollars had been spent. Then chaos.

After he moved out and suffered some financial reverses, Sir Henry in 1927 sued the London Evening Standard for libel in an article which referred to Casa Loma as "Pellatt's Folly." The paper published an apology. The million-dollar collection of furniture and art objects he purchased for Casa Loma has been scattered over the earth, result of an auction sale. His dream house has turned into a night-mare.

Sir Henry himself hoped Casa Loma should someday become a military institute or a public museum, possibly a war museum. In the course of its history Casa Loma has been recommended for transformation into a hospital, a military barracks, a war veterans home, a hostel for the unemployed, an art gallery, a pension home for aged artists, writers and musicians, and a railway station. It also has been recommended for oblivion.

Sir E. Wyly Grier, the portrait painter, has suggested that a prize of $10,000 be offered to anyone who can lay down a sensible proposal for making some use of Casa Loma.

Latest brain wave for putting the chateau on a paying basis was that of Alderman Percy Quinn, dog fancier and sportsman. Quinn proposed that the Dionne quintuplets be brought down to Toronto from their nursery at Callander and installed at Casa Loma. Then other sections of the baronial structure, with corridors half a city block long, could be rented to concessionaires and the place would become a tourist attraction. The plan would have brought together six of Canada's most astonishing creations—five beings the quints, Dr. A. H. Dafoe, physician guardian of the sisters, did not take kindly to the idea and it since has gone overboard.

So Casa Loma still sits on a hill overlooking a bread factory, being of no use to anyone except sweethearts who like to meet in the romantic shadow of its turrets on spring and summer nights.

KILLING CATTLE JUMP 25 CENTS TORONTO MART

Hog Prices Climb Ten Cents With Calves, Sheep, Lambs Holding Steady

TRADE SLACKENS AT CLOSE

TORONTO, April 30. —(CP)— Killing cattle advanced 25 cents on the Toronto livestock market this week, the Dominion livestock branch reported. Hog prices were about 10 cents higher while calves, sheep and lambs held near previous levels.

Under a light opening run, cattle trade was active and higher. Truck deliveries proved too heavy later in the week and closing trade slowed down, although prices were unchanged. Several loads of stockers from among the 500 western cattle offered were unsold at the close. The discount of $1 per head on horned cattle will become effective May 1.

Medium to good weighty steers sold at $7 to $8.25 with choice heavies at $8.35 to $8.75. Good butcher steers and heifers traded generally at $7.25 to $7.50, tops reaching $7.75. Common butchers were as low as $5.50.

Butcher cows generally sold downward from $5.50 with canners and cutters at $2.50 to $3.50. Good butcher bulls opened at a $5 top and closed with few above $4.75, while bolognas finished the period at $3.75 to $4.25. Fed calves retained initial gains, choice closing at $8 to $8.50, others downward to $6.50.

Shocker trade was dull and offerings mostly plain. Sales ranged from $4.25 to $5.25 for common to medium westerns with some better kinds up to $5.50. Milker and springer trade was slow and prices lower at $65 tops for tested kinds.

1,300 Go To Buffalo

Buffalo reported sales of about 1,300 Canadian cattle this week at prices steady to a shade lower than the previous week.

Calves held to previous levels but buyers were easier on sorting. Choice vealers sold generally at $9 to $9.50 with occasional tops up to $10. Common to medium eastern calves were plentiful, selling from $3 to $7.50 for the majority. Export shipments totalled 1,000 head.

Off-truck bacon hogs closed at $8.75 to $8.85 with long hauls up to 30 cwt. F.o.b. hogs were quoted at $8.50. Rail grades sold on a delivered basis of $11.50 to $11.65.

Lamb receipts included 2,200 from the west. Good feed-lot lambs were priced at $11 cwt. with others as low as $8.50.

Spring lambs moved slowly at $6 to $7.50 each and some 70-pound fat lambs brought $10. Sheep were steady at $6 cwt for best wool ewes with top clips at $5 cwt.

CORONATION TEA IS HUGE SUCCESS

Women's Association Of St. John's Church Provides Pleasing Program

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 30.—The monthly gathering of the St. John's Women's Association took the form of a Coronation meeting and was held in the parlors of the church on Thursday afternoon.

English tea was served at the culmination of the program with Mrs. M. S. Mowat and Mrs. A. Hazel acting as convenors. The parlors were appropriately decorated with flowers by the committee in charge of the meeting which included Mrs. R. Melville, Mrs. Wilde, Mrs. Thomas Varcoe, and Mrs. Charles Davidson.

Following the regular business portion of the meeting which was conducted by the president, Mrs. Charles K. Stephens an interesting program was presented including a brief discourse by Mrs. A. L. Malcolm who told of her trip by air into Northern Ontario and a sketch by Mrs. Ed. Roberts on the life of King George VI. A patriotic chorus by six boys was followed by a splendid description of the Coronation beginning with the procession as it would leave Westminster Abbey and describing many of the highlights of the ceremony to be conducted on May 12. A piano solo by Miss G. Neale and a vocal solo by Miss Alva Mowat brought the meeting to a close.

Square of Red and Gold

Parliament Square, which underwent one transformation with the erection of stands at every vantage point, has undergone another one. The huge central stands have been draped with red, gold and blue cloths. The overhanging edges of the canopies have a pattern of red and gold.

Special decoration effects are planned for the quadrant in Regent Street, for Charing Cross and the entrance from Whitehall into Parliament Square. At the Quadrant a series of long blue banners will be hung, surrounded by white and gold flags with scarlet borders.

In medieval days shopkeepers welcomed their king by hanging pieces of brocade out of their windows. This custom will be revived by hanging squares of scarlet material from windows in the Quadrant.

Charing Cross will boast what looks like a maypole. The statue of Charles I. will be surrounded by masts carrying banners. At the foot of Whitehall there will be a huge archway, consisting of two 60-foot masts carrying a large streamer and with banners surmounted on crosstrees.

Flood-lighting will lend new beauty to famous buildings and to London Parks. The Houses of Parliament and Big Ben, Buckingham Palace, the Nelson Column and other historic structures will be visible alike by day and night.

RED CROSS SEEKS $250,000 IN FUNDS

sheets of their homes. No evacuations were reported.

Meanwhile, 75 miles up the stream stricken London began another day of work to bring a semblance of normality to a city of 2,000 damaged homes and 6,000 refugees. Some there were who found no home to return to—they had been swept away as the height of the flood last Monday night.

The situation in all parts of the flood area appeared definitely better to-day. Swollen rivers were fast returning to normal proportions. Sunny weather prevailed. Thamesville, which Wednesday night saw 500 of its 800 inhabitants flee their homes as the river rushed through the town 15 miles upstream from Chatham, reported streets still a foot or more under water. Wednesday night, they were six feet under.

Somewhat incongruous amid the desolation of West London, with refugees encamped in the armories, police and relief agencies working night and day to bring order out of chaos, streets damaged, homes wrecked, was a routine report from the income tax office. It said a $4,000,000 cheque for a tax payment had been received. Three cheques totalling nearly $1,000,000 were taken in Wednesday.

Only 10 Homes Damaged.

No more than 10 houses in Chatham were damaged seriously and only about 50 persons were forced to evacuate as the water crept up to windows in low-lying areas. A railway bridge weakened under the flood's pounding and schools had to be dismissed because of the possibility of a disaster like London's. But, as City Manager-Engineer T. M. S. Kinnston reported, Chatham was "lucky."

A warm sun played on the river yesterday and then water started to drop. The change was slow—a fall of only six inches in 11 hours—but was steady.

Officials at the waterworks, near where the Thames enters Chatham, said they were confident they had seen the worst. The water was 18 feet above normal and is trickled through a wall of sandbags or seeped through the earth to enter the plant but the city's supply of drinking water was not affected.

"Things look rosy now," said O. J. S. Butler this morning. "We're still on 24-hour duty but we expect to be able to take it a little easier before long."

A near-disaster occurred when an abutment of the Pere Marquette Railway bridge, near the waterworks gave way just after a freight train had crossed yesterday. P. M. R. officials closed the structure for repairs and to await the flood's lessening after that.

In the south end of the city Indian Creek, skirting the limits and hitting the Thames below Chatham, overran its banks and flooded several roads, including those connecting the city with No. 3 highway.

The Maple City's principal concern was in the welfare of persons in outlying districts, where the mad Thames poured through fields and forced many persons to leave their properties.

Find Stock Drowned.

Thamesville and Kent Bridge upstream villages, reported the worst of the trouble over and farmers in the district went home to find livestock drowned and early plantings ruined.

Industry slowed again today in London as water for 800 factories was cut off as an emergency measure by the Public Utilities Commission to conserve water for drinking and cleaning purposes. A weary army of householders and city workmen returned to mud-smirched streets in West London, Brouhdale and Chelsea Green to continue the gigantic job of bringing order and cleanliness out of chaos.

The 5,000 left homeless were heartened by Dominion-wide efforts on their behalf launched by the Red Cross organization in its appeal for $250,000 to succor them. Dr. F. W. Routley, director of the Ontario division, toured the stricken districts with Capt. D. M. Weldon and found conditions "appalling." He immediately launched the widespread appeal, declaring the amount would be needed to rehabilitate the sufferers.

700 PASSENGERS REMOVED

GLASGOW—More than 700 passengers were removed in lifeboats today after the steamship Dalriada ran aground in a fog at Dunure, near Ayr. Authorities hoped to refloat the 758-ton ship at high tide. She was enroute to Ayr from Campbeltown, Island of Kintyre.

Cries Of Baby Save Family

WELLAND—Cries of a nine months old baby probably saved the lives of Rev. David Benson and Mrs. Benson at Suburban Electric Park early today. Awakened by the crying of his son, the clergyman, pastor of the Church of the Open Door, discovered the kitchen of his home ablaze and smoke pouring through the house.

The two local boys will be in competition with similar teams from newspapers in Niagara Falls, Owen Sound, St. Catharines and Galt, and the winning team from this group will have the honor of journeying to the Fourth Annual Convention of the Ontario-Quebec Circulation Managers at Three Rivers which opens for a three-day session on May 8, to compete against Quebec newspaper teams with a chance of going to the annual International Circulation Managers' Association salesmanship demonstration at Milwaukee in June.

ST JOHN'S WINS DRAMA CONTEST FOR SECOND YEAR

Three Branches Compete In District A.Y.P.A. Dramatic Contest

SILVER CUP AWARDED

The Anglican Young People's Association of St. John's Church, Peterborough, won the silver cup in the annual Dramatic Contest held by the A.Y.P.A. branches of the district, staged on Thursday night in the parish hall of All Saints' Church, with three branches competing: St. Luke's, Peterborough, St. John's, Lakefield, and St. John's, Peterborough.

The trophy went for a second successive year to St. John's, Peterborough, as they were winners of last year's contest.

There was a very appreciative audience that applauded to the full the talented presentation of the three plays, all of the one-act variety.

Judges were Miss Cathleen McCarthy of The Examiner, Harold Rahill of Trinity United Church, and James Price of All Saints' Church. Miss McCarthy announced the decision and outlined the major aspects of the acting, and the cup was presented by Roland Krant, president of the District Council of the A.Y.P.A. Mrs. Otto Laderach acted as announcer in place of Jack Marshall, convenor of the District Dramatic contest, who was unable to be present.

The cast in the winning play, entitled "The Jewelled Hand," was as follows: Miss Viola Clarke, as Anne Andrews; Miss Florence Hutchinson, as Alice Ambrose; Miss Rose Puddick, as Clare Colling; Miss Norma Pammett, as Molly, the maid; Arthur Kidd, as Blair Burns; Vic Coleman, as Ware Waring; Ken Hoard, as Policeman Kelly. Director: Miss Florence Hutchinson.

This was a melodramatic drama, centering about stolen jewels and a murder with a queer maniacal complex. Vic Coleman did some startlingly fine acting as the murderous thief.

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. chose "Aunt Harriet's Night Out," as their offering, a rather thin little playlet with a theme in the predicament of two young people who are trying to escape the argus eyes of a visiting aunt.

Miss Muriel Krant enacted the role of Helen Howe, with Bernard Pammett as her husband, Wardmarth Howe, a young playwright. Miss Eva Patterson was Aunt Harriet, and Ralph Mason was a bellhop. Directors: Miss Queenie Hope and Miss Jean McCauley.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church, Lakefield, presented "His First Shave," a gay bit of nonsense that had a very likeable aspect of extremely natural acting by the cast, with John Creighton in the central role of Derek Morton, having his first shave; Gordon Hampton, as his father, Morton Senior; Miss 'Pat' Earnshaw, as Mrs. Morton; Miss Vi Hudson as Clara Morton, in a sippy role, and Miss Alice Chappell as Janet, a visitor. Director: Miss Grace Watson, assisted by Mrs. W. Chappell.

FLOOD FUND OPENED.

TORONTO—Provincial command of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada has opened a fund for relief of distressed war veterans in the flood areas of western Ontario. First contribution was $500 from the Dominion command of the organization at Ottawa.

A committee of officers from London, Woodstock and Aylmer branches will be named to administer the fund.

James Burgess Appointed Assistant City Engineer

Have Charge Of Duties For Which Harry Evans Was Responsible

SUE RAILWAYS?

James Burgess, former Trent Valley Canal engineer, was appointed street commissioner and assistant to the City Engineer by the Board of Works at a meeting last evening. The apointment will be effective May 5th.

Filling a new post on the city payroll, Mr. Burgess will have charge of duties for which Harry Evans was responsible before retirement some years ago. He will be available for assistance of City Engineer R. H. Parsons in connection with general Board of Works projects. Board of Works members have long had the appointment under consideration, feeling necessary work in the City Engineer's department has been getting behind for lack of an assistant.

A starting salary of $1,800 was agreed upon by the Board.

Alderman Malcolm McIntyre suggested the salary be fixed at $1,500.

"If he is not worth $1,800 he is not worth anything," Mayor Macdonald said.

"He is a very capable man," Alderman Glover said.

G. G. Torrance, now a worker in the Relief Department, was appointed material clerk at the Board of Works yards, effective May 10. He will receive $20 a week.

Hot Air Heating

The Board agreed to change plans for the new rest room at King Edward Park to permit installation of hot air heating. No action was taken on a discussion of installation of hot air heating at the Inverlea building. Expensive reconstruction would be necessary, it was said.

Members of the Board complained that the railway crossings in the city are in poor shape.

"I move how that if work is not begun in 10 days by the railways on the crossings designated by the City Engineer, the City Solicitor start proceedings against the railways," Mr. Gordon said. "They are responsible under the Railway Act."

Alderman Juby declared the practice of the Roy M. Andrews trucking firm is using space on city streets at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets for their unloading and transhipping should be halted immediately. "While the C.N.R. has made a huge investment in erection of freight sheds just across the corner for handling of its freight, the trucking company uses the city streets at no cost right in front of the railway's door, he said. He charged the Andrew's trucks are constantly parked on the street and are a menace to traffic. A serious accident may occur at some time when the Fire Department is attempting to get its trucks past the blockade, he suggested.

LIMIT SUGAR EXPORTS

LONDON — A plenary session of the International Sugar Conference today approved plans to stabilize sugar prices through limitation of exports in a free world market to a figure reliably reported to have been set at 3,670,000 tons annually. Quotas for individual countries were kept secret by unanimous agreement of the delegates.

A new hospital which has cost more than $5,000,000 has been opened by Cairo, Egypt on the banks of the Nile with 2,500 beds and provision for treating over 10,000 patients a day.

A meeting of the Property committee of the City Council has been called for Saturday evening at 5 o'clock for the purpose of clearing the slate preparatory to Monday night's regular meeting of the council.

The Board of Works had a large gang of men at work to-day cleaning out the street catch basins and removing the accumulation of debris that had gathered since last fall. It is all part of the annual spring clean-up.

STEAM TURBINE IN USE.

Although the high water has caused a decrease in electric production at the C.G.E. power houses on the river, the shortage has been taken care of by making use of the company's steam turbine.

MAY BE BAD START.

The trout-fishing season opens to-morrow, Saturday, but local enthusiasts do not seem to be enthusiastic as to the prospects for a record-breaking start. The reason is the heavy rainfall of the last few days which has swollen the trout streams to much more than their usual volume.

SITE IS SELECTED.

At a meeting of the special committee of the council and representatives of the Kiwanis club at King Edward Park last night a site was selected for the Kiwanis wading pool. It was decided to build it near the new rest room. The sand box will be moved to another point in the park.

SENATE TAKES THE AIR.

The Senate that has been gathering daily all winter in the office of the market clerk, where affairs of moment have been expertly debated has taken to the open air as a result of arrival of warmer weather. This morning the members occupied a place in the sun as they discussed the issues of the day.

NEW LAWYER IN CITY.

W. Russell Philp has taken over the legal practice of the late Bernard E. Park. Mr. Philp was born at Colborne in the neighboring county of Northumberland. He is an honor graduate in commerce and finance of University of Toronto. A graduate of Osgoode Hall, Toronto in 1934 he has been practising law since that time at Brighton, Ontario.

FOREMEN ON HOSPITAL LIST.

The city works department is being hit by casualties among its foremen. Mike Depelham was the victim of an accident last Saturday and has been unable to report for duty since, while this morning General Foreman John Thirnbeck was taken suddenly ill and had to receive medical attention. As a result the storm drain program which was scheduled to open to-day has been held up for the time being.

TAX BELONGS TO CITY.

An injustice in the operation of the gasoline tax was bemoaned by members of the Finance committee Thursday evening as they gave consideration to a request of the Peterborough Bus Company for renewal of the lease on the car barns. Laurie Mitchell, manager, pointed out his company pays about $2,400 a year in gasoline taxes for the privilege of operating its buses solely on Peterborough's streets. The tax should be paid to the City of Peterborough, not the Province members agreed. Efforts in the past to have the tax diverted have failed, it was said.

ASSISTANCE SOUGHT.

Aldermen Wilson and Gordon were appointed to interview the Board of Works in reconstruction of the courts of the Peterborough Tennis Club was asked by a delegation headed by Dr. A. W. McPherson at the meeting of the Finance Committee on Thursday evening. The matter was referred to the Board for a report. A request by three members of the Peterborough Cricket Club that a small shelter for the Cricket Club equipment be provided at Nicholls Oval was referred to the Parks Committee.

TOURIST CAMP.

The subject of establishing a tourist camp on the Riverside Park grounds again came up for discussion by the Manufacturers' Committee of the City Council on Thursday evening, but no action was taken. Chairman R. M. Glover pointed out that the Exhibition Grounds is already being advertised as the tourist ground for this year, and urged that the city use this season to make ready the Riverside Camp rather than attempt an immediate switch-over of accommodations. Other members foresaw difficulties in use of Riverside by reason of its flooding late during the summer for baseball.

CORONATION MUSIC.

The many local friends of Dr. Charles Peaker, former local organist, will be interested in learning that his choir at the Walmer Road Baptist church, Toronto, will broadcast the Coronation music on May 4th at 10 p.m. daylight saving time and some of the works will be sung for the first time in Canada. This is a broadcast arranged by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and among the numbers to be sung will be Vaughan Williams' "Te Deum" which will receive its first public performance at the hands of Mr. Peaker's choir. Geoffrey Waddington's orchestra will assist.

SEEK REDUCTION OF KEY FIRE RATE

Fire, Water And Light Committee Preparing Data For Underwriters

Data is now being prepared for an effort to obtain a lowering of Peterborough's fire insurance key rate, Alderman Roland Wilson, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, said Thursday evening. A delegation will be sent to appear before the Underwriters, in Toronto.

The suggestion that the city's key rate of 50 cents a thousand should be lowered first arose when local fire losses hit a record low of $6,-166.93 in 1936. Fire Chief George Gimblett urged that the key rate be given attention in his report for last year, pointing out that the 20-year fire loss period affected by $2,000,000 Quaker Oats fire in 1916 had expired with the result a more favorable picture of the Peterborough fire risk is now afforded. Reduction of the key rate to 30 cents or 25 cents would save local purchasers of fire insurance many thousands of dollars a year, the Chief pointed out.

Alderman Wilson and his committee have been giving the matter close study and will be ready to make their representation to the Underwriters at an early date.

The committee gave Alderman Wilson authority to go ahead with installation of traffic lights at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets, if possible, the lights at the intersections of Hunter and Water streets and George and Hunter will be put on the same control and the spare control will be used for the west end installation.

FARMER IS FINED FOR DRIVING HORSE WHILE INTOXICATED

Also Pleads Guilty Of Cruelty To Animal And Given Additional Fine

SAID VERY BAD CASE

Ernest Redmond, Otonabee Township farmer, was fined $25 and $4 costs or 15 days' imprisonment in default when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Friday) morning to being drunk in charge of a horse and wagon.

On a second charge of cruelty to a horse, to which he also entered a plea of guilty, he was fined an additional $10 and $1.75 costs with the option of 5 days' imprisonment in default.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall describing it as "a very bad case," told the court that about 7.45 p.m. Thursday, Redmond drove his wagon for several city blocks beating his horse all the way. At James street, it was stated, the horse and wagon crashed through a wire fence. The horse got away and when caught by police was found to be in a "muck" sweat.

After listening to the police version of the affair, Redmond remarked: "The breeching broke and I couldn't stop the horse."

"The accused was hopelessly drunk when brought in," the Chief Constable observed.

Asked to plead to the second charge of cruelty which was laid on the information of Thomas Johnston, V.S., an Inspector of the Royal Humane Society, the accused pleaded guilty but declared "I don't remember anything of that. Where was I at the time?"

"There is no doubt in the world that the horse was in an awful mess. When Dr. Johnston got there an hour later it was still steaming," the Chief said.

Inspector Johnston stated: "From my information Redmond was cruel to his horse by running it and beating it on the highway. I was called an hour later and found the horse still steaming and trembling. It had three welts on it." He urged the Magistrate, "I want you to be as severe as possible with this fellow on account of him being drunk."

Prince Of Wales Wins School Game

In an abbreviated School Softball League scheduled contest yesterday at Prince of Wales, the Queen Mary squad bowed before Prince of Wales team by a 24-14 score. It was a wide-open slugfest with sloppy fielding and poor pitching by the most part. The Prince of Wales' nine ran wild to tally 12 runs in the second heat and went on an 11-run splurge again in the fourth. The tilt was called at the last part of the fifth stanza. It was a Junior division game in this league. The teams:

Prince of Wales — Crowe, p; Doughty, c; Gardner, 1b; Mottram, 2b; Henry, 3b; Parnall ss; Harrison, lf; Braund, cf; Saunders, rf.

BUS RATES ARE TO BE STUDIED BY COMMITTEE

Peterborough Bus Lines Asks Five-Year Lease On Car Barns

DOING BETTER NOW

Peterborough bus rates will be studied by a special committee of the City Council to determine the wisdom of seeking a reduction according to a decision of the Finance Committee last evening.

The matter arose when Laurie Mitchell, manager of the Peterborough Bus Lines, appeared before the committee to ask for a 5-year renewal of the company's lease of the car barns at the past rate of $300 a year. The company's franchise was renewed last year but the lease on the barns expires this year, Mr. Mitchell said.

"How about reducing your fares to six cents if we renew your lease?" Alderman G. N. Gordon asked. "You're doing pretty well now."

Doing Better

"We're doing better now than during the depression but still not very good," Mr. Mitchell replied. He said the company has a heavy burden by reason of the necessity of paying about $2,400 gasoline tax a year to the province for use of the buses on Peterborough's streets; $1,500 for licenses and large sums for public liability insurance for its vehicles. No local taxi firm competing with the bus company carries such insurance, he said.

Mr. Gordon moved that the mayor and the chairmen of the Property and Finance Committees study the advisability of renewing the lease and the matter of the company's bus rates. The committee adopted that proposal.

POLICE ASLEEP NO REAL EFFORT TO CURB SALES

Food Distributors Ask Province To Assist In Enforcing Lord's Day Act

MAYOR AIDED GUILTY

TORONTO, April 30.—Druggists are chiselling, police have been sleeping, Mayor Robbins recommended lawlessness and newspapers are untruthful, Henry Findlay, president of the Ontario Retail Tobacconists Association, told members of the Retail Food Distributors' Association yesterday afternoon, in an impassioned address upon the ills of Sunday sales.

The association requested the Retail Merchants' Association to approach the Attorney-General asking him to declare a policy upon the question of Sunday selling that will reinforce police authorities.

They also urged the R.M.A. to "do any amendments" which would make legal "the wide-spread open everything in its power to oppose evasion of the spirit of the Lord's Day Act."

The convention declared its opinion that "any amendments which would tend to produce a seven-day week and wide-open Sunday" would "lower the physical standards of the thousands of retail store proprietors and clerks, who would be forced in self-defense to remain open if a seven-day week were introduced."

Earnings Small

"The majority of tobacconists are barely eking out a living, Mr. Findlay said. "All the majority of them are getting is less than $10 a week. But working about 100 hours wasn't enough. They had to stay open on Sundays to protect their business. Sunday is the druggists' big day of the week. They're chiselling on you and me.

"The head of one chain drug store told that if they sold only the legal medicines and drugs and equipment their sales wouldn't be $3 a Sunday. Instead they make $60 a Sunday.

Mr. Findlay discussed the recent anti-Sunday-selling drive, commenting, "Mayor Robbins kind of proved himself later on telling the people of Toronto to become, not law abiding, but lawless."

"Police Woke Up"

He said: "The police woke up to the fact that there's a law."

Of the press, Mr. Findlay added, "I wish our Toronto dailies would only tell the truth. I gave them repeated interviews and when I saw the story in the paper I couldn't recognize it. Front page news is what they want, whether it's truth or not." He stated they had ridiculed closer Sunday observance by declaring it might prevent sale of gasoline. The courts of Alberta have decided that gasoline is a "work of necessity," he said.

Earlier, C. H. Huestis, general secretary Lord's Day Alliance, addressed the meeting on the same question.

He said druggists had been "getting away with illegal business" all these years by bluffing that they would close entirely if restricted to sale of necessary drugs.

"I would be inclined to call that bluff," said Mr. Huestis. "The only fuss would be made by those who wanted to buy things that the other stores are forbidden to sell on Sundays."

ROCK FALL COSTS BOGARD MAN'S ARM

Phillip Rivers Is Caught Down Shaft And Badly Bruised—Amputation Necessary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 30. — Word has just been received of the experience of Phillip Rivers of Bogard, who barely escaped being killed last Saturday, while working at the Consolidated Copper and Sulphur Mine at Eustic, Quebec.

Rivers was employed in the shaft and a large rock fell some thirty feet, striking him on the arm and bruising his chest and face.

He was removed to the surface and rushed to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, at Sherbrooke, Que., where it was found necessary to amputate his arm just above the elbow.

Latest reports state that unless further complications set in, he will recover. His mother, Mrs. William Rivers, who operates the store at Bogart, was immediately called to Sherbrooke.

Wilfred LeSage states that the local General Motors distributors received the first car which went through the line at General Motors plant at Oshawa following the strike settlement. The car was built on Monday morning and was in the hands of the new owner in Tweed the same evening at seven o'clock.

Harry Baker, 42, of no known address, was arrested by Constable Clare Hayes and Constable Danford of Marlbank, near the village of Marlbank. It is alleged that Baker has been responsible for a number of recent break-ins in this territory within recent months. He will appear before Magistrate Lloyd.

Constable Hayes took into custody a Toronto man on Tuesday, who was charged with obtaining goods by false pretences.

George Deline of Scarboro Bluffs was sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate Butler on Thursday at Napanee, the sentence to date from the time of his arrest on March 30. At his trial Deline pleaded guilty to the theft of copper wire, the property of the Rich Rock Mining Company, and he was given until May 1 to make restitution. This he could not do and he asked the Magistrate to pronounce sentence.

London Family Finally Forced To Flee Inundated Home

Rapidly rising water at Chatham, Ont., 60 miles southwest of London, Ont., has caused more than 500 men, women and children to evacuate their homes and seek high and safer ground. Danger that drinking water may become polluted arose when flood water began seeping into the Chatham waterworks plant; more than 50 workmen were quickly enlisted to help stem the flow of muddy water. The flood, which began in the London district, has gradually moved in a southwestern direction, damaging such villages and towns as Thamesville and Glencoe and forcing hundreds of persons to flee from their homes. While flood water gradually receded at London, many persons were still homeless and nerve shaken by their experiences during height of the flood. This family, though they had moved upstairs to escape the water, was finally forced to accept aid from passing boatmen.

CAMPBELLFORD

AMATEUR COMEDY PLEASES AUDIENCE

Campbellford Talent Adds To Success Of St. Andrew's Mission Circle Play

CAMPBELLFORD, April 30.—The three-act comedy entitled "Calm Yourself" presented by the Young Ladies' Mission Circle of St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening could hardly fail to be a success containing such a list of well-known local talent as the program disclosed. The play was a riot from start to finish and although the absence of any plot may have been disappointing to those who prefer a heavier drama this was offset by the clever and witty dialogue of the fast moving scenes. The play is a satire on social climbers with Hazel Atkinson taking the part of the emotional and talented wife who is only retarded in her social success by the fact that she has an indifferent husband who thinks society is a joke and sets out to prove it to her when she attempts to entertain a leading socialite, much to the envy of her friends, all of whom make a play for him. Frank Roe takes the part of the disgruntled husband and father and although it is a heavy part which required good acting, he was equal to the occasion. The acting of Miss Atkinson truly indicated she was no stranger to amateur plays and from the point of comedy her part was only exceeded by Charles Allan whose impersonation of a female socialite was a scream. It was regrettable that Earl Stephens who played the hen-pecked husband of Charlie Allan was not given a bigger part but his work along with that of Geraldine McMullen, Mabel Dunk, Wallace Rutherford, Malcolm McKenzie, Ross Douglas and Marion McArthur made the play well worth seeing.

Between the acts vocal and piano numbers were given by Mrs. P. MacMillan and Mrs. R. McGee who sang a duet; Miss Ruth McCredie, vocal solo; Mrs. M. McFarland and Donald Bennett, piano solos.

GENERAL MOTORS ASKED TO HIRE MORE OSHAWA MEN

Company Executives To Confer With Shop "Grievance" Committee

COHEN TO BE THERE

OSHAWA, April 30.—Claiming to have grievances they want ironed out, the union shop committee of General Motors will meet with the company executive this afternoon. The grievances said to have arisen since the men went back to work Monday morning were aired at a stewards' meeting last night at United Automobile Workers' headquarters.

Chief complaint to be laid before General Motors executives is that men from out of town are being employed and that local men are not being given a chance, stewards said. The shop committee will ask that Oshawa men be given first opportunity for jobs, for many previous employees of the company are jobless and living on relief.

Would Reduce Relief

"When we obtained the 44-hour week and provision for time and a half overtime, we realized that the company would take on more men in an effort to offset overtime work," one member of the shop committee said. "We naturally thought that the company would hire Oshawa men and reduce the relief rolls for relief is costly to all Oshawa taxpayers."

"But at the stewards' meeting last night we have had many complaints that mostly out of town men are being hired. Some have come here from as far west as Ingersoll and as far east as Napanee and have obtained jobs," this man said.

"We are not so particular about the overtime because nine hours in that plant is enough for any man."

Rest Periods Reduced.

Another grievance has been brought up by the girls who claim that since the union obtained five minute rest periods for men, the rest periods for girls has been cut to the same time. Before the girls had ten minute rest periods.

Other stewards charge that union employees in some departments are being discriminated against by foremen who are alleged to be taking out a grudge on the men over the strike. This too will be brought before company officials.

J. L. Cohen, union lawyer, is to accompany the shop committee this afternoon.

CHURCH LAUDED FOR ITS STAND IN AUTO STRIKE

Helped To Maintain Order Lay Delegate Tells Anglican Synod

COUNCIL PRAISED

TORONTO, April 30.—The church played an important part through its influence in maintaining the law and order during the recent General Motors strike, S. G. Cornell lay delegate from Oshawa told the Anglican Synod of Toronto at its meeting here.

"The times of trouble are past, and there were troublous times, but I want to tell this synod that the church had a great influence for good," he said.

The annual report of A. Calloway, president of the diocesan laymen's council, was presented last night and stressed the need for a wider spread of church information.

"When you want some work done give it to the man in your parish to do," urged Rev. J. H. Dixon, M.A., of Grace Church-on-the-Hill. He said that too often it was the custom to look for help from the most willing workers—the women—and he urged that the men be made to carry their burden.

Archbishop Owen said he did not believe the laymen's council was simply a money-raising organization, but it was doing a great work in spreading the story of the church.

THAMES 'WRITES' WORST CHAPTER ERRATIC HISTORY

Banks, Scene Of Tecumseh's Last Stand, Still Yield War Trophies

FROM WAR OF 1812

CHATHAM, Ont., April 30, (CP)—The River Thames receded to-day after accomplishing the worst chapter of destruction in its erratic career. But even as riverside dwellers from here to London counted the damage of a devastating flood in millions of dollars, the Thames was writing only secondary history.

Placid in summer and turbulent in spring, the river sometimes gives up pieces of gun-boats. Once in a while a bather stumbles over an iron cannon-ball on the muddy bottom and frequent discoveries of skeletons of Indian warriors are made when the fields along the shores are plowed.

Gun-boats, cannon-balls, skeletons, tomahawks and muskets are relics of the last stage of hostility between Canada and the United States—the War of 1812. Where waters lap at No. 2 highway near Thamesville today there stands a monument to the Indian chief, Tecumseh, whose death in the Battle of Moraviantown hurried the war to its close.

With a band of brarrs, Tecumseh accompanied General Procter's British redcoats in their retreat up the Thames from Detroit and Amherstburg. The Indian chief wanted to make a stand at Chatham against Harrison's gun-boats and militia, seeking revenge for victories gained by General Sir Isaac Brock earlier in the three-year conflict.

Procter Backs Out.

Tecumseh picked out a fork in the river where what is now McGregor's creek pours in. The ground was high and there was sufficient bush for the Indians to make their type of warfare most effective. But Procter refused to stay long and reluctantly the 800 braves accompanied the 400 troops up the river to Moraviantown.

There the Americans caught up on Oct. 5, 1814. Four thousand strong, they swarmed over the marshy country and slaughtered the enemy. Tecumseh died fighting and Procter retreated with the few survivors.

Without their leader, the Indians lacked the morale that has helped them play an important part in the campaign. The war ended tragically in the spring.

The hotel at Thamesville, where flood victims found refuge, to-day is named after Tecumseh. The spot at Chatham where the Chief wanted to make a stand against the grey gun-boats is called Tecumseh Park. But to this day the mystery of the burial place of Tecumseh is kept secret by redmen of the Federal reserve at Moraviatown. To them he is the greatest figure in history.

Cards And Dancing Debate Is Squelched By Archbishop Owen

Has The Utmost Confidence In The Young People Of The Church

MEETING OF SYNOD

A brief flare-up in the Church of England Synod yesterday over the part which dancing, cards and theatricals should play in church activities was extinguished by Archbishop Owen when he expressed "the utmost confidence in the young people of the church."

These pleasures should be no part of church activities, Rev. F. N. Palmer of St. Anne's, Toronto, urged. He claimed no church function could be 100 per cent. successful these days without one or more "worldly things," which he thought was to the detriment of spiritual leadership. Church dances also were deplored by Rev. J. R. S. Boyd.

The criticism came when Synod was considering the report of Sam Brown, Chairman of the Board of Religious Education, on A.Y.P.A. work, in which he described fireside hours, camp meetings and similar functions. Later, Mr. Brown explained that the A.Y.P.A. did not call for a program of dances or cards as a method of raising funds.

"The world is full of unemployment, and if the young people are truly Christian they will be thrilled at the prospect of fighting worldly pleasures and anti-Christ propaganda," declared Mr. Palmer.

Response to Leadership.

In asking for the adoption of the report, Archbishop Owen said "the young people of the Church of England will respond to the highest spiritual leadership we will give them." The report carried almost unanimously.

Suffragan Bishop Beverley reported definite efforts were being made to expand religious instruction in Ontario public schools.

Even now, under present regulations, over 100 ministers were giving this instruction during the first half-hour of school mornings, Rev. R. A. Hilts said. The church should tear a leaf from the book of Communists and Fascists by attempting to get hold of youth's mind during its formative period, Kenneth K. Mackenzie urged.

A move toward the abolition of fermented wine at Holy Communion services was made yesterday when Rev. J. R. S. Boyd presented a notice of motion to that effect for consideration at the next Synod.

Distribution of Wealth.

Rev. G. F. B. Lightbourne presented a notice of motion: "That this Synod notes with approval the evidences of a growing demand for a more equitable distribution of material wealth, and affirms its belief that Christianity should be a revolutionary, not a reactionary social force. It calls upon members to strive to remake the social order to a pattern more in accord with standards of Christian brotherhood."

"The Coronation is no idle ceremony, no empty form, but a rededication of the Empire and its throne to God," declared Archbishop Owen in responding to a resolution from Synod indicating its loyalty, devotion and pride in his selection to represent the Church of England in Canada.

A long plea by Rev. H. V. Thompson, Niagara-on-the-Lake, against what he termed "unfairness" in the difference between the higher pensions of Toronto rectors and the country clergy failed to gain any support. (Toronto rectors are paid from a separate endowment fund, without drawing on the general pensions fund.)

Archbishop Owen ruled yesterday against Synod discussion or criticism of the ruling of Mr. Justice Makins on April 5 concerning the surplus income of the rectory of St. James.

Results of Synod elections yesterday afternoon: Executive Committee: Ex-Officio, Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen, the Right Rev. A. R. Beverley, Suffragan Bishop of Toronto; Chancellor D. T. Symons, Canon F. J. Sawers, Honorary Clerical Secretary; James Nicholson, Honorary Lay Secretary; Ven. G. Warren, Senior Archdeacon, and Secretary-Treasurer R. W. Allin, Rev. Dr. R. A. Windsor Fords Ask Change In Referees

VANCOUVER, April 30 (CP)—Decision on Windsor Fords' request that a change in referees be made for remaining games of the Windsor-University of British Columbia Canadian men's basketball final here, was in the hands of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association executive today.

Walter Hardwick, Vancouver, president of the C.A.B.A., said last night he had wired executives for a vote on suggested importation of a Washington state official to team with Henry Viney of Lethbridge, Alta., in handling remaining games of the best-of-five series.

After the Collegiana won their second straight victory Wednesday night, Coach Eddie Dawson of Fords charged referee-incompetence and asked a change of officials for tonight's third game and others if played.

DUKE CONNAUGHT'S HEALTH IMPROVES CORONATION EVE

Loved Former Governor-General Of Canada Will Be 87 Saturday

KING'S GREAT UNCLE

BOURNEMOUTH, Hampshire, April 30 (CP Cable).—The Duke of Connaught, who tomorrow reaches his 87th birthday, was reported steadily improving in health today though still confined to his hotel room. The former Governor-General of Canada has been suffering from a "minor ailment," in the words of his physician, and several days of rest were prescribed.

Reassuring news of the condition of the King's great-uncle removed anxiety lest his illness become so serious as to cast a shadow over Coronation festivities.

Prior to his indisposition it had been announced that, due to the infirmities of age, the Duke would not be equal to the long Coronation service in Westminster Abbey May 12.

If he had been able to attend next month's service it would have been the third Coronation during the lifetime of this only surviving son of Queen Victoria. He attended those of his brother, Edward VII., in 1902, and of his nephew, George V., in 1911.

The Duke spent more than 50 years in the diplomatic and military services of the Empire. He was Governor-General of Canada from 1911 to 1916. With the Duchess of Connaught and their daughter, Princess Patricia, he passed a happy term in Rideau Hall, though it was saddened toward the end by the outbreak of the Great War.

The Duke and his family won the heart of Canada by the zest with which they entered into the life of the country and its capital. Originally appointed for two years, the Duke's term was twice extended.

The popular Princess "Pat" gave her name to an infantry regiment—the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry—whose war record won it renown.

The years in Canada were among the last the family was to spend together, for early in 1917 the Duchess died after a long illness. In 1919 Princess Patricia, youngest of the Duke's children, married Commander (later Admiral) Alexander Ramsay. The other children, Princess Margaret and Prince Arthur, had married some years previously.

The Duke spent 43 years as an active soldier, being gazetted from Woolwich Academy at the age of 18 and serving continuously with the colors in various parts of the world until 1900. He saw his first active service in the Northwest Rebellion in 1870 as a member of Sir Garnet Wolsey's force.

Dizzing Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

BASEBALL SHOULD BE a better game this year if only because the ball manufacturers are taking some of the bounce out of the pellets. Less slugging and more scientific play should result—better baserunning, sliding, bunting, steals and trick plays. Give the hurlers a better break and you're going to see brainy ball where one run means something—none of these five-run rallies every few frames. More of the Ty Cobb style of the diamond game. The great Tyrus—aside from the record books—is almost a forgotten man. He dropped suddenly and completely out of the game and has since been living and playing golf in California. We saw Cobb in plenty of games the last two years he was in the Big League. No one can tell us anything about great ball players. We saw the greatest.

* * * * * *

THIS leads up to a brief interview Ty gave a Coast sports writer this Spring. He said: "Baseball should go back to the dead ball of my time. We're drunk with swat and sock. Too many games are decided in the first inning now. We've lost the greatest thrill of all—the winning run. Bring back inside ball. Get rid of outside ball, you know the kind that goes out of the park all the time. Restore the old ball and you restore the value of one run. Closer competition will be assured. Secondary clubs with a couple of good pitchers who could just about win their own games would have more of a chance. And it wouldn't take two hours or more to play a game." We look for an improvement along these lines this summer.

LOCAL SENIOR BASEBALLERS and prospective players are asked to call around to the "Y" at 1.30—of course it's p.m. ya sap!—tomorrow afternoon. If the weather is fine, the gang will proceed to the Exhibition Grounds for a light outdoor practice. Otherwise, they'll have an indoor drill as the "Y" from two to three o'clock. The outdoor practise will consist for the most part, we imagine, of batting and shagging flies. Not too much throwing the first day. The invitation is wide open and anyone wanting a chance at the team has but to come along.

ONLY ABOUT THREE WEEKS remain till the O.B.L. opens, with Oshawa here May 24th and Kingston at Napanee. Walt Gerow is getting his squad out for practises now, while Oshawa is about ready to start this week-end with drills, and no doubt Joe Daley will have his Ponies out soon. We feel that the Petes have quite a bulge on the rest in conditioning as they've been working hard at gym exercises the past two weeks. Give them half a dozen outdoor workouts and the team will begin to take definite shape. Looks like the hurling and the receiving departments are okay with the locals, but the infield is unsettled yet and there is a gaping hole in centre field. Thus, good infield or outfield prospects will be as welcome at the early workouts as an extra skin in the envelope come payday. The flood situation in Riverside Park is still bad—the usual Spring splash.

BILL WALSH of Kingston writes: "Before the baseball season starts, Kingston may see a preview with Napanee invited here for an exhibition game on May 12th to be played at the Cricket Grounds. Although there is no definite plan to play the local Central League games on the open diamond, the game on Coronation Day is an experiment which, if successful, may mean a change. Kingston baseball officials say it is not much better playing at the Fair Grounds than in the wide open spaces, as more see the games than ever contribute at the regular entrance." Yes, after all, a wire mesh fence around a ball park strikes us as an open invitation to take a free peek.

DAN HOWLEY HAS his Toronto Leafs stepping high, wide and handsome these days and yesterday at Jersey City they copped their seventh straight victory. It was a 7-4 verdict. Good heaving by Berly, after a wobbly start, neat fielding by his buddies and some real honest-to-gosh slugging by the Leafian lads accounted for the win. Gordon Walker in the Toronto a.m. paper has his story of the game headlined: "Daring Base-Running Features Big Inning When Leafs Score Five." After a careful perusal of the tale, we can find no evidence of daring base-running. The fact that three Toronto players took extra bases on singles in the fourth on throw-ins to the plate hardly comes under the heading of daring base-running. That's merely a fundamental of the game. A gee that doesn't move up one on a throw-in should be polishing the bench with his pants.

FIRST MEN'S SOFTBALL workout of the season is called for 2.30 to-morrow afternoon in Central School grounds. The McGinness team will hold an open practise and everyone wanting a tryout is invited. "Moon" Ridley is managing this squad and the team, when selected, will pick a regular name for the outfit. Ridley expects to trot out a strong team as he has been on the hump lately lining up likely prospects. Next meeting of the men's City Softball League is Monday eve at eight in Duffus' when all entries must be in.

ANNUAL "Y" CIRCUS was staged last evening in the Y.M.C.A. gym, and they put it on again to-night at 8.15 o'clock. Only a so-so crowd of spectators took in the first performance. Some excellent acts were seen in the way of athletic prowess and rib ticklers. Lady Eneri, ze wan and oniiest snake charmer de luxe, made quite a hit as she felled the fangs of the furious Fanny. Bill Turnbull and Pete King did a twisting, turning teeter thing that has not been equalled since Catawba Joe tried to walk a tight rope. Some good clowning was clowned, too. Both the flying rings performance and the work on the parallel bars earned applause. The show to-night ought to draw a bigger crowd.

Queen Alex Wins Over King Edward

Queen Alex took a 7-5 School Softball League win over King Edward in an abbreviated game Wednesday on the latter's diamond. Rain forced it to be called at the start of the seventh. It was easily the best school contest seen here so far this season. The winners went better in the field than the K.E. crew and they bunched hits with errors to get their runs in a flock. Both hurlers turned in a neat early-season performance. Woodgate with three and Shea with two were leading hitters. Six of the King Edward boys went out on strikes to four of Queen Alex. The teams:

Toronto Wins Seven Straight To Open Ball Season

The surprise package of the 1937 International baseball league season is the young team Manager Dan Howley has collected for Toronto. The team opened the season with a barrage of hits to trounce Baltimore Orioles by a decisive score. Not content with an opening day win, the youngsters went on to take the three-game series. From there they moved to Syracuse where they took the Chiefs into camp, to run up five wins before they were halted by cold weather. Then they met Jersey City and to date have added two more. Here are several of the Toronto Maple Leafs' sharpshooters who have been ringing up a merry barrage of hits. Six of the Leaf outfielders are lined up in firing order ABOVE. They are, from LEFT to RIGHT: Tom Oliver, George Blackerby, Mayo Smith, Ted Petoskey, Adam Comorosky and Bobby Porter, a Toronto boy. At LOWER LEFT is the sensational second baseman, Frank Madura with Tom Heath, catcher for the club in centre. LOWER RIGHT shows Joe Gantenbein swinging the hickory. Playing at short he has been an outstanding hitter for the club.

BOUNCING BUCKO UNABLE TO PLAY WITH MARLBOROS

Must Have A. A. U. Card To Play Lacrosse In Ontario

WANTS TO PLAY GAME

TORONTO, April 30.—Marlboros want Bucko McDonald, the bouncing, double-haired basher of Detroit's hockey blue line forces to play lacrosse. But they won't get him.

McDonald, who startled in monied ranks with Toronto Maple Leafs' lacrosse outfit and was left holding the bag when the ill-fated local group landed on the shoals of financial failure, wants to play lacrosse. It's his first love. But he has left it behind him because the gutted stick pastime, to all outward appearances, anyway, is amateur. And Bucko, doggone it, is a pro.

Adams Favors Idea.

And the simon-pures and sophisticated money performers don't mix with the articles of alliance, which may become strained between the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and the Dominion lacrosse body. So Bucko is out.

Jack Adams, his hockey boss, wants Bucko to play at the box lacrosse this summer. It will toughen him and help the rhythm of his baseline movements. Strange to say, few of his National Hockey League opponents have found nothing much lacking in his rhythm. Nor has Adams, but practice makes perfect, and Smiling Jawn feels that the Sundridge, Ont., product may achieve an unqualified perfection in the bouncing art.

Much as Marlboros want McDonald, there is only one open course. That is for Bucko to produce an amateur card. And with that precious document, and with that alone, will Gene Depp, secretary of the O.A.L.A., pass Bucko into lacrosse this summer.

Kelley Wants No Hypocrisy.

Ontario, perhaps, has the cleanest slate in regard to amateurism in lacrosse that exists in Canada. In other sectors the cloak of amateurism is a guise only. Under it, and not with a great deal of secrecy either, professionals in other sports parade as amateurs.

But the setting in this province is not all that could be desired either.

Mike Kelley, president of the O.A.L.A. feels that in so far as he personally is concerned, amateur lacrosse "open and above board" satisfies him. "I don't intend to be a hypocrite about it," he said. "If we have some boys on teams getting money and others on the same club getting nothing but exercise, something will be done."

As far as Kelley is concerned, lacrosse and hockey are competition sports and for properly progress "have got to play ball together."

King Edward Loses To Central, 18-10

King Edward dropped an 18-10 decision to Central in an exciting School Softball League encounter yesterday at Central diamond. A total of 19 runs in the fourth and fifth frames made it safe for the winners after a nip-and-tuck struggle in the early innings. Some fair flinging was shown with fielding indifferent on both sides at times. The hitters had a big day, clouting the apple around the orchard freely. The losers battled hard to the end and at times threatened to make it plenty close. The teams:

Central: Clarke, p; Forde, c; Marshall, 1b; Hewitt, 3b; Honor, 2b; Miller, ss; Harris, lf; Cox, cf; Metcalfe, rf.

Score by innings:

King Edward	102 113 2—10
Central	201 852 x—18

The membership committee will give an account of its work so far this season, and will make a special drive to have all the rinks filled.

It will be an exceptional opportunity for the skips to come and bring their cards with them.

ANNUAL CIRCUS IN Y.M.C.A. GYM FULL OF ACTION

Good Program Of Athletic Drills, Stunts And Demonstrations With Comic Skits

ON TONIGHT AGAIN

The annual "Y" Circus was staged last evening in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium before an appreciative audience. A large and entertaining program was run off, including drills, athletic stunts, burlesque games, humorous skits and interesting demonstrations. Jim McClenaghan conducted the group games, Ed Sherit was master of ceremonies, and Jack Marshall with his Rhythm Kings provided the music.

All participants took part in the grand entry, followed by beginners of eight and nine years in group games. Some fine tumbling was shown by senior members of the Leaders Corps and Gym Club, including: M. Magee, W. Taylor, G. McIntyre, T. Dundon, G. Broadley, B. Harle, with N. Stanger and J. Archibald as clowns. Junior boys, led by Sgt.-Maj. Jim McBride, staged the awkward cadet squad drill.

A humorous burlesque wrestling match was put on by Steve Csumrik and Bill Hogan of the "Y" Wrestling Club, their nom des plumes (or guerre) being Battling, Billious, Batteneyesky versus Groaning, Greasy, Grappling Grouin.

Jumbo the Giant

Group games for boys of 10 and 11 years followed, and then intermediate boys demonstrated a health drill. A humor skit showed Jumbo the Jigging Giant of the Jungle, Earl and Frank Spencely going on as the Giant and Al Spencely as the trainer. Under direction of Gord Minty, an interesting new Y.M.C.A. life-saving land drill was held. The "initiation into the Hen Club," a clown number, drew plenty of laughs. Some excellent work on the parallel bars was staged by these seniors: W. Taylor, M. Magee, G. Broadley, F. Williams, J. Wolstenholme, M. Hunter, R. Rennie and B. Hogan.

Bill Turnbull and Pete King drew applause for their first-rate acting in "Turnbull's Twisting Turning Teeter." Another highly-appreciated item, good for many chuckles, was Lady Eneri, the snake charmer, put on by Sam Rogow with Ralph Rogow as attendant. Daring performances on the flying rings was shown by J. Wolstenhome, W. Taylor, T. Dunlop, M. Magee with J. Archibald and N. Stanger holding a hanging act. Other clown acts, enjoyed by the spectators, were in charge of Malcolm Latimer and Rollie Kraut — being interspersed through the program. The show will be staged again tonight.

CARDS DOWN REDS 6-1

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Don't look now, but there's something queer going on in the Bronx baseball business—Champion's Big of the diamond world.

The most famous clouting circus of them all, New York's Yankees, isn't doing a thing in its specialty. The same wrecking crew, which crashed about every long distance record in sight last year and averaged better than a homer a game, ain't hitting ball enough to dent a cream puff, so far as its capacity for extra base blows is concerned.

Although there's capping out plenty of singles, the Yanks' production in six hits has been the grand total of one lone home run, "poosned up" several days ago by Tony Lazzeri and a single triple.

Hurlers Cling Strong.

Maybe, and this is only being whispered as yet, it's because the highly-regarded Yankee pitching is fooling the boys. Rated, as usual, the weak spot, the Gehrig and Company flingers have been ace high in recent days, despite the absence of holdout Charley Ruffing. In their last three starts, they've allowed the enemy 17 hits and four runs in 27 innings. Yesterday Monte Pearson turned in a six hit job, fanning seven batters, to whip Washington's Senators 4-2, the Nats' fifth straight.

As if this development wasn't bewildering enough to the Bronx baseball faithful, they're in even more of a dither through the antics of their other representative in the diamond wars, the Giants.

Bill Terry's Terriers yesterday bombarded Brooklyn's Dodgers 9-0. Pat Freddy Fitzsimmons' knuckleball muffled the Dodgers with five hits, but even more remarkable were the two homers contributed by the light-hitting Burgess Whitehead, and the one walloped by Pat Freddy himself.

COBOURG PLANNING TO HOLD REGATTA

Skiff Events Are Added To Three-Day Centennial Program

COBOURG, April 30.—Cobourg Centennial will have another attraction in the form of the Lake Sailing Skiff Association's annual regatta to be held this year at Cobourg, through the efforts of Lester Caughey. The dates are July 31st, August 1st and August 2nd.

On Saturday, July 31st the Douglas International Trophy and the Emerson International Trophy races will be run off in the morning and afternoon.

On the following day will be held the start of the 14 ft. international class for the Tinning Cup; 14 ft. class "A" sloops for the Birley Cup; "B" sloops for the Shriners' Cup, and the cat-rigged class for the Reilly Cup, in the morning; afternoon, same classes in turn from the World Cup, Wade Cup, Walker Cup and Comeford Cup.

Pirates Defeat Chicago Cubs 6-5

The Giants' two chief rivals remained in the thick of things. Pittsburgh's Pirates gave up an early lead and then took advantage of Bill Lee's wildness in the 13th inning to down Chicago Cubs 6-5. Lon Warneke threw an eight-hitter for the Cardinals to whip Cincinnati's disappointing Reds 6-1.

Cleveland's heavy-hitting Indians clubbed Detroit 12-3 behind Earl Whitehill's seven-hit hurling. Chicago White Sox pounded out 19 hits as Monte Pearson pitched the American League's first shutout, blanking the Browns 12-0. Boston defeated the Phillies 6-4.

SMALL YACHTS TO COMPETE.

PLYMOUTH, England (CP).—C. R. Fairey, Yachting Racing Association committee member, says that yachts about 100 tons, smaller than present "J" class craft, will probably compete in future America's Cup races.

JURY OF JOCKEYS PICKS 'BIG THREE'

See Derby Winner Among Bradley Entry, Heelfly Or Sceneshifter

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP).—A "jury" of 12 boys who ride 'em today selected a half-dozen horses as the probable winner of the Kentucky Derby May 8.

The jockeys cast their ballots for the "Big Three," the E. R. Bradley entry of Brooklyn and Billionaire Heely from the Texas-owned three D's stock farm and Maxwell Howard's Sceneshifter.

Reading toward which horse has yet to face the barrier this year after beating Pompoon in the New England futurity last fall, received five votes, three picked War Admiral, an easy winner of the Chesapeake stakes last Saturday, while the remaining four were scattered among Heelfly, Pompoon, Sceneshifter and the Bradley entry.

Charlie Kurtsinger, who set the Derby record with Twenty Grand in 1931, naturally voted for War Admiral as he will be up on the son of Man O' War. He selected Pompoon as the horse he would have to beat, however.

Willie Saunders of Calgary, winner in 1935 with Omaha, and Johnny Gilbert, one of the country's foremost saddle artists from Pittsburgh, Kas., also selected War Admiral.

Although alone in selecting Pompoon, Harry Richards nevertheless was outspoken in favor of the colt he will ride.

"Pompoon was the best two-year-old I ever rode and I expect him to go on," said the jockey who won the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap with Rosemont and the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby with Fairy Hill.

HOWLEY'S LEAFS NICK JERSEY CITY FOR 7-4 DECISION

Toronto's Great Base-Running In Fourth Garners Five Runs

ROYALS TAKE ORIOLES 2-1

(By the Associated Press.)

Almost as amazing as the triumph and swath Toronto Maple Leafs are cutting through the International Baseball League is the slump of Baltimore Orioles.

While the Leafs were almost universally condemned to the second division by the experts in the early season figuring, the Orioles were looked on as the team to beat. With a batting order that carries dynamite from top to bottom the Orioles were regarded as a minor league version of the New York Yankees' "murderers row."

So far this season, however, the Orioles have been hitting when the pitching was poor and doing just the opposite when the hurling deserved support.

Such was the case yesterday as the Birds went down to their fifth straight defeat in as many starts. Montreal Royals trimmed them 2-1 as Marvin Duke handcuffed the Marylanders with six hits.

Meanwhile the Leafs were continuing on the unbeaten path as they chalked up victory No. seven with a 14-hit bombardment and a 7-4 decision over Jersey's Giants. After Jersey City had scored three times in the first two innings the Howleymen blasted Rollie Stiles off the mound with an eight-hit attack in the third and fourth innings that brought in six runs. John Berly had the little Giants at his mercy during the last seven frames, limiting them to four hits and one run.

Newark Bears kept pace one game behind Toronto as Alley Donald, a Giant rookie from Binghamton, outpitched the veteran Bill (Hard Luck) Harris, to give the Bears a 2-1 win over Buffalo. Al long home run by Ollie Carnegie in the seventh inning scored the Bisons' lone run. Syracuse eked out a victory over Rochester.

The Toronto Game.

Facing a 3-0-1 deficit which the homesters had piled up in the first two innings, the Leafs drove veteran Rollie Stiles to the showers in the fourth, when they bunched six singles and a walk, for a five-run rally, featured by some heads-up base-running.

During the fourth frame John Berly, Frank Madura and Joe Gantenbein each took an extra base on singles, when Jersey City outfielders attempted to nab runners crossing the plate. In each case the succeeding batter produced a single to score them. Mayo Smith and Ted Petoskey also fostered stolen bases into the inning.

Porter Starts Rally.

Bobby Porter started the rally by walking. He moved to second on Walsh's infield hit and to third as Ross forced Walsh at second. Porter scored, and Ross took second as Wilson toped out Heath, but Berly cracked a single to centre, scoring Ross, and went to second on the throw in. Madura, Gantenbein and Mayo Smith followed with singles to complete the scoring before Al Veach replaced Stiles. Petoskey beat out an infield roller, but Porter grounded out to end the frame.

Berly deserved to win and outside of the two first frames, he was seldom in trouble. The first pair of Jersey City runs can be attributed to his wildness alone. He walked Gomez to start the game, and when Wilson hit sharply to centre, Davis were runners on first and third. Gomez scored and Wilson moved to third on two infield outs, and the latter walked home when Berry uncorked a wild pitch. Successive two-baggers by Asbell and Redmond in the second inning gave the home team their third tally.

A double play erased a promising Giant rally in the seventh when Redmond doubled to right and came home on Ernie Smith's three-bagger to right centre. Smith was pinch-hitting for Veach, and Olivery came in to run for Smith.

Ross Shows Alertness.

Gomez lapped a high bounder to the box, and Olivery was run down, Heath to Ross. The Leafs' third baseman snapped the ball to Madura and Gomes was out trying to take second on the play.

The only Toronto runs outside the fourth, were scored by Madura and Petoskey, both of them led off an inning with a three-base blow. Madura cracked his tripple to right centre and scored on Gantenbein's infield out in the third.

Petoskey opened the eighth with a hoist to short right. Gomez ran back for the ball, barely missed it, and then booted it past Jolley. Petoskey stopped at second thinking the ball would be retrieved, and then continued to third, otherwise he could have stretched it into a home run. He scored as Jackson threw out Porter.

Manager Travis Jackson of the home team used fourteen players in an attempt to beat the Leafs. He replaced veteran Ernie Smith at shortstop, the latter having suffered an inch-wide spike wound in a recent game. Smith, who tried out with Toronto in the spring of '35 came through with a triple in a pinch-hitting role.

A Little Robbery.

Josie Gomez, the Giants' Mexican outfielder, robbed Ross of a hit in the fifth with a sparkling catch, while Asbell deprived Mayo Smith of an apparently legitimate extra-base clout in the seventh. Jolley had to back up against the rightfield fence to snare Madura's bid for a homer.

The Leafs should have won by a much larger margin, They outhit the Jerseys, 14 to 7, and accepted four passes, as compared to two which Berly granted, but aside from the fourth they couldn't get a hit when needed most. In the second, fourth, fifth and sixth they left a pair of runners stranded, and when Smith lined out in the seventh three runners were left on the paths.

Mike Meola is Howley's choice to protect Toronto's league lead and winning streak to-morrow. Ben Cantwell, veteran of many seasons in the National League, will work for Jersey City. Cantwell is a right-hander.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—Our Jinis (National League champions, too) were hitting only (ouch) .202 for the season when Van Mungo got through with them Wednesday . . . Dodger fans had a good time chanting: "Swing high, swing low, you can't hit Mungo," as the big fellow pressed his fireball across . . . Bill Terry made wholesale shifts in his batting order yesterday and the Jints faltered their individual and collective averages at bat . . . Note to Red Ruffing: You had better come on home while the coming is good, Red . . . The enemy has averaged only 2½ runs per game off Yankee pitching so far.

Fred Perry, the tennis star, who saw his first baseball game in Washington the other day, still is looking for the pitcher's box . . . When talking about ambitious fight managers, don't overlook Abe Ketcher, pilot of heavyweight Eddie Hunt . . . Hunt could have had Tony Galento's place on the Hippodrome card Wednesday night, but Ketcher demanded more money than the Hipp paid Joe Louis for kayoing Jorge Brescia . . . Hawk!

The little birds keep insisting Paul Dean is being measured for a Columbus or Rochester uniform . . . New York papers say Bill Terry is weakening on Hank Leiber.

If Tony Canzoneri regains his lightweight crown from Lou Ambers next week, he'll defend it against Pedro Montanez and then head for London and Australia, where the pickings are said to be more than good . . . If Tony loses, he'll quit the ring and become a gentleman farmer at Marlboro, New York. He has quite a joint up there . . . Almost 300 acres, with a 25-room hotel and a golf course in the making . . . Tony looks good in drills, but the wise boys say he's not fooling them . . . One expert who openly picked Tony to beat Ambers said "off the record" he thought Lou would win in a walk . . . So it goes in the fight racket.

BLOW FOR WORCESTER.

WORCESTER, England (CP). — Worcestershire cricket has suffered a big blow with the announcement that C. F. Walters, brilliant batsman, will be unable to play for the county club this season.

IN MEMORIAM.

McCAULEY—In loving memory of my dear mother, M. J. McCauley who passed away April 30, 1933.
April brings sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest.
Who will always be remembered
By those who loved her best.
Days of sadness still come over me
Tears in silence often flow.
Memory keeps you ever near me
Though it is four years ago.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by her daughter, Mrs. H. Wilsen.

McCAULEY—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away four years ago today, April 30th.
A loving mother from us is gone
A voice we loved is stilled
Her place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
To see your smiling face
As we loved you so we miss you
In our memory you are near
Loved, remembered longed for always brinsing many a silent tear
—Sadly missed by her son and daughters, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Sanderson, S. McCauley.

CHAPTER 26

"If you can imagine you can back out now and butt in and upset everything—you can't," Lutman told Charles heatedly. "The marriage is going through—it's got to go through. There's a matter of $1,500,000 at stake, and if it came to the point I'd marry her to a drunken sailor to get away with it. Now come away from that door. You're not getting the deed..."

Suddenly Charles sprang. His hands found Lutman's throat, and the Colonel, with Charles on top of him, crashed backward onto the floor. For perhaps a half-minute they struggled furiously, and then with a tremendous effort, Lutman wrenched himself free, and the next instant Charles, springing to his feet, found himself staring at the muzzle of a revolver.

"Stay where you are," snapped Lutman, "or I'll kill you stone dead."

Charles stood still, but his hands were clenched and he was crouching slightly as if he were about to spring at Lutman again.

"You lunatic!" exclaimed Lutman. "Do you want the river police in? No—don't move. You're as near death now, Charles, as you'll ever be."

His hand went to his breast pocket and he gave a nod of satisfaction.

"Still there," he said. "There seems no object in prolonging the interview."

With his gun still in his hand he backed to the door, found the handle, turned it, and pushed the door open.

"Good night, Charles," he smiled, slipped into the outer office, and closed the door.

The next instant, however, the door was opened again and Lutman's head appeared for a moment through the opening.

"If you'd thought for a couple of seconds, Charles," he said, "you'd have realized that I shouldn't have dared to risk shooting."

* * *

Mrs. Smith evidently had the good night's rest which she had anticipated. She was still fast asleep at 10 o'clock the next morning when Jacqueline, looking rather as though she had not slept at all, peeped into her room. She noiselessly closed the door again and went into the sitting room to breakfast off a cup of tea and a cigaret. She told herself that to wake her mother then and blurt out the unpleasant news as a morning greeting would be a heartless sort of thing to do—rather like waking a prisoner to announce to him that it was the morning of his execution.

It was 11 o'clock before Mrs. Smith put in an appearance, demanded a cup of tea, and, as she drank it, began to chatter.

"Such a happy day ahead, Jacqueline," she began. "Shopping. You must have something respectable to take away with you. You must certainly have some new underclothes. So important. We don't want Jim to think we're quite paupers."

"Mother, there is no need....," began Jacqueline, but Mrs. Smith cut her short.

"My dear, I know what a girl needs when she's going to get married, and you must leave it to me. I've been married and you haven't. Of course, we can't pay for anything, but if we mention Colonel Lutman's name I'm sure they'll give us all the credit we want. And of course, dear, I'm going to give you a present—a really good present. I can afford it now. At least, I shall be able to afford it very soon. If there's anything you especially want....."

"There's nothing, mother, thanks. And there's no need to go shopping." She hesitated a moment, then: "Mother, listen," she said. "I'm dreadfully sorry—I know it will disappoint you terribly—but there's going to be no wedding."

"Jacqueline!"

The girl, seeing the look on her mother's face, reminded herself that this was going to be a battle and that any softness would mean defeat.

"There's going to be no wedding," she repeated. "Not with Jim Asson, anyway. If you want to get me off your hands mother, you've got to find someone better than Jim Asson. I'm not too particular, but even I have limits."

"But my dear, you promised—and everything's arranged!"

"Sorry, mother, but everything's disarranged."

"But I don't understand, Jacqueline. You told me that you'd signed the deed."

"So I have. But the deed means nothing until I'm married, and in any case I didn't find out until afterward. About Jim, I mean. I'm afraid it's a blow to you, mother, but the marriage with Jim Asson is definitely off."

"But, Jacqueline, why? If you haven't taken leave of your senses."

"No, I've just found my senses and taken leave of Jim Asson. I'm not marrying him, and that's final."

Mrs. Smith sat for some moments frowning at her. The girl meant it: there was no doubt about that. Experience had taught Mrs. Smith that when Jacqueline set her jaw in that obstinate way and held up her chin at that particular angle, no coaxing or storming or weeping would prevail against her. But never before had she so much regretted that her daughter's chin was not molded on less determined lines.

"I don't understand at all, Jacqueline," she said impatiently. "Have you really broken off your engagement with Jim?"

"Not yet," said Jacqueline. "But I'm going to."

"But why?" repeated Mrs. Smith. "You just stand there and tell me you're going to smash up everything, and you don't give me a single reason."

"The reason is simply that it can't be done, mother. At least, it's the only reason I'm going to give you. I don't love Jim Asson and that ought to be reason enough. If you don't think it is..."

"I don't," interrupted Mrs. Smith. "We've discussed all this before until I'm sick of discussing it. Jim's quite a nice young man with plenty of money, and even if you're not madly in love with him, you gave me your word that you'd marry him and be sensible and not throw away a splendid chance. And now....."

"Yes, I know. Now I'm breaking my word. But I can't help it. Quite apart from not loving Jim Asson there are other reasons why I can't go through with it. I'm not going to tell you what they are; you wouldn't believe me if I did. Besides, there are one or two things I mean to find out for myself, and the less said the better. The marriage is off, anyway."

"I see," said Mrs. Smith. "So you're going to undo everything I have planned, all the arrangements I have made....."

"Let's keep things straight, mother," interrupted Jacqueline. "You didn't plan anything. Jim picked me up at the hotel at Cobersil..."

"Picked you up?"

Jacqueline nodded.

"You know the sort of thing: 'Aren't the gardens lovely? Isn't it awfully hot? Wouldn't you like some tea? That is what I can being picked up."

"You're most unjust Jacqueline. You know very well that I invited Jim and Colonel Lutman to lunch simply for your benefit."

"Yes, I know. And Jim paid. But it's no use arguing about that sort of thing. There it is, and we've just got to make the best of it."

CAR DRIVER HURT VEHICLE UPSETS

Mrs. H. Digweed Of Warsaw Meets With Accident At Foot Of Cuffe's Hill

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, April 30—Mrs. H. Digweed of this village suffered serious injuries on Wednesday night when the car which she was driving turned turtle into the ditch at the foot of Cuffe's Hill on the Warsaw road. Mrs. Digwood was on the road home from Peterborough and losing control of the car, the vehicle turned a complete somersault, coming to a rest on its side in the ditch and leaving the passengers trapped inside until help arrived.

Miss Margaret Myers who was a passenger in the car escaped uninjured.

"The best of it!" exclaimed Mrs. Smith. "And what do you suppose is going to happen to us now? How are we going to live?"

"I don't know," said Jacqueline. "We've wriggled through so far, and we'll manage somehow, I suppose. I'll get a job—here in England—as a typist or something."

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MAGICAL CHANGE

"Bow! Wow! Wuff! Wow! Bow!"

If Uncle Wiggily hadn't known that old Mr. Dog's bark was worse than his bite the jolly old rabbit gentleman never would have hopped into the kennel house as he did. But, feeling sure Mr. Dog didn't know who was coming to visit him, and knowing Mr. Dog always barked whenever he heard any noise at his front door, Mr. Longears called:

"Don't get excited, Mr. Dog. It's only your friend Wiggy coming to see you."

"Oh, all right. Excuse me. Come in!" whined Mr. Dog. "I'm sorry I barked at you, but I thought it was just some new trouble coming in and I tried to scare it away."

"Trouble?" asked Uncle Wiggily, laughing and twinkling his pink nose. "What kind of trouble, Mr. Dog?"

Sad Fellow

"Oh, the worst kind of trouble, Mr. Longears," I seem to have nothing but trouble in this kennel. I'm the most miserable dog alive! I'm sick half the time, every time I go to dig up a bone I have hidden it's gone—some other dog always gets it first. And look at my place here! Did you ever see a more gloomy kennel?"

"Yes, it is gloomy," said Uncle Wiggily. "But it isn't gloomy outside in the sunshine. Why don't you go out and cheer up?"

"Ha! Cheer up! I never can cheer up!" growled Mr. Dog. "As for going out, I might be struck by an auto!"

"Yes, and you might not," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Did you ever stop to think that way?"

"I don't want to think that way," growled Mr. Dog. "I would rather be miserable and think of getting hit by a car. Anyhow, I'm not going out."

"All right," said Uncle Wiggily cheerfully, "do as you please. But what's the matter with your windows?"

"Nothing that I know of," said Mr. Dog. "Why do you ask?"

"They're so dark," went on the rabbit. "What are they made of?"

"Smoked glass," grumbled the dog. "Dark, smoked glass."

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "What are you laughing at?" snarled Mr. Dog who, really seemed very cross.

"I am laughing," chuckled Uncle Wiggily, "at the magical change I am going to make in you and your kennel very soon."

"A magical change?" asked Mr. Dog.

Does a Trick

"Yes. Close your eyes a few minutes and when I tell you to open them everything will be changed and so will you."

"I don't believe it," growled Mr. Dog. "But go ahead. Try it."

Uncle Wiggily hopped out of the kennel. He was gone only a little while when he came hopping back. Mr. Dog was sitting with his eyes closed, grumbling, growling and thinking how unhappy he was.

There were tinkling sounds, the smell of fresh putty and then, all of a sudden, Mr. Longears called:

"Open your eyes!"

Mr. Dog opened his eyes, blinking them very fast.

Then, all of a quickness, he began to laugh.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" he shouted. "Why how different everything looks. Why, I see red roses outside my windows! How lovely! How happy I am. What magical change did you do, Wiggy?"

"I took the gloomy smoked glass out of your windows and put in rose red glass instead. I let in some sunshine," said the rabbit. "It was the smoked glass that made you gloomy. Now you'll be happy!"

And so Mr. Dog was! A wonderful magical change! And if the rice will stop pulling out its radishes to see if they have turned into lollypops, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's May flowers.

7 O'clock Evening 'Phone Call Regulates Days For Windsor

Never Misses Chat With Mrs. Simpson After Afternoon Of Golf, Motoring Or Hiking

A LATE RISER

By A. D. Sieffered
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

ST. WOLFGANG, Austria, April 30— (AP) — The Duke of Windsor lives today — and every day for a telephone call. Every evening at seven he calls Mrs. Wallis Simpson. The call is the one unvarying feature of his day. All his plans revolve about it. It determines the time of returning from excursions and the time of the evening meal. Nothing is allowed to interfere with it.

As a rule the former King sleeps late, almost until noon. Once in a while he arises about 10:30 or 11, if the day is especially sunny. He breakfasts frugally, apples being the main item, usually while looking over his mail.

Subsequently, if there are no curiosity seekers on the public road not far from the house, Edward takes his puppy, Schmuckl, for a brief stroll around the house and down to the boat-landing a few steps from the front door.

Auto Trip, Hike or Golf.

During this time he makes up his mind about the afternoon excursion—whether an automobile tour to a neighboring town, lake, or a walk up a mountain, or golf.

The departure usually occurs between one and two p.m. in two large cars. The Duke sits in the first with his equerry, adjutant and detective, while gendarmes follow in the second to prevent others from bothering him. The Duke carries a camera on all trips, depending on the time for afternoon tea. Until seven he reads and rests. Dinner is always a quiet affair, and taken with equerry and adjutant. The Duke invariably retires late, after a walk with the dog. Evenings are spent quietly—in talk, listening to the radio, playing an accordion, smoking his new peasant's pipe a foot long, or reading. Physical and mental fitness has become an ideal of the Duke. An ardent golfer, a seven-hole course near here has been enlarged for his use.

Climbs a Mountain.

One of his outstanding feats was a climb up the 5,863-foot-high Schafberg (sheep mountain) to an altitude of about 4,000 feet. There snow prevented a further ascent.

Windsor felt not unduly tired that evening, but members of his retinue went to bed earlier than usual. The same thing happened one day when they walked half way around the St. Wolfgang lake. The Duke took it all in his stride, but the others complained it was too much for them.

The Duke is tanned and healthy-looking. He walks with a firm, springy step and seems full of energy. At 43 he appears as lean as a boy.

The Duke's chef laments that breakfast comprises mostly fruit, that tea is standardisedly British, and the dinners leave no scope at all for his imagination. Economy is the watchword.

The Duke gets along with nine servants. Seventeen were required at Enzesfeld. The rent of the home here is estimated to be one-fourth of that paid for the Rothschild estates near Vienna.

FURNITURE PROBE TO BE CONTINUED

Dunning Suggests Tariff Board's Facilities may Be Of Advantage To Industry

OTTAWA, April 30—(CP)—The Tariff Board will continue its investigation into the furniture industry, and notices to that effect have been sent out by Secretary J. R. MacGregor. Where or when hearings will be held has not yet been determined.

Instructions to continue the probe were issued by Finance Minister Dunning prior to his departure for the Imperial Conference last week. Writing to Chairman George H. Sedgewick, the minister suggests that the Board's facilities "may be of advantage to the industry," should the furniture manufacturers proceed with the reorganization recommended in the Board's report on the industry.

"I deem continuation of the reference to be highly desirable in view of the fact that the report itself recommended the entire situation as regards tariff protection should be reviewed in the relatively near future," said the minister.

In a report submitted to the minister near the close of the session, the Board recommended a temporary increase in furniture tariffs from 30 to 37½ per cent. against American products. Because of the terms of the Franco-Canadian treaty, this made the effective rate 33⅓ per cent. instead of 27.

The Government accepted the Board's recommendation, despite protests from Western Liberals, the changes going through the House the last day of the session.

The new investigation will be a continuation of the old one, meanwhile the industry, centred in Western Ontario, making efforts to reorganize itself on a stable basis.

Police are seeking Mrs. Baker's estranged husband, Harold, who is identified with the Building Service International Union. According to a woman who shared Mrs. Baker's apartment, quarrels with her husband prompted Mrs. Baker to say she was going "to tell Dewey what I know."

JANETVILLE

BANQUET ENDS Y.P.U. SEASON

Forty-Five Attend Jolly Social Gathering Of Janetville Young People

INTERESTING PROGRAM

JANETVILLE, April 30—The final meeting until Fall of the Young People's Union was in the form of a banquet in the United Church on Monday evening. Covers were laid for forty-five and the tables presented a most pleasing appearance with their snowy linen and gleaming crystal and silver. The floral centres consisted of cut glass bowls of Spring flowers and occupying a central position at the head table was a large bouquet of beautiful pink carnations, the gift of Mrs. (Rev.) Walker who was unable to be present owing to illness.

Unique favors and place cards added their quota of interest, the latter being in the form of vociferously singing birds.

During the evening the following interesting program was enjoyed with Leonard McNeil, president of the union acting in the capacity of toastmaster. The toast to "Our King and Country" was proposed by Rev. W. H. V. Walker of the local Presbyterian Church and responded to with the singing of the National Anthem.

Rev. H. J. Bell of Blackstock proposed the Toast to the Church. Rev. H. C. Wolfraim of the local church responding. Orchestra selection and encore by Messrs L. McNeil, H. Bradburn, Omer and Bryce Capstick. The Toast to "The Young People's Union" was proposed by Rev. C. H. Ferguson of Bethany, Victor Blatherwick, a former president replying.

Mrs. (Rev.) Ferguson of Bethany then favored with two excellent humorous readings entitled "The Stove Pipe Hole" and "The Courtship of Larry O'Dee. An address was given by Mrs. (Rev.) Bell of Blackstock on the "Life of D. L. Moody". Instrumental number, P. Hamilton. The Toast to the Ladies was proposed by Mr. Hamilton and responded to by Miss Isabel McInnis. The Toast to the visitors was proposed by Roy Marshall and Mrs. Bell of Blackstock very ably replied.

After a few remarks by the Toastmaster the evening concluded with the Mizpah Benediction.

Sunderland Wins 3 to 1 Cup Final

Come From Behind In Second Half To Beat Preston North-End

93,000 SEE GAME

King George Presents Cup And Medals To The Winning Team

WEMBLEY STADIUM, London, May 1.—(CP Cable.)—Coming from behind in a terrific second-half offensive Sunderland captured English Football Cup honors for the first time to-day with a 3-1 decision over Preston North End. Frank O'Donnell gave Preston a 1-0 first-half lead but goals by Gurney, Carter and Burbanks swept the favorites to victory before the second period was half over.

After the victory the King, who with the Queen and King Farouk of Egypt had watched the encounter from a flower-embowered Royal box, presented the cup and medals to the victors.

An estimated 93,000 spectators, who had found their way to the great enclosure despite a strike involving 20,000 busmen, watched a tussle that developed from mediocrity into a thrilling battle between two well-matched squads.

Ragged Game at First.

Twenty-two nervous players put up a ragged exhibition for most of the first half in which Frank O'Donnell, brilliant Scottish International centre-forward, sent Preston into the lead after 27 minutes.

From that point on the standard of play improved as Sunderland, "the team of all talents," settled down to its customary methodical, match-winning game. In the second half the power of the Roker Park attack carried all before it for most of the 45 minutes.

Six minutes elapsed when Gurney equalized from a corner placed accurately by Burbanks. After 71 minutes of play Gurney passed to Carter, Sunderland's English International inside-right, and captain, who sent a sizzling left-footer into the right hand corner of the net from 15 yards out. Five minutes later Burbanks ended scoring as the culmination of the most thrilling movement during the game. The whole forward line combined in a raid on Preston's goal, Burbanks netting by banging the ball past Mapson's outstretched arm after receiving an accurate pass.

Preston Won Toss.

Tremelling, Preston's captain, won the toss, and elected to play with advantage of a slight wind but facing the sun.

Sunderland went down on the right immediately after the kick-off Beattie clearing by kicking into touch.

At the other end, Milne made a

MAJOR MAY DAY RALLIES ARE SET WESTERN CANADA

Toronto's Labor Men Parade To Picnic—Movings Fewer, Houses Scarce

MONTREAL ON GUARD

TORONTO, May 1 (C.P.).—Once commemorative of the birth of Spring, May Day now means for Canadians "moving day" and a time for labor to celebrate.

Western Canada will probably draw more of the politically-minded to scheduled parades and meetings more than other parts of the Dominion. Only scattered labor demonstrations were announced for Ontario and Quebec. The Maritimes planned no celebrations.

Fifty organizations will parade through downtown Vancouver, followed by a meeting in spacious Stanley Park. In Edmonton labor and political groups announced they would parade, while in Southern Alberta a mass meeting in Calgary's Victoria Park was on the schedule.

Forty assorted organizations will unite in a parade through Winnipeg streets to be followed by a mass meeting in Market Square, centre of many political rallies.

Headed by bands, labor sympathizers wound their way through Toronto's narrow streets in an afternoon demonstration that ended in a picnic. Elsewhere in Ontario, May Day meant only May 1 to most of the citizens.

Quiet reported something out of the ordinary. Reports from there said the annual movings would not be as numerous this year as in the past, owing to shortage of houses.

At a Montreal meeting, speakers were expected to talk about the Quebec Government's recently enacted "padlock law," an anti-Communist statute. Police were ordered to be on hand as a precautionary move.

Further Threat Looms In Prospect Of 500,000 Coal Miners Going Out

Trainmen Will Stay On Job Unless Bus Firms Try To Use Non-Unionists

LONDON, May 1.— (CP).—Britain, with its capital to-day in the grip of a vast surface transportation strike, faced the prospect of more than 500,000 coal miners leaving work in three weeks.

With the Coronation less than two weeks away and the city overflowing with visitors and with soccer enthusiasts for this afternoon's cup final, London's buses did not stir out of their garages.

Drivers numbering 13,800 and 12,700 conductors began their strike at midnight to obtain from the Passenger Transport Board a 7½ hour day in place of the present eight hours, and a slowing up in what they describe as "killing" schedules.

The city's traffic snarl was duplicated in practically all the south of England, where more than 100,000 drivers and conductors went on strike simultaneously.

Busmen asserted the strike was 100 per cent effective in the London area. The familiar red buses were absent from city streets for the first time since the great general strike of May 1926, when 2,500,000 striking workers paralyzed the nation.

Thousands of Londoners wheeled out their bicycles—some of them tandems — and pedaled to work. Many sympathetic motorists gave pedestrians lifts.

DUKE'S HONEYMOON SET FOR AUSTRIA

Has Taken Villa At Wesserleonburg For The Summer Spokesman Announces

SAINT WOLFGANG, Austria, May 1 (UP).—The Duke of Windsor told the United Press last night, through his spokesman, that he and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson will spend their honeymoon in a secluded villa in Austria.

"Yes, it is true that His Royal Highness has taken a villa at Wesserleonburg for the summer—he confirms your information," the spokesman said.

The United Press asked Edward's spokesman if it were true that the villa at Wesserleonburg had been taken for June 28.

"The date is not correct but they will be there during the summer," he said.

As soon as Mrs. Simpson's final decree of divorce is handed down in the London law courts Monday the Duke will board the first train to Paris and hurry on to Tours.

Edward, it was explained, has been in constant touch with the Royal family by telephone and there is "absolutely no possibility" of his taking any course which would "interfere with the Coronation or embarrass his brother who has succeeded him on the Throne."

Cleaning Out Its 300 Wells Is Thamesville's First Task

Kent And Essex Lowland Residents Rejoice As Five-Day Flood Subsides

FARM WORK DELAYED

CHATHAM, Ont., May 1 (C.P.).—Residents of the lowlands of Kent and adjoining Essex County rejoiced to-day the mad five-day spree of the Thames had ended, even though a trail of muck and havoc lay in the river's wake. With thankful hearts they learned the rampaging stream's flood crest went crashing last night into Lake St. Clair.

Now the work of rehabilitation, similar to that under way in London and other centres to the east, has begun. Thamesville, caught in the westward rush of waters, had 300 wells to cleanse before drinking water supplies could be tapped. The 150 desolated homes there had no natural gas.

Chatham escaped lightly, except for a few houses near the riverbank, but in the surrounding countryside water still stood feet deep in low spots, and farmers said it would be many days before their land would dry sufficiently to permit resumption of spring work.

About 18 miles west of Chatham, just beyond Jeanette's Creek, a tiny Essex community, the flood crest crashed into the lake, flowing as swiftly there as little "backing up."

So said Dr. Margaret Wylie, of the Family Life Department, New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell University, today in summarizing some of the "findings" of various researches on twins.

Nine British Ships To Aid All Refugees

Franco In Defiant Note Informs Britain Rescue Craft Will Not Be Respected

LONDON, May 1 (A.P.).—British merchantmen, aided by British warships, will carry out the evacuation of civilians from Bilbao without the consent of insurgent General Francisco Franco, informed sources disclosed to-day.

9 Merchantmen Ready.

HENDAYE, France - Spanish Frontier, May 1 (A.P.). — The captains of Nine British merchantmen, ignoring Spanish insurgent refusals to respect any foreign ships inside their Bay of Biscay "blockade" agreed to-day to evacuate as many children as possible from Bilbao.

The captains of the nine ships, which already have reached Bilbao through the insurgent sea gauntlet, said they hoped to be able to remove between 4,000 and 5,000 children to St. Jean de Luz, around the bend of the Bay of Biscay in France.

Franco Defiant.

HENDAYE, France - Spanish Frontier, May 1.—(AP). — Gen. Francisco Franco, virtually defying Great Britain and France to remove non-combatants from Bilbao, massed his forces today to storm the barricades of the refugee-packed Basque capital.

Almost as though spurred by the sinking of the battleship Espana, a mighty unit of Franco's blockade of Bilbao and the Biscay coast, the insurgent high command curtly notified the British ambassador to Spain Franco's battle fleet would not be hindered to respect foreign ships removing civilians from Bilbao.

The insurgent answer to a British inquiry as to whether Franco would permit free passage to French and British transports engaged in evacuation was presented to Embassy officials, temporarily located here.

British officials said the insurgents had insisted on maintaining the Bilbao blockade in conjunction with the land offensive now nearly at the city gates.

Conflicting reports as to the number of fatalities when the Espana was blasted amidships yesterday by a government bomb dropped by an attacking plane in one of the ship's funnels—as government advices had it—persisted to-day.

Some dispatches said only 110 of the Espana's men and officers were saved but advices from the governor of Santander, Spain, said all the crew were dragged from the water four miles off Cape Mayor.

HIGHGRADE CASE GETS YEAR TERM

Salesman Admits Shipping $63,588 In Gold To New York In Six Months

WINDSOR, Ont., May 1.—(CP)—Charles Massey Armstrong, found guilty of conspiring with persons unknown to dispose of highgraded gold, was sentenced by Judge F. W. Willson in county court today to one year in Ontario reformatory. Armstrong was tried and judgment was reserved until today.

Before passing sentence, Judge Willson conferred with Crown Attorney James Allan as to the advisability of suspended sentence but Allan demurred on the grounds that Armstrong would not assist police in prosecuting the actual highraders who brought gold here from the Porcupine district of Northern Ontario.

In a statement to Detroit police at the time of his arrest, admitted by Judge Willson despite objections of defence counsel, Armstrong was alleged to have admitted he received highgrade ore from Northern Ontario mines, took it to Detroit and shipped it to New York. According to police testimony Armstrong said that between April and September, 1935, he shipped $63,588 worth of gold from Detroit to New York.

Armstrong was charged in Detroit with making a false affadavit and released on suspended sentence as he could be brought here for trial. He was released on his own recognizance to appear later and since that time the trial has been postponed more than a dozen times.

Japan Turns From Canadian Nickel To Making Own Munition Supply

Tokyo, May 1. (CP).

JAPAN, hitherto dependent upon Canada for her nickel supply, has turned to domestic sources for that "munitions metal."

First major step in a program to make the empire independent of foreign sources for its armament raw materials is the project of the Japan Soda Company to establish a smelter at Yokohama which will turn out 150 tons of refined nickel a month.

A smaller company, the Japan Nickel Company, already is in operation treating domestic ore and estimates that within a year it will be able to fill 40 per cent of the country's requirements of 1,500 tons a year.

London Merchants Begin Clean-up

Their stock in trade ruined by flood water, merchants at London, Ont., began a clean-up campaign to restore activity to normal. This merchant is cleaning out all his water-spoiled goods and piling them on the sidewalk to be taken away. Throughout western Ontario the work of reconstruction in towns swept by flood waters has begun as the raging waters of the Thames river emptied into Lake St. Clair.

Ireland's New "Constitution" Ignores Both King And Empire

President, Elected By People, To Have 7-Year Term—New Senate, Dail Unchanged

ADOPT OLD TITLE "EIRE"

DUBLIN, May 1 (CP Cable) — Ireland today studied with keen interest the long-awaited "constitution of Ireland" which the Irish Free State voter will be called to approve shortly—probably in June.

It abolishes dominion status, does not mention the King or the British Empire and creates the post of president of Ireland. It declares Ireland a "sovereign, independent democratic state" but leaves an opening for continuance of co-operation with any group in the League of Nations in matters of common concern. The "group" was regarded as an indirect reference to Britain and the dominions.

Another step in Ireland's long fight for political independence, the constitution was issued by president of the council Eamonn de Valera in Irish and English.

Copies U.S. Constitution.

Its provisions suggest De Valera sought inspiration from the constitution of the United States and the papal encyclicals, notably those of Leo VIII.

It is proposed the constitution will apply to the whole of Ireland which is given again its ancient title of "Eire," but provides that, pending reintegration of the national territory, and without prejudice to the right to exercise jurisdiction over all Ireland, it shall be applicable to the existing Free State area.

Subordinate legislatures may be recognized and English permitted as the sole official language of a portion of the country. Both these provisions were regarded as intended to cover the North of Ireland in the event of fusion.

While there is no direct reference to the King or the British Commonwealth of Nations, it is proposed the Eire Government may: "Avail or adopt any organ, instrument or method of procedure used or adopted for like purposes by any group in the League of Nations with which Eire is or becomes associated for the purpose of international co-operation in matters of common concern."

Observers held this left the necessary loophole for continuance of common action with the Empire in matters of foreign policy, with Ireland having sole control of its internal affairs.

People to Name President.

The keystone of the new legislative setup is a President elected by all the people for a seven-year term. He would be advised by a council of state corresponding to the British Privy Council.

It is proposed to invest the President with extensive legislation, safeguarding his powers. For example

Egg Eaters Are Found Differ On Yoke Color

Omaha, Neb., May 1.

EGG eaters vary in their preference for yolk color as well as texture, the midwest section of the American Chemical Society learned to-day.

Dr. Paul E. Howe of the U.S. Department of Agriculture who has looked into the matter said he found distinct sectional preferences.

The New Yorker and Bostonian, for example, think the light yellow yolks look as well and taste best. The Georgian will take his dark yellow. In the corn belt, Nebraska and Iowa specifically, the yellow-red yolk is tops.

Incidentally, the chemists also learned a hen puts in 25½ hours to manufacture an egg, regardless of yolk color.

PETERBORO' BOY D. MULLEN NAMED ALBERTA CABINET

Succeeds Hon. W. N. Chant Asked To Resign By Aberhart Yesterday as Agriculture Head

FORCE MAY BE NECESSARY

EDMONTON, May 1.—(CP).—D. B. Mullen, 52, born in Peterborough, Ontario, Social Credit member of the Alberta Legislature for Edmonton, will be sworn in at 11 a.m. (the o.m. E.D.T.) today as a Minister of Agriculture to succeed Hon. W. N. Chant.

If Mr. Chant, Minister of Agriculture since the government took office, September 3, 1935, refused to resign in compliance with the demand of Premier William Aberhart, he will be ousted by order-in-council, it was announced last night.

It would be the second time in Alberta's history a cabinet minister had been retired by the lieutenant-governor. In reply to Premier Aberhart's demand that he vacate his post, Mr. Chant refused—temporarily at least—to accede to the request and asked for "more definite reasons" for the Premier's action.

"In any event it could hardly be considered as a reasonable request to ask a responsible minister of the crown to vacate his office upon short notice without giving adequate reason," said the member for Camrose.

When Mr. Aberhart asked for Mr. Chant's resignation he declared he had felt for some time there was "need of more aggressiveness" and higher efficiency in the Department of Agriculture of which you are minister."

Will Ask Governor To Act.

Providing Mr. Chant fails to resign, the government will ask Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Bowen to cancel his appointment. In 1918 after Premier Charles Stewart had received no reply to two requests to

Water Front Sheds Burn At Sarnia

SARNIA, Ont., May 1 (C.P.). — A water front fire, the 19th in recent weeks, damaged the freight sheds of the Tree Line Navigation Company and an apartment above the sheds during the night. Occupants of the apartment, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Maldman and three children, escaped before the flames reached their premises. The blaze was believed to be of incendiary origin.

The amount of the loss, which included a quantity of freight, has not been estimated. Firemen fought the blaze for nearly four hours before they got it under control.

The Provincial Fire Marshal's Department recently posted a reward of $300 for the arrest or information leading to the arrest of the incendiaries here.

Tax Men Smile As Final Day Sees Income Pot Overflowing

For 58 Million, 200,000 Individuals Add Another 35

2ND LARGEST PRODUCER

OTTAWA, May 1.—(CP)—That harassed look that creeps over the faces of Canadians about this time of the year is not all due to May Day shifts of residence or May Day labor demonstrations. Most of it is due to mental wrestling with an income tax return and the attendant task of trying to remember how much money the boss paid you' last year and how much you donated to charity.

However, it's all over now. That is it's all over for men and women who remembered that yesterday was the last day for filing tax returns. And while the book with the tax form brought many people to the point where they were mumbling to themselves, it brought a smile of satisfaction to the face of old Johnny Canuck, the tax collector.

From all parts of Canada, the income tax not was awakened yesterday, the last day before five per cent penalties are imposed on dilatory taxpayers. Officials were uncertain how much money was collected but they estimated the April revenue would exceed $75,000,000, about $2,-

Premier Duplessis Orders Arrest Of C.I.O. Organizer And Committee Chairman

WANTS NO RED INFLUENCE

Strikers Flout Labor Department's Order to Get Employees Back On Jobs

TORONTO, May 1.—(CP)—Premier Duplessis' order for the arrest on conspiracy charges of two International Union organizers in Montreal is "simply Fascism," John Noble, president of the Toronto District Labor Council and A.F. of L. organizer for Ontario, declared to-day.

"Enforcement of the law regarding strikes rests with the municipality," said Mr. Noble, "but where the province has stepped in over the heads of the Montreal police commission, I expect the government had spies there, as they have all over."

MONTREAL, May 1 (CP)—Authorized to swear in special officers if necessary, Quebec provincial police have been instructed to provide protection for members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union who wish to abandon their three-week-old strike and return to work pending further negotiations."

The instructions were reported to have come from Quebec last night at the same time Premier Maurice Duplessis ordered the arrest of union organizer Bernard Shane and strike chairman Raoul Trepanier. In his capacity as attorney-general Mr. Duplessis said the two officials would be charged with conspiracy against public order, and they were to be held without bail.

Hus before the instructions reached provincial police, Shane and Trepanier had left strike headquarters. Police officials declined to discuss the matter but there was no indication today the warrants had been served.

Explanation of the charges against the two men whose union is affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization, was not made by the premier was declared "We will not stand for any Communistic influences."

Department Flouted

The premier's move, made after the provincial labor department had warned strike authorities to get the workers back to the plants, where about 2,000 of the 5,000 original strikers have returned, was met with the declaration "the strike must and will go on."

Meanwhile, the complicated negotiations became more involved. First, the employers split into two factions, "one willing to sign certain agreements with the workers. Under these terms less than half the 5,000 workers returned to the shops. Then the I.L.G.W.U. representatives differed with spokesmen for the National Catholic syndicates over terms of the agreement.

First Day Attack On Speckled Beauties Sees Fishermen Out In Large Numbers

Long before daylight this morning enthusiastic Peterborough anglers were on their way to their favorite trout streams, hopeful of starting off the 1937 season with a notable catch of worthwhile fish. Perhaps it is not quite accurate to say that their "favorite stream" was their destination for this year the Big and Little Ouse and several other popular trout-fishing areas have been closed for fishing and the folk who used to visit those particular spots have had to select a new location this season.

A checkup last night among the fishermen planning a first day attack on the speckled beauties showed the Cavan streams picked by the majority as the logical spot to begin

PUPILS PRESENT DAINTY OPERETTA IN THE LYCEUM

Music Pupils Of St. Mary's Convent Are Heard In Delightful Operetta

LITTLE BOYS ASSIST

"A Golden Gift" was the title of one of the daintiest opperettas for children seen here in many long days. It was produced for the public at St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Friday evening, after two private performances for teachers and pupils. Music pupils of St. Mary's Convent and little boys from St. Peter's School formed the personnel for a delightsome offering that went through with businesslike promptness and despatch, closing in a manner quite unusual for junior affairs of this type, shortly before ten o'clock, with a pleased and large audience satisfied and delighted by a bijou offering that sparkled with lovely color, limited with melodious little tunes sung in sweet, childish voices, and that had a moral all its own, delicately wrapped up in song and story.

There were over one hundred juniors in the entire evening's entertainment, and they performed admirably, the cramped stage space and equally small dressing-rooms offering no hurdle for the children, trained so efficiently and well by the Sisters of St. Joseph. As far as the ear could discern, there were no lapses in memory. All went smoothly and sweetly to a colorful finale, where benign age is surrounded by innocent youth.

For Father Time himself (Charles Duffus) was one of the major figures in the story. His was a benevolent and venerable presence that contrasted strikingly with the dainty charm of the miniature lads and lasses who thronged about him, as he sent them out on a quest for "the secret of a golden day," which merged itself finally into a realization of love and unselfish service as the beginning and end of such a search.

The setting was designed with care and was very effective. For that beautiful closing, there was a soft afterglow in a tinted sky that served as a large backdrop, formed in evergreen trees. Rose-covered trellises added to the pretty effect. This was Father Time's home, and here he received his little guests, listened to their stories and bestowed on each one a golden dream bag.

Gay Costumes

The dainty allegory was sweetly worked out by the children who came first for a picnic in a woodland. The Nature Sprites visit them later in a meadow. The children themselves wear pastel-tinted gowns with big hats. To them come the darling little Sunbeams, in golden frocks with glittering tiaras in their curls and star-tipped wands. These are followed by the exquisite Butterflies in bright rose pink and yellow with butterfly wings and antennae, and the pattering Raindrops, rustling in paper attire of soft blue, with silver capes.

The whole effect of the bright colors, softly harmonized, the melodious tunes in soft young voices, and the central figure of the gentle impresario Father Time, in his wide draperies, his long white beard and flowing locks, was extremely interesting, the action progressing in ordered tempo to the pretty finale, where the old man waits for his youthful guests, returned from their search. With him are his lovely attendants in softly-colored frocks; Vesper (Teresa Ryan); Curfew (Louise Roche), and the Twilight group—Evening Star and the Hours — (Margaret Young, Barbara O'Brien and Catherine McTeague), singing their soft songs and hanging up silver stars on the heavenly back drop.

The program of the evening included entre'acte music that was much enjoyed, in violin solos by Miss Catherine Corkery and Francis Strano; piano music by Noe Della-Fiamie, and a highly humorous recitation by Miss Helen Ross, a bedizened lady caller on an invalid (Miss Doris Strickland), who is rendered speechless and stricken by the glum remarks of her visitor.

By no means least, for they constituted in themselves what was really the small hit of the evening and aroused great enthusiasm which seemed to surprise them greatly, were four very small laddies who were dignified by the large name of a Rhythm Orchestra. They were very young and very small, even though they wore men's evening suits if black, complete with "tails" and "white tie", and sported a boutonniere apiece.

They beat their small metallic instruments and tinkled their little bells in a tempo all their own and were largely acclaimed by a delighted audience. These small men were Jack Finn, dispute Fitzpatrick, Paul McIntyre and Joseph Whibbs.

Music by Orchestra

Accompanists of the evening were the Misses Marion Best, Margaret Corkery and Alma Duffy. And a tuneful, youthful orchestra that played pleasing music was composed of the following players: The Misses Catherine Corkery, Marcelle O'Donnell, Marie Grainger and Frances Asla, Jack Doran, Francis Strano, Cyril Fontaine, Michael Pepe, Menzies McLaren, Edward Geraghty, Ormond Strano, Francis Doran, Billy Bexley.

The group of children included Joan Reid, Catherine Ryan, Mary Nelson, Mary Sullivan, Angela Hutchinson, Margaret Doran, Marion Downer, Betty Gordon, Pauline Fanning, Joan Fahey, Patricia Eggleton, Grace Bell, Doreen Chambers, Rita Hynes, Rosina Fanning, Betty Houlihan, Ann Creighton, Alberta Ryan, Yolande De Chantigny, Loretta Curtin, Maureen Hickey.

Sunbeams: Isabel Hynes, Beverley Hunt, Jeanette Downer, Mamie Sullivan, Rita Freeman, Doreen Grainger, Winnifred Ryan, Isabel Carey, Teresa Neale, Rose Marie Williams, Jacqueline Wilkinson, Betty Woodcock, Doreen Schell, Marilyn Armitage, Mary Fair, Leona Grisdale, Mildred Anthony, Jan Rose, Ann Galvin, Helen Graham, Nancy Gordon.

Butterflies: Teresa Hynes, Catherine Graham, Helen Strano, Dorothy Doran, Teresa Houlihan, Rosanne Monahan, Isabel Hunt, Patricia Coughlin, Joan Cavanagh, Irene Meade, Philomena Schiarizi, Teresa Cacavelle, Adeline Campanaro.

The big hall at the Lyceum was gaily decorated with festoons of rosettes in red, white and blue, crossing the ceiling, and wall brackets held quantities of little flags.

Supplies For Northwood.

Residents of Northwood in Chatham's southside, bore the brunt of the river's last fling and the $350,000 Red Cross re-establishment campaign will probably include provisions for their care. Rural districts, too, will be aided, according to word from Toronto.

A sandbag barricade had protected Chatham waterworks and even Northwood might have escaped had not the dam on the Rhodes farm given way, flooding the district and causing eight families to abandon their homes. Chatham factories, business places and homes in the north were being mopped up after minor flooding.

Houses in the hamlet of Prairie Siding were still surrounded by water. Joseph Barnier having been one of the last to flee from his house. The water had poured in to that district across the Owen Crow and Wilfred Rossell farms.

by before they could find standing room.

At all bus garages strong lines of pickets, each wearing a red rosette, stood in an orderly manner under the watchful eyes of police.

There was a possibility the subway men would further confound the situation later by quitting work, but the trammen declared they would not strike unless the bus companies attempted to introduce non-union men.

The coal strike was ordered by delegates of the Mine Workers' Federation in a conference held here. It will be effective May 2, unless a settlement is reached in the Federation's demand for complete recognition in the Nottinghamshire area where a union affiliated with the Federation has been battling for many months with a so-called company union.

All mines in England and Wales will be affected, union officials said. Strike notices were ordered sent out to expire simultaneously on that date. The situation was brought to a head by owners of the Harworth colliery refusing to negotiate with the Federation. Efforts to amalgamate the two unions in the area into one group under the Federation failed.

The Royal Road To The Coronation

The Queen Tries Flying—With Some Encouragement

HIS years in the Royal Air Force at the conclusion of the great war undoubtedly gave King George a first-hand knowledge of the technical detail of flying. Aviation has changed greatly since those years, has leaped ahead with great strides both commercially and otherwise, and to-day Britain, with its great empire flying routes which this year will be extended to include a trans-Atlantic service touching Canada and thereby forging another link in the flying chain which encircles the globe, stands near the top in aircraft development.

King George has flown little if at all, in late years. England, willing perhaps to see its fliers become supreme in commercial and military fields, still looks askance at the suggestion that its king or queen should risk even possible injury or accident in aerial trips. Bowing to the wishes of his subjects his majesty will not insist upon aviation as his chief mode of transport, though it has been suggested on good authority that he will not dispense entirely with aeroplanes as a means of travelling to or from his many duties.

Both the King and the Queen have shown themselves firm believers in the future of aviation and have taken great pains to inform themselves as to its development and possibilities. The King often appears in the air force uniform which his ranking as an officer entitled him to. Nominally, of course, as King he now heads the R.A.F. as he does the other services.

To-day we present Queen Elizabeth about to leave Croyden aerodrome, centre of Britain's vast commercial air traffic, on a flight to the continent.

RAIN AND CADETS

The P.C.V.S. Cadet Corps held their drills on Monday and Wednesday of this week. Rain forced the militarists into the Armouries on Wednesday. For the short while that the rain permitted outside work, members of the Bugle Band made themselves heard parading on the Campus and on McDonnel street. Hugh Davidson is shaping his buglers and drummers into a real band.

This year Mr. A. Craig has formed a battalion, divided into three companies. Each company is composed of four platoons and each platoon contains two sections.

John McMillan has command of A Company, Peter Demos of B Company, and Stuart Laing has command of C Company.

The Officers Training Corps had their drills on Tuesday and Thursday.

SPORTS

Two softball teams have started functioning at P.C.V.S., the North Enders and the West Enders. In a game on Thursday after school the North End boys came out on top by the count of 4-3. A third team is applying for entry into the league.

NEW JEWELLERY.

School pins and rings have been on display in the trophy case this week. This year's tokens have the school motto and crest embossed on them and are considered by students very attractive works of the jewelry art. The Commercial graduating class has a pin of its own special design.

The Students' Council took a canvass of the school during the latter part of the week to determine the correct quantity to order, and obtained a large response.

EXPORT BUYING STEADIES PRICES WHEAT MARKET

Values Require Whole Week To Recover Early Dive Of Five Cents

OUTLOOK UNEASY

WINNIPEG, May 1.— (CP). — Traders, tabulating in month-end accounts the drastic breaks in wheat prices from the $1.50 level reached early in April, 30-day saw uneasy world financial markets but felt confident European demand would be a stimulant. Offerings at present levels are expected to be scarce due to the bullish world statistical position.

Prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange ended a nervous week 1 cent lower to 1¼ cents higher than at April 23. At the close yesterday May wheat was quoted at $1.22¾, July $1.20 ¾-¾, and Oct. $1.16 ¾-¾.

Though wheat quotations appeared settled April 28 following a 2c cent setback in the May future since April 8 values again nose-dived five cents last Monday and took the rest of the week to recover.

Export buying steadied prices while North American weather reports played an important part. Higher movements from Argentine and Australia indicate Europe may turn to Canada for supplies.

Canadian exports last week were estimated at 2,000,000 bushels, further reducing the Dominion's smallest exportable surplus in years—less than 14,000,000 bushels compared [illegible] as May 1 last year.

MOHAWK PUPILS GO OUT ON STRIKE

Two Hundred Refuse To Attend Classes, Resenting Proposed Change Of Teachers

CORNWALL, Ont., May 1 (CP) — Two hundred pupils of the Mohawk Indian Reserve School at Hogansburg, N.Y., three miles from Cornwall, went on a sit-down strike yesterday, it was learned here.

Reports reaching Cornwall said the pupils had rebelled when they heard a rumor there were to be changes in school's teaching staff at the end of the present term.

The pupils refused to go into the class-rooms and played in the yard, where they displayed posters indicating their protest, reports said.

School authorities are considering action of the pupils.

The Hogansburg school is one of the finest in Northern New York State, and a large percentage of the pupils are Indians.

COBOURG—Mrs. Violet May, appearing before Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell in police court here, was ordered to pay a fine of $100 and $5 costs with the option of three months in counties jail on the conviction of "unlawful possession of liquor."

Evidence given by Chief Carey was to the effect that a quantity of beer was found in the home of the accused when he visited it. The woman claimed that the liquor had been brought to the house without her knowledge by another party and although a bottle was found by the officer on the sideboard she did not know of its presence.

COBOURG.—It is learned that J. W. Maize will succeed the late John W. Sprague as manager of the Cobourg branch of the Dominion Bank. Mr. Maize has been stationed at Leamington for some time and while the time of his arrival here is not definitely known, it is expected that he will take over his new duties in the course of the next two weeks.

It is also learned that John Roddick has been named to succeed Mr. Maize as manager of the Leamington branch.

Mr. Young stated that three dozen pair of soles were removed from the rear of the shop. He was unable, he said, to tell how much of his tobacco and cigarette stock had been removed.

Entry to the shop was made, it is thought, in the early hours of Tuesday morning from an enclosed court at the rear. Access to the court was gained through a vacant store in the Ware block from which the intruder or intruders climbed into the court after removing a pane of glass from a window in the vacant store. Catch of the window in the rear of Mr. Young's shop was broken when the window was jimmied open.

HOBO BUZZARDS GIVEN WARNING

Will Lose Association Card Unless Home For Mother's Day Says 'King' Davis

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—The grapevine of hobo-land carried the warning today that the "jungle boss" would be on the lookout for the "buzzards" who don't scamper home for Mother's Day, May 9.

The "Jungle boss"—the hoboes' own policemen—received their instructions—an ultimatum — from Jeff Davis, "king" of the hoboes of America since 1906.

His order said all hoboes within 1,000 miles of home who don't arrange to visit their mothers on Mother's Day would have their hoboes of America cards taken from them. Those more than 1,000 miles from home were instructed to write.

"Our jungle boss, 500 of them, will be watching all the boys on the road," Davis said, "and whenever they find my dictatorial order has not been heeded, then they'll get tough. We can ostracize every guy who doesn't carry a hobo card."

The "buzzards," the "king" explained, were the fellows who won't help get the eats in camp, but will help consume them." He contended they were the kind who wouldn't go home.

SABBATH MESSAGE

REV. F. R. JAMES

THE ASCENT OF MAN.

"I ascend unto My Father and your Father."—St. John 20, 17.

At Easter we proclaim that "Christ is risen indeed." Yet how many Christians realise that Our Lord's first words to Mary Magdalene on that Easter morning are not that "He is risen indeed," but "I ascend unto My Father." His ascension is the uppermost thought in His mind.

Your child asks, "Where is the Lord Jesus?" "He is ascended into Heaven" is your natural reply. Where is Heaven? Heaven is a state of nearness to God. If Christ dwells in your heart by faith you are in heaven while on earth.

At His resurrection Our Lord did not return to life as did Lazarus. His physical body was changed into the spiritual. Body fit to live on a spiritual plane. He is to live for ever.

"I ascend unto My Father" implies that the uppermost thought in the mind of the Lord was to look upon the face of the Father. During His life on earth he had memories of that previous existence, "the glory which He had with the Father before the world was." His human soul longs to enjoy the beatific vision of the Father. At His ascension He passes into the very presence of the Father and His soul is satisfied. This was the joy that was set before Him.

Again at His ascension Our Lord took up into Heaven that which had never been there before. When Our Lord entered this world by birth He took our nature and became a real man. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." That human nature had to be strengthened against evil by a victorious resistance of temptation. Christ did this in His life of temptation, in the agony in the Garden and on the Cross. "Lo, I come to do Thy will, O My God," was His ideal. His perfect obedience created a Body fit to be raised from the dead. In Him dwelt all the fulness of humanity. None of us look upon Him as a Jew. To the Christian Chinaman He is a Chinese; to the black man He is a black Christ; to us white people He is a white Christ. This is the meaning of His perfect human nature. When Our Lord ascended He took this Body into Heaven. Our Lord stands in the presence of the Father as perfect Man. He is the fulfillment of the desire: "Let us make man in our own image." The Father looks upon the Beloved Son, the Perfect Man, and is satisfied. He sees all that he hoped or looked for from humanity. What an important truth for our age. In Christ's ascension man is raised up to an equality with God. He stands at God's right hand.

At this time our thoughts are on the Coronation of King George. Our Lord's ascension into Heaven is His Coronation. He is "crowned with glory and honor." He passes through the spiritual hosts of heaven, principalities and powers, who pay homage to Him and acknowledge Him as King. He is Christ the King. Before Pilate He does not deny His Kingship, but explains: "My kingdom is not of this world." God not only raised Him from the dead, but has given Him authority over all things both in heaven and on earth. St. Paul develops the thought and says that God "has set Him far above all principalities and powers, and might and dominion, and every name that is named not only in this world but also in that which is to come." (Eph. 1, 20.) Again it is the purpose of the Father that "at the name of Jesus every knee should bow of things in heaven and things in earth and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father." (Phil. 2, 9.)

Furthermore, the ascension is the door of our personal salvation. Our Lord returns to the Father with the fruits of His sacrifice, offering His pierced Body and outpoured Blood as the instruments of our salvation. "In the midst of the throne stood a Lamb as it had been slain." He has entered into the Holy of Holies with His Blood "now to appear in the presence of God for us."

It is an apostolic injunction to "think on these things." When your mind accepts the dignity of man you will not despise your fellow man, no matter who he is.

You are overwhelmed with the consciousness of your sin. You may draw near to God through Him for "We have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous." This is the wonder and glory of the ascension.

Look, Father, look on His anointed Face,
And only look on us as found in Him;
For lo, between our sins and their reward
We set the passion of Thy Son Our Lord.

Abraham a Man of Faith

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 2 is Genesis 11:27-20:18, especially 12:1-9; 13:14-1; the Golden Text being Hebrews 21:8. "By faith Abraham, when he was called obeyed to go out unto a place which he was to receive for an inheritance.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL.

Two divine plans to bless the world by working through the race as a whole have now failed, the first headed by Adam and the second by Noah. Utter degeneration attended both of these efforts.

God's next man is to work through a "chosen people". He will choose a race by choosing its great progenitor, and through this man Abraham and his seed he will bring his blessing of salvation to all nations. This explains how and why Israel became the "chosen people." Their election in no sense implies the rejection of other races, any more than God's calling of the ministry implies the rejection of the laity. This chosen people was not to be the receptable of divine grace, but only the channel through which that grace was to reach and bless all nations: "In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

A Chosen Land.

God picked his man Abram, afterwards to be called Abraham, from the sons of Terah at Ur of the Chaldees, near the Persian Gulf, doubtless because of his pure faith in the one true God. He called him out of an environment of polytheism to make of him an exponent and salesman of monotheism at the traffic center of the ancient world, "and he went out, not knowing whither he went." But God knew. He was taking this man whom he was not ashamed to call his friend, to establish him as a missionary, in the land that he would show him. Here he was to be a witness for the true God and spiritual worship to all nations as they swept by him, to and fro, with caravans of commerce or reports of armament upon the pursuits of peace or war. "Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house unto the land that I will show thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and be thou a blessing." That was God's call to Abram, and his covenant with him and his descendants.

A Choice Soul.

Abram's heroic response to this divine call to be the pioneer missionary of all ages made him one of the immortals of human history. "So Abram went as Jehovah had spoken unto him." "By faith Abraham, when he was called obeyed." He became the father of the faithful, a hero of faith, the first foreign missionary, pioneer of all westward journeying pioneers, with ears to hear and eyes to see, as God said. "All the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever." His greatness is explained by the altars he reared and left in his trail, and by the tent which speaks of his willingness to move ever forward with Jehovah. "And he removed from thence . . . and pitched his tent . . . and there he builded an altar unto Jehovah and called upon the name of Jehovah." The altar eloquently bespoke his upward look, and the tent as eloquently his onward look. Thus Abram journeyed with God. He built altars but no city, dwellings in a tent without foundation, "for he looked for the city which hath the foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

United Church Presbytery Opposes Conference Change

Suggestion Is To Merge Bay Of Quinte Conference With Toronto And Montreal

REV. COOK MODERATOR

The Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church met in St. Andrew's Church, Millbrook, on Thursday, with Rev. A. S. Cleland of Norwood in the chair, and unanimously opposed a move to do away with the Bay of Quinte Conference. The plan suggested was to place part with the Conference of Montreal and Ottawa, and the other part with the conference of Toronto.

Dr. C. V. McLean of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, intimated his desire to accept the call received from Dundas Street United Church in London, with the Rev. F. W. Young of London coming to Peterborough.

Rev. H. P. L. Seymour, Springville, requested a change of pastoral relations, while Dr. J. R. Watts of Queen's University, Kingston, was nominated for the presidency of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Rev. A. S. Cleland, Norwood, and A. Stewart, Peterborough, were re-elected to the 1937-38 settlement committee.

The Presbytery mission fund was reported as showing an increase of over $900.

Rev. E. M. Cook, Fraserville, was elected new chairman of Presbytery for 1937-38, and Messrs. H. G. Walker and R. F. Downey of Peterborough, J. G. Keefer, Norwood, and R. Findlay, Fraserville, were appointed to the Presbytery executive.

Words of appreciation for fellowship and leadership were tendered to Dr. C. V. McLean as he leaves for London. He began his ministry as summer supply in Knox Church in 1911, and for the past nine years he has ministered in St. Andrew's.

The committee on conference bounds under convenorship of Rev. C. V. McLean submitted the following report:

"General conference by the commission on the settlement of ministers submit to the conferences concerned asking for an expression of their judgment on these recommendations: (a) That the Bay of Quinte Conference be divided between Montreal and Ottawa and Toronto Conferences, adding the Kingston and Renfrew Presbyteries to the Montreal and Ottawa Conference, and the Belleville, Cobourg, Lindsay, Oshawa and Peterborough Presbyteries to the Toronto Conference, and (b) that Dufferin and Peel, Grey and Sudbury Presbyteries now within the Toronto Conference be transferred to the Hamilton Conference, and (c) that the Algoma Presbytery, now within Toronto Conference, be transferred to the London Conference.

"This committee recommends that: Whereas this suggested arrangement would increase the size of the Toronto Conference from 378 charges to 426 and from 813 preaching places to 954, and would result in a conference delegation numbering close to 900, and each of the other conferences mentioned will over 500, and Whereas such size and numbers tend to make the Toronto Conference, in particular, and the other conferences only to a lesser degree less efficient, and Whereas the proposed change appears very awkward geographically, if not impossible, in so far as it affects Hamilton and London Conferences, and, Whereas it would most unfavorably affect Queen's Theological College, and, Whereas such a change would remove 77 charges and missions from the Toronto Conference and add thereto 75 charges and missions of similar financial strength, e.g., which are now paying less than $1,500 salary, and therefore would not solve the difficulty of the north, and, Whereas such changes would offend and severely test the loyalties of a large percentage of our people in the Bay of Quinte Conference, that this Peterborough Presbytery place itself on record as being opposed to the recommendations of the said commission and that the remedies for the difficulties mentioned be sought in other ways."

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 1 (CP)—Jumping into a life net from the roof of the fire hall, Charles Brown, member of the fire department, struck the back of his head on the steel ring that holds the net and was painfully hurt. Fire Chief D. J. Lewis stated the men were holding their regular practice at jumping when the accident happened.

Fireman Brown is the biggest man on the force. The place from which he jumped was about 20 feet from the ground.

A National Message

By the late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

Now as to loyalty to the Prince of Peace—how are the statesmen and spiritual leaders of the nations placed today in regard to citizenship?

It has been assumed that all that is required is membership of the Church of Christ.

Let this assumption be faced squarely. Is membership of the Church of Christ the same thing as Citizenship in the Kingdom of the Prince of Peace?

Our reply is that it is not the same. The Church is not of this world. It is not of the same order as the Kingdom. The church penetrates all kingdoms and is not considered as an invasion of those kingdoms.

Thus the Church was established in the Empire of the Caesars as well as among other peoples and nations. Finally, the Empire became converted to Christ, but remained the Empire of the Caesars.

But the Kingdom of the Prince of Peace has a national foundation. The subjects of that Kingdom must have citizenship either by birth or by naturalization. All nations are now invited to enter into that Kingdom, and every citizen of such nations is invited to take out naturalization papers therein.

But this has not yet been done.

Even in Israel, we have lost sight of the fact that Jesus Christ is not only a King de Jure; He is also, and will be ever, King de Facto. His reign and His rule must be equal.

Now the law of the Lord and the common law of Britain have much in common. But there is very fundamental difference between them as they now stand.

Behind the law of the Lord is the authority of God, and of God alone.

Behind the common law, as now administered, there is the authority of British and American peoples, as expressed through Parliaments and Courts.

Loyalty to the Prince of Peace calls for a restoration of the authority of God behind the law. Loyalty to the Prince of Peace also calls for the expression of the law of the Lord in the terms of the word of God which is the Bible.

The Prince of Peace has ratified every jot and tittle of that law, acceptance of that which He has ratified, and confirmed for ever; there is no escape from that conclusion.

Loyalty to Him must mean the!

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

The chief difference between the conventional orthodox view-point and the mystical, is that the former is from man, outwards to God, whereas the latter is from man, inwards to God. The orthodox angle is only partly true, a half-truth, and like most half-truths obscures the reality, the mystical angle is wholly true and leads to the only possible part of the teachings of Jesus, as well as of others who preceded Him but it is ignored; possibly because it conflicts with the barbarous systems of theology that have since been erected, or possibly because it calls for a discipline of mind and body repugnant to many who do not realise its necessity. The ultimate unity of God in man with man is a basic truth underlying all the great Aryan religions from the earliest times down the ages to Jesus. The realization of this great truth or the non-realization, is the only thing which adequately explains man, both in his heights and in his depths.

The way of the Christ is the way from the self to the SELF, from the lower to the higher, from the outer to the inner. It is not an easy way, but those who have found it, have found the Kingdom of Heaven. We in the west wrongly put our emphasis upon our personal spiritual welfare and unornantly think that it depends upon an intellectual assent to one or the other particular form of belief. The east does not make that mistake, Greater than all outer belief is the inward becoming. To love God by reason of His love within yourself radiating to all who come in contact with you is god-like; to love Him for personal, selfish reasons is not to love Him at all.

We identify ourselves with that which we love, for in complete love there is no room for "I" or "Thou." He that loves his neighbour as himself, because his neighbour is mystically a part of himself, loves him as God loves him. There is no room for self, to make the point clear we quote a prayer composed by a Mohammedan woman saint of the Sufi sect, named Rabiya, "O God! If I worship Thee for fear of hell, burn me in hell; if I worship Thee in hope of Paradise, exclude me from thence; but if I worship Thee for Thine own sake, withhold not from me Thine everlasting beauty."

There is a world of truth in this that will bear dwelling upon.

FLOOD CONTROL PLAN

$3,000,000 Scheme Would Prevent Recurrence of Thames Overflow.

LONDON, Ont., May 1—(C.P.)—As they continued the heart-breaking task of rehabilitation in the flood areas, Londoners to-day studied a $3,000,000 control scheme which might prevent a recurrence of the disaster which this week swept the city. The scheme was considered before the Thames went on the loose and will now be submitted to the Ontario government.

In the form of a resolution passed a month ago by the Western Ontario branch of the Ontario Water and Forest Conservation Association at a meeting here, the flood control plan calls for a survey of the Thames and its tributaries to forestall just such a flood as has ravaged Western Ontario.

Abraham a Man of Faith — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 11:27-20:18.

Abram lived at Ur in Chaldea near the Persian gulf. His family and neighbors were worshipers of idols, but Abram prayed to the one true God. So God called him to be a missionary, in a strange land.

At the age of 75 Abram started westward. God wanted him in Canaan, the traffic center of the ancient world, where he might observe all nations as they passed through the land bent on peace or war.

God promised Abram he would make him a great nation with descendants as innumerable as the stars or as the sands of the seashore. In him and in his seed all nations were to be blessed.

Abraham's tent evidenced his willingness to move forward with God. The altars he built and left in his path evidenced his upward look as he continually put his faith in God and obeyed his call.

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1937

It Cannot Be Justified

The Finance Committee of the City Council unearthed something of interest at its last meeting when considering a request by the Peterborough Bus Company for renewal of the lease of the car barns. It was stated the bus company pays about $2,400 annually in gasoline tax.

And that tax goes to the provincial government.

But the buses of the company operate entirely on pavements which were built and paid for by people living in Peterborough.

And if the pavements become too much worn and have to be repaired Peterborough pays for the repairs.

Likewise Peterborough provides the passengers for the buses. It looks like a city of Peterborough affair all the way through. The provincial government gives or supplies nothing at all which is necessary to the operation of the buses on the city streets.

And yet the province gets the $2,400 per year by taxing the supply of gas which the buses consume.

We doubt whether the most ardent apologist of provincial rights as they are related to taxation could justify that form of taxation. The revenue belongs to the city, but we have not the least expectation the city will ever get it.

The Rich Are Paying

In the mail today there was a short letter telling how to raise money for taxation and other purposes. Part of it said: "Why not take more of it away from those who have so much wealth? I believe the time will come when all taxation will be based on income, but until we adopt that system we should make those with large incomes pay more because they can afford to do it."

Reports from Ottawa indicate an expectation of $125,000,000 this year by way of income tax, and that tax is being paid on the earnings of 1936. In a general way it means a collection has been made, which if generally subscribed to, would take about $11 from every man, woman and child in the Dominion. The family of five is often used as indicating the average size, and on that basis the family of five would pay $55 as tax on income earned during 1936.

But income tax is paid by only 200,000 persons in the Dominion. Truth is the number may be somewhat less than that. Last year there were 304 individuals in the Dominion who paid in a total of $11,055,666, or an average of $36,367. It means there are hundreds of thousands pay no income tax and the reason is they do not make sufficient to come within reach of the taxing officer.

A married man can earn up to $2,000 a year and pay no income tax. We believe the people with the larger incomes are paying a good deal of taxation; a good amount of what they make is being taken from them. They must pay all other forms of taxation, and then turn over a tax on all they have earned, regardless of the extent to which the same earnings have been previously taxed. Income taxation was introduced during the period of war financing, but it has become a permanent fixture and has gradually increased. Right now it is at its highest point in our history and constitutes the one item which produces most revenue.

Who Is Going To Do It

Rev. Dr. W. W. Judd, General Secretary of the Council for Social Services of the Church of England in Canada, made a statement at a Synod meeting in Toronto which needed making. It was this:

"If we can't find a Christian answer to the injustices abroad in the world today, then the communists will. . . . We've still too long on this question. The Communists are seeking a solution, but I'm convinced only church people will solve it rightly."

There is sufficient in the first sentence to cause rational and serious minded folk to think. Might be sufficient to cause some few of them to act.

We do not believe it can be seriously contended that our present system is right. The people living today have seen it in operation during a period when it has been put to the supreme test since the year 1930. It worked much better during what we call normal times, but in subnormal (or depression) years, it did not work well. It produced too many poor results. There were too many people who were stranded when there was no place for them to sell their power and willingness to work.

The communist will always seize upon such a period to sell his wares. As a rule he has little stake in the community, but he has a prescription which he claims will make all wrong things right. And he gains ground because he is at all times ready to step forward without being asked and advance his theories. The unrest which grows out of depression and unemployment gives him exactly the atmosphere he desires. It makes good soil into which he can drop his seed.

Those who are not communists do very little about it. They do not bring forward any newer or better plan than that under which we have been working, and the reason for their idleness is they have not been students, and they probably have little to offer. Mr. Judd stated the whole thing in few words when he said: "If we can't find a Christian answer . . . the communists will" And it is worth noticing that Mr. Judd did not claim he had the answer. He could do no more than express the fervent hope that the answer might come from Christian sources. And right there is the weakness of those who seek to defend the present economic system. We admit it has defects, but we do not know how to remedy them without destroying the entire structure. Never yet have we been able to come to grips with the actual causes of depression. At best we have been able to deal only with the results of depression. We might as well be honest about it—we do not know enough to properly do the thing which needs doing.

They Could Find Out

When the question of licensing slot machines came up for discussion at the Finance Committee, several of the aldermen admitted they knew little or nothing at all about slot or pin-ball machines, so for that reason they had not a very clear idea of what chance there was for the person who played the machines.

It would seem to us it would be a good thing for the aldermen to find out. Then they would know. In making such a suggestion there is no danger. The aldermen are rather a sensible lot of folk and it is not at all likely that the experiment would result in permanent habits.

Let three or four of them tackle some of those machines, and we would be quite satisfied if they took public money to conduct their experiment. Let them give the machines a fairly long test, for in that way only could they determine what chance the player has against the machine. When they reported after such an experiment all the members could vote with knowledge. We are quite certain they would be out of pocket after their session with the machines.

The Rooster Crows

Judged by his actions and general outlook it might be thought the barnyard rooster amounts to a good deal. He it is who does the crowing; there are some of these birds which stand to one side and call upon the hens to come along and share or entirely devour something which he has discovered to eat.

The rooster has spurs upon his legs, a rather ornate decoration on his head, and some fancy work under his chin, likewise a flowing tail to give him balance and beauty.

But a good deal of this is all on the surface. We have just been reading prices quoted at some of the chick hatcheries, and there we find that day-old New Hampshire Red pullets can be purchased for $13.95 per hundred, while cockerels of the same breed can be had for $4.75 per hundred. So a baby hen is worth more than four times as much as a baby rooster. But the grown rooster knows nothing of this and will probably continue to crow and strut as much as ever.

An Auction Sale

There have been stories told of old-time printers who went to work after tarrying long over the bottle, and there have been specimens of their work produced and reviewed. Much of which is exaggerated, but this one came to notice within recent days as the work of a printer who proceeded to set up the type for a farm auction sale bill during a time when there was so much booze in him that the world and all within it seemed confused and muddled and strange to behold. The finished bill read like this:

"Twenty-five cows, broke to work; 41 head of cultivators, coming in soon; 10 head of shoveling boars, with scoops by side; 8 pianos mares; 120 rods canvas belting, better than new; DeLaval cow with ice cream attachment; McCormick binder in foal; Poland China boiled, due to farrow in April; 14 head of chickens with grass seed attachments, in very good working order; 2 J. T. Case riding heifers, good as new; spraying outfit, can be ridden by children; 15 billy goats, 70 bushels capacity with spraying nozzle and other attachments; many other articles too numerous to mention, which I expect to get at right between now and date of sale."

Dressing for Coronation

This business of what to wear at the Coronation has reached the stage where it has become something about which wires and cables are made busy. We learn in a despatch from New York that James W. Gerard, former United States Ambassador to Germany, will be the special representative of President Roosevelt. And he too is bothered about what he is going to wear.

Mr. Gerard let it be known that he has turned over his case to the tailors in London because among other things he needs a pair of what he describes as Coronation breeches, and such a garment has to be made of silk and knee length. If he had a home-town tailor turn out such breeches Mr. Gerard admits the things would probably look like plus-four knickers. So he has sent his measurements and requirements on in advance, and all Mr. Gerard will have to do is put them on and pay for them and learn to feel at home in such an outfit.

A good many people who never before wore Coronation outfits will within a few days be parading in outfits the like of which we have seen only in moving pictures, and they will be wondering how far they can bend and with what ease they can move without placing too great a strain on their gay raiment.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If the strikers are as quiet as the product they handle that strike of South Jersey oystermen should be a very tame affair.

Meals in the Simcoe county jail during the past year have cost about five cents each. Of course at that price no orchestra is provided.

In Ottawa 3,800 families moved from one house to another on May 1. All of which is good for the moving companies if not for the furniture.

A Hamilton humane society inspector was called out to capture a skunk and we believe that he came very close to getting into bad odor with the public over the incident.

A Toronto dog which came across a parcel of stolen time pieces has received a lot of publicity. The explanation no doubt is to be found in the fact that the animal is a watch dog.

Windsor's relief roll has been cut to 14,906 which is a marked improvement from the peak figure. Still that leaves a lot of folk who have to look to public funds for the wherewithal to live.

A Toronto speaker says family life is being warped by poor housing. Strangely enough however it seems to be the folk who own the finest homes who stay in them the least.

A New York State woman cleaning up her back yard came across a cache of gold, silver and bills. After that, promoting a community clean up campaign in that village should be easy.

The Toronto police department is opening a school of instruction in car driving. Arrangements should be made for most of the current crop of motorists to take a post-graduate course.

Some of those little streams in western Ontario are like many people. The only way for them to get their names in the paper is to behave badly and cause a lot of trouble.

A Mason from the United States says many Americans wished they had Premier Hepburn as a state governor. There are folk in Oshawa who would be glad if their American friends could have their wish.

Premier Hepburn denies the report that Ontario is to have a general provincial election on June 22. That's good. There are a lot more pleasant things to do in June than running a political campaign.

Blairmore, Alta., has decided to abolish Tim Buck boulevard named after the Canadian Communist leader. This action will undoubtedly be hailed as another capitalistic conspiracy by the admirers of Mr. Buck.

One of the two Saskatchewan directors of the Canadian Press is D. B. MacRae of the Regina Leader-Post. The Glengarry boy has gone a long way since he was a reporter on the staff of the Review here.

There seems to be considerable arguments as to just who won a number of recent strikes. There is no controversy however as to who will be the ultimate loser. Old John Q. Public is destined to fill that role.

Motor deaths in United States for the first three months of this year have increased by 26 per cent. over the same period in 1936. As last year was the worst on record it looks as if the fatalities in traffic accidents across the line are aiming at a new all-time high.

MELODY

(By A. E. K.)

¶ When I sang in the village choir, I used to set the notes on fire. I sat long side of Joe; I used to sing the notes up high, and hit them as they flickered by, while Joe he rumbled low.

¶ The man who ran the choir at home, I've often heard him sigh and groan, unhappy were his days; for he had chaste artistic taste, deplored the trend of noise and haste, he doted on real praise.

¶ He wanted parts sung soft and low, and others must be whispered slow, a mystic atmosphere; but Joe believed in no such thing, for when he opened up to sing, lie wanted folk to hear.

¶ And Joe and I agreed on that, each time it came our turn to bat, we scored things low and sweet; the notes we made were big and round, we sort of specialized on sound, they heard us down the street.

¶ The man who ran the choir could plead, but neither Joe nor I paid heed, we like to sing out loud; for we were young and husky men, and we had power within us then, and sang like quite a crowd.

¶ So Joe and I were asked to quit, before the leader had a fit, and that was years ago; when I was singing notes up high, and hitting them as they passed by—and Joe was singing low.

A Bit of Nonsense

Swallowed The Pawn Tickets

A county police officer, giving evidence against a woman of pushing a pawnbroker, astonished the magistrate by solemnly declaring that on telling the prisoner the nature of the charge on which he arrested her, she "turned away from him and swallowed a bed-tick, a pair of stays, two brass candle-sticks, a smoothing iron and the bellows."

Magistrate (amazed)—"Nonsense, nonsense! Have you lost your sense, man?"

For Sanity In Sport.

(From the Montreal Star)

DR. A. S. Lamb, director of the department of physical culture of McGill University, administered a much-needed warning against present undesirable tendencies in sport during his address to the St. Lawrence Kiwanis Club yesterday on "Sanity in Sport." Dr. Lamb, who is in the best possible position to speak with authority on the matter, did not mince his words. One statement is worth quoting verbatim:

"Go to almost any recreative sport today, the keener the competition the greater the feeling, and you will find to your disquiet, not partisanship—that is to be expected—but the most blatant, the most unfair, the most one-eyed, the most brainless and the most asinine invectives hurled at the officials and competitors alike. This is hardly 'Sanity in sport.'"

These are harsh phrases, but who will say they are undeserved? It is unfortunately undeniable that the spirit of "win at any price" is far too much in evidence today. The wholesale commercialization of almost every kind of sport is largely responsible for a decadence in the standards observed. While making every allowance for the strenuous nature of our sports, the speed and the intense nature of the conflict, it cannot be said that they are sufficiently free from the undesirable factors that Dr. Lamb has enumerated so bitterly. He has put the matter in a nutshell when he asks:

"Why is it not possible, even in the most vigorous sports in which our red-blooded young men take part, to strive toward a national consciousness of fitness, courtesy and sportsmanship based on our glorious traditions of play and adaptable to our Canadian citizenship?"

That is the ideal towards which all who have the true interests of Canadian sport at heart should strive. "To love the game beyond the prize," in Newbolt's immortal words, is the true sportsman's motto. It is one that may be commended sincerely to all who are engaged in sport throughout the land. Canada has produced too many splendid sportsmen for Dr. Lamb's indictment to be allowed to remain a stigma on our national games.

Policing the Coronation

(From the Sarnia Observer)

ONE unit in the British official organization to carry out details of the coronation of King George VI which will work under quite a lot of tension is the police department having in hand the task of preventing acts of terrorism by cranks, anarchists and other queer people who are inclined to attempt violence on such occasions.

Functions associated with royalty are a magnet for the potential assassins in Europe. The former King had an experience during a parade in London when a man threw a revolver into the street under the feet of the monarch's horse. The police are taking careful measures to ensure that no untoward incident organized by cranks will mar the coming ceremonies.

All European police departments keep close watch on persons or organizations with revolutionary inclinations. A great deal is known officially concerning those who might engage in plots to kill prominent personages at official functions. In the British Isles there never has been very serious trouble with assassins in the past. The dangerous individuals seem to have recognized that they could scarcely invoke sympathy or opportunity in Britain so they appear to have left the British situation alone. In Continental Europe, however, the record is different. There have been many attempts at violence against the persons of rulers and there have been many assassinations.

One of the grave police tasks in Britain at the moment is to discover the whereabouts of certain known terrorists and potential assassins throughout Europe and ensure that they do not come to the British Isles for the coronation. The magnitude of the police task may be imagined but there appears to be effective cooperation among all the police departments of Europe. They are all confronted with similar problems in connection with the activities of terrorists at various times and so they are willing to pass on what information they possess in the hope of reciprocation.

The British police do not anticipate criminal violence against any of the prominent personages taking part in the coronation, but they are taking every precaution to bar known terrorists from the British Isles. It is fairly certain that none of the criminal old-timers in any line of underworld activity will have much opportunity to ply their trade among coronation crowds. Of course, there is always the danger that someone, hitherto unsuspected, may break into crime, or attempt violence toward rulers or prominent personages. There is no doubt that the occasion is tempting to the fanatics who have a grudge against things as they are, but most of them recognize that Britain is the worst place in the world to attempt any of their rackets and so they are likely to let the ceremonies proceed undisturbed.

Not Merely a Medical Issue.

(From the Brantford Expositor.)

IT is not surprising that there has been some discussion regarding the case of Dr. J. E. Hett of Kitchener, Toronto, and Windsor, whose name was stricken from the register of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario because of unprofessional conduct. Dr. Hett is a practitioner of forty-six years experience, and early became interested in the treatment of cancer, and has been using a serum in his cases which he has not made public, contending that circumstances did not justify any announcement either to the medical profession or the public at this time. There have been many claims made at different times by different persons that they had discovered specific cures for cancer, most of which were unjustified and premature. Even Dr. Connell, of Kingston, was censured severely both in Canada and the United States for making claims which it was contended were unfounded.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons has a perfect right to be exceedingly careful in guarding the ethics of the profession. It is particularly necessary to protect it from all kinds of quackery, fraud and false claims. The Toronto Telegram, however, expresses the truth very briefly and cogently when it says: "Admitting that infamous or disgraceful conduct on the part of a physician may often warrant refusal to permit him to practise, there are abundant reasons for believing that the College of Physicians and Surgeons should not be at once prosecutor, judge and jury." That is perfectly reasonable. Every doctor who is so charged should have the right to appeal to an established court, before the decision becomes effective, in order that there may be no suspicion of unfair treatment. Certainly it is a serious thing to take away a man's livelihood after he has been a licensed practitioner for forty-six years.

It appears that when Dr. Hett was asked by the committee to reveal so is the serum which he used and his method of preparing and using it he refused. On second thought no doubt he would be willing to do so, but the very day on which the letter was issued notifying him that his name had been removed from the register of the College, he wrote a letter in which he agreed to submit his serum to adequate investigation. It would seem that an investigation of Dr. Hett's method is really more important than his prosecution. While the honor of the medical profession must be thoroughly protected, this is a case for inquiry before an independent court. It is hardly fair for the College of Physicians and Surgeons to be prosecutor, judge and jury all in one.

TAKES TO MILK.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

MILK as a healthful and refreshing beverage is receiving widespread acceptance throughout Great Britain where the opening of scores of "milk bars" in the more populous centres has been a great blessing to the dairy farmers who have witnessed a consequent improvement in the demand for their output.

To the patronage which is being given these establishments there is now being added a large consumption of milk in factories. Within the past four months, it is announced, the managements of no fewer than 443 factories in the Birmingham area have made arrangements for the mid-morning supply of milk to their operatives. Since the latter number more than 110,000 in the aggregate, it may be readily understood what this new market will mean to the producers supplying the city of Birmingham, and if the practice is adopted in other industrial centres, many of the troubles of the dairy farmers may be at an end.

In spite of the importance of dairying in this country and the necessity of a good market being available for those engaged in it, we have yet to begin to appreciate the advantages of milk as a beverage as they are being appreciated in England.

TOO EFFICIENT.

(The New Yorker)

The nurse, an efficient young lady named Pauline, was walking along Fifth avenue one bright morning, on her way to a private case, when she saw a truck rolling slowly down the street, without a driver. With no hesitation, she ran out, hopped on to the running board, and applied the hand brake. The truck stopped, and Pauline, wanting to go right through with the thing, began looking around for the driver.

Just then a man appeared on the sidewalk, and she said to him, "Is this your truck?" He said yes, it was. "Well," Pauline said, "it was rolling down the street." "I know it was, lady," the fellow said, wistfully, "I was pushing it."

RURAL CEMETERIES.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

THERE are many of the illustrious dead of Leeds and Grenville counties, former members of Parliament, merchant princes, early captains of industry, physicians, lawyers and the like resting in plots which almost defy description. The Chinese, we are informed, generally their ancestors. Canadians on the other hand, apparently prefer to forget them—at least insofar as care of their graves is concerned—until the time comes when they are interested in genealogy and desire to trace their family trees.

STOCKS EASE OFF AT CLOSING HOUR

Price Bulged Narrowly In Early Period On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, May 1 (C.P.).—Prices bulged narrowly in the early period of to-day's trade on the Toronto Exchange Market and eased off slightly just before the close.

The medium-price golds attracted the main attention and among the industrials Imperial Oil, Brazilian and Dominion Steel and Coal B changed hands in considerable volume. The demand was fair for the big base metals and fractionally higher prices ruled for International Nickel, Noranda, Hudson Bay. Closing prices were up 5 to 15 cents for Waite-Amulet, Sudbury Basin, Chromium, and Sherritt. Eldorado firmed about 15 cents.

A Friend to the Aged As the Years Creep On

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

In the later years of life we start to lose that snap and vigor of our younger days. The blood does not circulate as it once did, the vitality is on the wane, and the nerves not just as steady as they used to be.

Little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off; and evidences of a breakdown begin to appear.

Those who wish to maintain their health and vigor and retain their energy should use Milburn's H. & Nerve Pills at this time of life.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 1 (C.P.). — Wheat prices were strong on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with support from southern interests where weather conditions in the United States winter wheat belt were unfavorable. Light export investments also helped lift prices in a dull session and at the close values were 3¼-2½ cents higher with May at $1.32⅝, July $1.29⅝-¾ and October $1.18¼-⅜.

Prices touched the high-points in late trading and gains of more than two cents were posted.

Southern investment buying predominated in October wheat, during mixed operations which found offerings light. Although exporters offered support it did not appear to represent actual export of Canadian wheat.

Chicago firms fere credited with substantial buying in October wheat. Exporters offered support and spreading operations involving purchasers of May wheat comprised the bulk of activity and at times trading was very quiet.

Liverpool closed ¼d lower to ¼d higher. Buenos Aires at noon was unchanged to ⅛ cent down.

Total clearances of wheat from Argentina this week were 2,577,000 bushels compared with 5,963,000 a week ago, while Australian movements were 1,113,000 bushels, less than half of the amount last week.

Coarse grains trading was dull, except in the final minutes, when prices moved higher. Rye mounted more than 2 cents on export support.

Girls' Glee Club Of Lakefield Heard In Fine Program At Knox

Assisted By Norwood Male Sextette And String Quartette

CHAS. RENAUD DIRECTS

Looking very trim and attractive in their white middies, bright red ties and navy skirts, the Girls' Glee Club of the Lakefield High School, assisted by the Norwood Male Sextette and the String Quintette and Piano of this city, presented an entertaining program in Knox United Church on Friday evening. Conducting was Charles Renaud, choir leader of Norwood United Church, and musical supervisor of the schools in that town, Lakefield, and surrounding district.

The event was under the auspices of Knox Church choir, of which Mrs. A. Huffman is president, and Mrs. Norine Young Renaud, organist of Norwood Church, was the accompanist of the evening.

40 Voices In Choir.

The Glee Club was composed of forty voices, and the singers won a generous meed of applause throughout their entire program. Noticeable characteristics of these young artists were the close attention paid to the conductor, the clear enunciation allowing the listeners no difficulty in following the words, the even balance of the voices, and the fine tone and rhythm. The members of the male sextette had been under Mr. Renaud's training in their High School days, and continue to assist with his entertainments and profit by his instruction.

A group of choruses, unaccompanied, opened the program, beginning with Mebbe's "Sun of My Soul," effectively rendered, followed by "Pilgrims' Chorus" (Wagner), an ambitious number for young singers but given with fine shading of voices, rising smoothly in the crescendo passages, and the group concluding with "White Ships" (Curtis), a lilting melody that pictured vividly billowing sails of boats on the dancing waves of a sunlit sea.

The male quartette, Messrs. Bongards, Stewart and McNeely, chose "Uncle Ned" as their initial offering, and later gave two humorous songs, "Little Tommy" and "The Song the Singers Sing," the latter in response to the insistent demand for a recall. Continuing a pleasing variety in the program, the string quintette composed of Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Percy Hooper, Mr. Cecil Searles (violins), Mr. Thomas Smith, 'cello; Mr. C. Gallagher, viola, and Mrs. Agnes Logan Green, piano, was given evidence of its popularity with a local audience, possibly the Minuet (Mozart), the Two Gavottes (Bach), and Rondo (Mozart) being outstanding numbers.

Mr. Renaud's fine baritone voice was heard to advantage in two groups of songs, warm applause greeting his every appearance, the stirring measures of "Invictus" (Hahn) winning special appreciation, and giving particular opportunity for displaying technical intelligence and fine resonance of tone.

Trio Is Enjoyed.

The Girls' Trio, Phyllis Webster, Cora Charlton, and Nora Lymburner, interjected another diversity in an enjoyable program, their voices blending perfectly and having a very sweet quality as they sang "Harvest Moon," with the always popular, "Love's Old Sweet Song," for an encore. Outstanding in the full chorus numbers, every one of which was warmly applauded, were the Creamer's Hymn, "Resurrexi," Joyce Kilpatrick's "Trees" (Rasbach), "The Sleigh" (Kountz), its sharp staccato notes suggesting a Russian scene with tossing manes of horses as the merry party swept by, and voices died away to a mere echo; the "Santa Lucia," favorite for all school chorus singing; a descriptive song, "The Rain," with its insistent refrain of pattering drops; "Billy Boy," particularly suited to the young voices; and especially the initial number in the closing group, "Listen to the Lambs," somewhat in the nature of an oratorio, vividly portraying sheep and shepherd on a mountainside, and characterized by a wonderful balance of voices and a clear, sustained resonance that was a delight to the listeners.

The program closed with two hymns, "Saviour Keep Thy Children" (Sullivan), and "Now the day is over," with the last verse hummed in unison, making a fitting conclusion to a most enjoyable evening.

Speaking on behalf of the choir and the audience, Mrs. Huffman briefly voiced appreciation of the excellent program provided, and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed before the visiting artists left for home, refreshments being served in the church basement.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BOBCAYGEON, May 1.—Reconstruction of the bridge between Ennismore and Emily townships as a short route to Peterborough is being urged by Bobcaygeon business men who say they are going to look to Peterborough for active support in promoting this project.

The old bridge which was anchored on the shore of the Flood farm in Ennismore was of the floating type. It became dilapidated and unsafe, but instead of being repaired it was broken up, and since then the bulk of the traffic from Peterborough has had to go around by Lindsay.

Reeve J. J. Devitt told the Examiner that the distance to Peterborough by the Emily-Ennismore route was only a trifle more than to Lindsay from Bobcaygeon.

"Traffic to the north country is increasing every summer, and a great deal of it goes through Bobcaygeon and on up to Kinmount and from there into Haliburton," Reeve Devitt said. "Why should all the motor traffic through Peterborough have to go around by Lindsay. If Peterborough and Bobcaygeon get together on this matter I think we can show the federal government that this is a practicable undertaking that shouldn't cost very much because two long approaches could be filled in. Of course Lindsay will probably oppose it, but I think it would be far wiser for them to say nothing if they don't want to help us. We are confident that Wm. Newman and Bruce McNevin will be right with us, and what we want from Peterborough is the support of the county council, the townships of Galway Harvey and Ennismore, also the city council and Chamber of Commerce, and there is no doubt Joe Duffus will help."

Says Peterborough Friendly

W. V. Mark, president of the Bobcaygeon Business Men's Club, said that organization was keenly interested in the new bridge project, and intimated that plans are already under way to consult with the city and county of Peterborough for their co-operation.

"One of the facts in this matter," Mr. Mark said, "and I'll be perfectly frank about it, is that we find Peterborough a friendly town to get along with, in business and in sport and in every way. The bridge will cut off about fourteen miles between the two places, it will bring the north-western part of Peterborough county that much closer to their county town, and it will add another route and a shorter one into the Haliburton country. Sentiment up here is strongly in favor of it, and we hope Peterborough city and county won't disappoint us. In fact it would be all right if they start the ball rolling."

Explanation And Apology

In last (Friday) night's Examiner an unfortunate error occurred in the Coming Events column, through the transposition of three lines of type.

The Examiner deeply regrets this error and apologizes to Mr. Tatham and members of Gospel Hall.

FOURTH OSHAWA FIRM SIGNS PACT

Skinner Bumper Plant Swings Under U.A.W. Agreement For Pay Increases

OSHAWA, May 1. — (CP).— A fourth agreement with the local unit of the United Automobile Workers of America was announced here yesterday by Hugh Thompson, Committee for Industrial Organization agent. Skinner Manufacturing Company, employing over 150 men in producing bumpers and other parts for the automobile industry, has signed an agreement with the local union whereby employees receive an increase in wages. The steward system is to be set up in the shop and seniority of employees is to be recognized.

The agreement stipulated employees would receive 10 cents an hour more over the present salary rate, with five cents an hour more for men earning over 46 cents an hour. Piece rates are increased 15 per cent. The agreement is signed for the company by P. V. Skinner, President and for the Shop Committee by F. A. Day, F. W. Roach, C. E. Meiville, R. Lachapelle, J. Munk and M. Lacko.

The agreement left only one automobile feeder plant here to be dealt with, Thompson said. The last is the W. E. Phillips Manufacturing Company, which Thompson claims is 100 per cent unionized. The employees will hold a meeting Sunday and hope to negotiate an agreement with the company heads next week.

The local union already has signed agreements with General Motors, Ontario Steel Company and Coulter Manufacturing Company.

Another C.I.O. agent specializing in the steel industry will come here next week to organize Ontario Malleable Iron and Fittings, Limited, Thompson said. The agent remained in the city only a short time.

COMMUNISTS SEEK SUPPORT IN CITY AGENTS ARE BUSY

Literature Is Being Circulated In Effort To Secure Local Action

RECRUITING CAMPAIGN

Communistic literature is being quietly circulated in Peterborough in an apparent effort to secure local action in support of a recruiting drive by which the Communistic party of Canada is observing its fifteenth anniversary.

Late Friday night a Red agent was distributing on Water street north a pamphlet entitled "What the Communist Party Stands For" a publication of over 100 pages in which the capitalistic system, the press, the C.C.F., trades unions and many other institutions are violently attacked and in which a plan for direct action and for the launching of the revolution on which the author of the pamphlet says to be effective must lead to the smashing up of the state.

"Workers stop work, many of them seize arms by attacking arsenals. Street fights become frequent. Where the workers have not freed themselves from the mistakes and traditions of the reformists they will make many mistakes and be temporarily defeated as happened in Austria in 1934. But they shake off the social-reformist baggage. Under the leadership of the Communist party the workers organize revolutionary committees to be in command of the uprising.

There are battles in the principle cities. Barricades are built and defended. The workers fighting has a decisive influence with the soldiers. Army units begin to join the revolutionary fighters; there is fraternization between the workers and the soldiers, the workers and the marines. The movement among the soldiers and marines spreads. Capitalism is losing its strongest weapon, the army. The police as a rule continue fighting but they are soon silenced and made to flee by the united revolutionary forces of workers and soldiers. The revolution is victorious. Armed workers and soldiers and marines seize the principal governmental offices, invade the residences of the government leaders, arrest them, declare the old regime abolished, establish their own power, the power of the workers and farmers."

With the booklet is a form signed by Tim Buck, general secretary of the Communist party in Canada and intended to facilitate the registering of recruits for the Red forces.

A copy of the literature that was being distributed Friday night has been turned over to the police department.

NORTH IS CALLING TO PAT HOWARD

Early Thaw Starts Noted Hastings-Born Pilot Preparing For Red Lake

TORONTO, May 1.—In the Globe and Mail office yesterday, in the wake of Jun Crang, came Pat Howard, the Toronto (born in Hastings) lad who has gone far afield since he learned flying here a few years ago. Dapper in his "city" clothes, Pat is visiting his family here for a short while during the break-up holiday season. He expects to be back in the Red Lake area, however, by mid-May, the early thaw this year speeding this up.

Pat, if you don't recall it, is one of the little crew of fliers who went with Lincoln Ellsworth on his Antarctic polar dash last year when Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon (now flying with Canadian Airways into Red Lake) were forced down only ten miles from the Little America base their objective. Pat and J. H. (Red) Lymburner were the crew of the relief plane, flown to them by Pilot Dick Merrill (now of Eastern Airlines) in the trip when they went in and brought out the "Polar Star."

Has Many Snaps.

Pat has a wealth of pictures taken during that trip. He is a camera fan, and has quite a record of his trips, one choice view showing Red Lymburner, with his ubiquitos beret, seated at the controls of a tractor left at Little America by Byrd and resuscitated for service by Red and Pat. After his return to Canada and the exhilarating experience of a civic welcome for Lymburner, Hollick-Kenyon and himself by Winnipeg, Pat went to Montreal and took out a plane for the flying priest, Father Scullin. Now he is flying with Wings Limited, and his most permanent address is the Marlborough Hotel, Winnipeg. That's the trouble, he says, with being unmarried; he's shifted to a new base almost weekly.

ENNISMORE

Miss Patricia Twomey of Peterborough spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Twomey.

Mr. W. C. Herlihy of Downeyville, visited Mr. and Mrs. T. Cavanagh on Tuesday.

Mr. T. Carlow is spending a few days with friends in Toronto.

The work on the land in this district has been delayed considerably owing to the wet weather. There is a shortage of feed, and as yet there is no grass to turn the stock out on.

Canadian Stock Lists Suffer Severe Shake-Down In April

Mine Issues Are 12 Per Cent. Below Prices Ruling At Beginning Of Year

LATE RALLY HELPS GOLDS

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Canadian stock markets were given the severest shake-down in April they have suffered in any one month in years; possibly since the crash of 1929. The loss over the boards averaged about 15 per cent as measured by the indices. But for a sharp rally in the final session of the month a much worse showing would have been made.

Miscellaneous mines listings of the Toronto Exchange declined 33.22 in the index in April from 197.11 to 101.89 or 16 per cent and the golds dropped 22.21 from 131.37 to 128.96, a loss of 14.7 per cent. The industrials came through the month with a decline of 20.84 from 182.84 to 162.30, a loss of 11.3 per cent.

Mines Hard Hit

Mines and industrials show wide losses for the week and the mines are now 10 to 12 per cent below the prices ruling at the beginning of this year. Having dropped all the January and February rise, Toronto industrial listings closed in the index yesterday at 162.30 compared with 162.57 at the end of 1936.

Spurred by active bidding the big gold stocks advanced so well on Friday that they just about halved the week's losses. Dome, McIntyre and Lakeshore left with net losses of $2 to $2.50 for the period while Buffalo-Ankerite, O'Brien, Hollinger, Bralorne and Macassa boarded net declines of 50 to 75 cents. On the down side by 20 to 40 cents were Pioneer, Little Long Lac, Siscoe, Pickle Crow, Read-Authier, Central Patricia, Sylvanite, Sladacona and Kerr-Addison.

Nickel Reduces Loss

International Nickel declined to $55 this week, its low point since last September, and then recovered to $59, reducing the week's net loss to $3.75. Consolidated Smelters declined $3 net, Noranda $2.50, Hudson Bay $1.12, Sudbury Basin 55 cents and Waite-Amulet 20 cents. Other base metals were down a few cents each. The silvers were off also, including Eldorado.

Interlisted issues led the retreat in the industrial section. Brazilian dropped to $18 on heavy selling and recovered to $21, still showing a net loss of $3.90. Some foreign selling of the stock in this market was reported. The distillery leaders, Walkers common and Distillers-Seagrams weakened $1 to $2 each and Steel of Canada led the heavy industrials with a decline of $7 to $9. Dominion Bridge had a drop of $3.75 and Canadian Car and Foundry common and Dominion Steel B are down $1 to $1.75 each.

A Friend to the Aged As the Years Creep On

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

In the later years of life we start to lose that snap and vigor of our younger days. The blood does not circulate as it once did, the vitality is on the wane, and the nerves not just as steady as they used to be.

Little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off; and evidences of a breakdown begin to appear.

Those who wish to maintain their health and vigor and retain their energy should use Milburn's H. & Nerve Pills at this time of life.

STOCKS EASE OFF AT CLOSING HOUR

Price Bulged Narrowly In Early Period On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, May 1 (C.P.)—Prices bulged narrowly in the early period of to-day's trade on the Toronto Exchange Market and eased off slightly just before the close.

The medium-price golds attracted the main attention and among the industrials Imperial Oil, Brazilian and Dominion Steel and Coal B changed hands in considerable volume. Gains of minor fractions were held by Dome, McIntyre, and Lake Shore and net gains of 10 to 25 cents were held by Wright-Hargreaves, Central Patricia, Pickle Crow, and Macassa, and gains of 3 to 8 cents appeared for Hard Rock, Moneta, Sladen and Siscoe.

The demand was fair for the big base metals and fractionally higher prices ruled for International Nickel, Noranda, Hudson Bay. Closing prices were up 5 to 15 cents for Waite-Amulet, Sudbury Basin, Chromium, and Sherritt. Eldorado firmed about 15 cents.

National Steel Car firmed 3¼ and Dominion Bridge nearly a point.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 1 (C.P.). — Wheat prices were strong on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with support from southern interests where weather conditions in the United States winter wheat belt were unfavorable. Light export investments also helped lift prices in a dull session and at the close values were 2¼-2½ cents higher with May at $1.32⅞, July $1.29¾-⅞ and October $1.18⅝-¾.

Prices touched the high-points in late trading and gains of more than two cents were posted.

Southern investment buying predominated in October wheat during mixed operations which found offerings light. Although exporters offered support it did not appear to represent actual export of Canadian wheat.

Chicago firms here credited with substantial buying in October wheat. Exporters offered support and spreading operations involving purchasers of May wheat comprised the bulk of activity and at times trading was very quiet.

Liverpool closed ¼d lower to ½d higher. Buenos Aires at noon was unchanged to ⅛ cent down.

Total clearances of wheat from Argentina this week were 2,377,000 bushels compared with 3,063,000 a week ago, while Australian movements were 1,112,000 bushels, less than half of the amount last week.

Coarse grains trading was dull except in the final minutes, when prices moved higher. Rye mounted more than 2 cents on export support.

Girls' Glee Club Of Lakefield Heard In Fine Program At Knox

Assisted By Norwood Male Sextette And String Quartette

CHAS. RENAUD DIRECTS

Looking very trim and attractive in their white middies, bright red ties and navy skirts, the Girls' Glee Club of the Lakefield High School, assisted by the Norwood Male Sextette and the Biring Quintette and Piano of this city, presented an entertaining program in Knox United Church on Friday evening. Conducting was Charles Renaud, choir leader of Norwood United Church, and musical supervisor of the schools in that town, Lakefield, and surrounding district.

The event was under the auspices of Knox Church choir, of which Mrs. A. Huffman is president, and Mrs. Norine Young Renaud, organist of Norwood Church, was the accompanist of the evening.

40 Voices In Choir.

The Glee Club was composed of forty voices, and the singers won a generous meed of applause throughout their entire program. Noticeable characteristics of these young artists were the close attention paid to the conductor, the clear enunciation allowing the listeners no difficulty in following the words, the even balance of the voices, and the fine tone and rhythm. The members of the male sextette had been under Mr. Renaud's training in their High School days, and continue to assist with his entertainments and profit by his instruction.

A group of choruses, unaccompanied, opened the program, beginning with Keble's "Sun of My Soul," effectively rendered, followed by "Pilgrims' Chorus" (Wagner), an ambitious number for young singers but given with fine shading of voices, rising smoothly in the crescendo passages, and the group concluding with "White Ships" (Curtis), a lilting melody that pictured vividly billowing sails of boats on the dancing waves of a sunlit sea.

The male quartette, Messrs. Bongards, Stewart and McNeely, chose "Uncle Ned" as their initial offering, and later gave two humorous songs, "Little Tommy" and "The Song the Singers Sing," the latter in response to the insistent demand for a recall. Continuing a pleasing variety in the program, the string quintette composed of Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Percy Hooper, Mr. Cecil Searles (violins), Mr. Thomas Smith, 'cello; Mr. C. Gallagher, viola, and Mrs. Agnes Logan Green, piano, was given evidence of its popularity with a vocal audience "possibly the Minuet (Mozart), the Two Gavottes (Bach), and Ronde (Mozart) being outstanding numbers.

Mr. Renaud's fine baritone voice was heard to advantage in two groups of songs, warm applause greeting his every appearance, the stirring measures of "Invictus" (Hahn) winning special appreciation, and giving particular opportunity for displaying technical intelligence and fine resonance of tone.

Trio Is Enjoyed.

The Girls' Trio, Phyllis Webster, Cora Charlton, and Nora Lymburner, interjected another diversity in an enjoyable program, their voices blending perfectly and having a very sweet quality as they sang "Harvest Moon," with the always popular, "Love's Old Sweet Song," for an encore. Outstanding in the full chorus numbers every one of which was warmly applauded, were the Creation Hymn (Beethoven), Joyce Kilmer's "Trees" (Rasbach), "The Sleigh" (Kountz), its sharp staccato notes suggesting a Russian scene with tossing manes of horses as the merry party swept by, and voices died away to a mere echo; the "Santa Lucia," favorite for all school chorus singing; a descriptive song, "The Rain," with its insistent refrain of pattering drops; "Billy Boy," particularly suited to the young voices; and especially the initial number in the closing group, "Listen to the Lambs," somewhat in the nature of an oratorio, vividly portraying sheep and shepherd on a mountainside, and characterised by a wonderful balance of voices and a clear, sustained resonance that was a delight to the listeners.

The program closed with two hymns, "Saviour Keep Thy Children" (Sullivan), and "Now the day is over," with the last verse hummed in unison, making a fitting conclusion to a most enjoyable evening.

Speaking on behalf of the choir and the audience, Mrs. Huffman briefly voiced appreciation of the excellent program provided, and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed before the visiting artists left for home, refreshments being served in the church basement.

FOURTH OSHAWA FIRM SIGNS PACT

OSHAWA, May 1. — (CP) — A fourth agreement with the local union of the United Automobile Workers of America was announced here yesterday by Hugh Thompson, Committee for Industrial Organization agent. Skinner Manufacturing Company, employing over 150 men in producing bumpers and other parts for the automobile industry, has signed an agreement with the local union whereby employees receive an increase in wages. The steward system is to be set up in the shop and seniority of employees is to be recognized.

The agreement stipulated employees would receive 10 cents an hour more over the present salary rate, with five cents an hour more for men earning over 45 cents an hour. Piece rates are increased 13 per cent. The agreement is signed for the company by P. V. Skinner, President and for the Shop Committee by F. A. Day, F. W. Roach, C. S. Melville, H. F. Lachapelle, J. Muzik and M. Lacko.

The agreement left only one automobile feeder plant here to be dealt with, Thompson said. The last is the W. E. Phillips Manufacturing Company, which Thompson claims is 100 per cent unionized. The employees will hold a meeting Sunday and hope to negotiate an agreement with the company heads next week.

The local union already has signed agreements with General Motors, Ontario Steel Company and Coulter Manufacturing Company.

Another C.I.O. agent specializing in the steel industry will come here next week to organize Ontario Malleable Iron and Pittings, Limited, Thompson said. The agent remained in the city only a short time.

NEW EMILY BRIDGE SHORTEN DISTANCE

Bobcaygeon Business Men Seek Support For Reconstruction Of Span

(Special to The Examiner.)

BOBCAYGEON, May 1.—Reconstruction of the bridge between Ennismore and Emily townships as a short route to Peterborough is being urged by Bobcaygeon business men who say they are going to look to Peterborough for active support in promoting this project.

The old bridge which was anchored on the shore of the Flood farm in Ennismore was of the floating type. It became dilapidated and unsafe, but instead of being repaired it was broken up, and since then the bulk of the traffic from Peterborough has had to go around by Lindsay.

Reeve J. J. Devitt told the Examiner that the distance to Peterborough by the Emily-Ennismore route was only a trifle more than to Lindsay from Bobcaygeon.

"Traffic to the north country is increasing every summer, and a great deal of it goes through Bobcaygeon and on up to Kinmount and from there into Haliburton," Reeve Devitt said. "Why should all the motor traffic through Peterborough have to go around by Lindsay. If Peterborough and Bobcaygeon get together on this matter I think we can show the federal government that this is a practicable undertaking that shouldn't cost very much because two long approaches could be filled in. Of course Lindsay will probably oppose it, but I think it would be far wiser for them to say nothing if they don't want to help us. We are confident that Wm. Newman and Bruce McNevin will be right with us, and what we want from Peterborough is the support of the county council, the townships of Galway Harvey and Ennismore, also the city council and Chamber of Commerce, and there is no doubt Joe Duffus will help."

Says Peterborough Friendly

W. V. Mark, president of the Bobcaygeon Business Men's Club, said that organization was keenly interested in the new bridge project, and intimated that plans are already under way to consult with the city and county of Peterborough for their co-operation.

"One of the facts in this matter," Mr. Mark said, "and I'll be perfectly frank about it, is that we find Peterborough a friendly town to get along with, in business and in sport and in every way. The bridge will cut off about fourteen miles between the two places, it will bring the north-western part of Peterborough county that much closer to their county town, and it will add another route and a shorter one into the Haliburton country. Sentiment up here is strongly in favor of it, and we hope Peterborough city and county won't disappoint us. In fact it would be all right if they start the ball rolling."

COMMUNISTS SEEK SUPPORT IN CITY AGENTS ARE BUSY

Literature Is Being Circulated In Effort To Secure Local Action

RECRUITING CAMPAIGN

Communistic literature is being quietly circulated in Peterborough in an apparent effort to secure local action in support of a recruiting drive by which the Communistic party of Canada is observing its fifteenth anniversary.

Late Friday night a Red agent was distributing on Water street north a pamphlet entitled "What the Communist Party Stands For", a publication of over 100 pages in which the capitalistic system, the press, the C.C.F., trades unions and many other institutions are violently attacked and in which a plan for direct action and for the launching of the revolution which the author of the pamphlet says to be effective must lead to the smashing up of the state.

"Workers stop work, many of them seize arms by attacking arsenals. Street fights become frequent. Where the workers have not freed themselves from the mistakes and traditions of the reformists they will make many mistakes and be temporarily defeated as happened in Austria in 1934. But they shake off the social-reformist baggage. Under the leadership of the Communist party the workers organize revolutionary committees to be in command of the uprising.

There are battles in the principle cities. Barricades are built and defended. The workers fighting has a decisive influence with the soldiers. Army units begin to join the revolutionary fighters; there is fraternization between the workers and the soldiers, the workers and the marines. The movements among the soldiers and marines spreads. Capitalism is losing its strongest weapon, the army. The police as a rule continue fighting but they are soon silenced and made to flee by the united revolutionary forces of workers and soldiers. The revolution is victorious. Armed workers and soldiers and marines seize the principal governmental offices, invade the residences of the government leaders, arrest them, declare the old regime abolished, establish their own power, the power of the workers and farmers".

With the booklet is a form signed by Tim Buck, general secretary of the Communist party in Canada and intended to facilitate the registering of recruits for the Red forces.

A copy of the literature that was being distributed Friday night has been turned over to the police department.

NORTH IS CALLING TO PAT HOWARD

Early Thaw Starts Noted Hastings-Born Pilot Preparing For Red Lake

TORONTO, May 1.—In the Globe and Mail office yesterday, in the wake of Jim Crang, came Pat Howard, the Toronto (born in Hastings) lad who has gone far afield since he learned flying here a few years ago. Dapper in his "city" clothes, Pat is visiting his family here for a short while during the break-up holiday season. He expects to be back in the Red Lake area, however, by mid-May, the early thaw this year speeding this up.

Pat, if you don't recall it, is one of the little crew of fliers who went with Lincoln Ellsworth on his Antarctic polar dash last year when Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon (now flying with Canadian Airways into Red Lake) were forced down only ten miles from the Little America base, their objective. Pat and J. H. (Red) Lymburner were the crew of the relief plane, flown to them by Pilot Dick Merrill (now of Eastern Airlines) in the trip when they went in and brought out the "Polar Star."

Has Many Snaps.

Pat has a wealth of pictures taken during that trip. He is a camera fan, and has quite a record of his trips, one choice view showing Red Lymburner, with his ubiquitos beret, seated at the controls of a tractor left at Little America by Byrd and resuscitated for service by Red and Pat. After his return to Canada and the exhilarating experience of a civic welcome for Lymburner, Hollick-Kenyon and himself by Winnipeg, Pat went to Montreal and took out a plane for the flying priest, Father Seiffite. Now he is flying with Wings Limited, and his most permanent address is the Marlborough Hotel, Winnipeg. That's the trouble, he says, with being unmarried: he's shifted to a new base almost weekly.

Miss Patricia Twomey of Peterborough spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Twomey.

Canadian Stock Lists Suffer Severe Shake-Down In April

LATE RALLY HELPS GOLDS

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Canadian stock markets were given the severest shake-down in April they have suffered in any one month in years; possibly since the crash of 1929. The loss over the boards averaged about 15 per cent as measured by the indices. But for a sharp rally in the final session of the month a much worse showing would have been made.

Miscellaneous mines listings of the Toronto Exchange declined 32.22 in the index in April from 197.11 to 161.89 or 18 per cent and the golds dropped 22.31 from 151.27 to 128.96, a loss of 14.7 per cent. The industrials came through the month with a decline of 20.64 from 162.84 to 142.20, a loss of 11.3 per cent.

Mines Hard Hit

Mines and industrials show wide losses for the week and the mines are now 10 to 12 per cent below the prices ruling at the beginning of this year. Having dropped all the January and February rise, Toronto industrial listings closed in the index yesterday at 142.20 compared with 142.97 at the end of 1936.

Spurred by active bidding the big gold stocks advanced so well on Friday that they just about halved the week's losses. Dome, McIntyre and Lakeshore left with net losses of $2 to $2.50 for the period while Buffalo-Ankerite, O'Brien, Hollinger, Bralorne and Macassa boarded net declines of 50 to 75 cents. On the down side by 20 to 40 cents were Pioneer, Little Long Lac, Siscoe, Pickle Crow, Read-Authier, Central Patricia, Sylvanite, Stadacona and Kerr-Addison.

Nickel Reduces Loss

International Nickel declined to $55 this week, its low point since last September and then recovered to $59, reducing the week's net loss to $3.75. Consolidated Smelters declined $3 net, Noranda $2.50, Hudson Bay $1.12, Sudbury Basin 35 cents and Waite-Amulet 20 cents. Other base metals were down a few cents each. The silvers were off also, including Eldorado.

Interlisted issues led the retreat in the industrial section. Brazilian dropped to $18 on heavy selling and recovered to $21, still showing a net loss of $3.90. Some foreign selling of the stock in this market was reported. The distillery leaders, Walkers common and Distillers-Seagrams weakened $1 to $2 each and Steel of Canada led the heavy industrials with a decline of $7 to $9. Dominion Bridge had a drop of $3.75 and Canadian Car and Foundry common and Dominion Steel B are down $1 to $1.75 each.

1937 is HOME Improvement YEAR

The Year For Putting Men Back to Work

ABLE LEADERSHIP FOR LOCAL DRIVE OF H. I. MOVEMENT

Roland Denne One Of Busiest Workers For Success Of Scheme

WORK IS ORGANIZED

One of the busiest men in town these days in working for the local success of the Home Improvement plan receives no other reward for the time and energy he is throwing into the campaign except the satisfaction he obtains from the feeling that he is doing something for the city he admires so greatly. The reference is to Roland Denne chairman of the Peterborough advisory committee, who has given the drive here the same energetic leadership that he has thrown into the management of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition and into the various public offices that he has occupied in Peterborough.

Mr. Denne in accepting the responsibility of heading the local campaign was actuated by only one motive, to contribute what he could toward promoting a movement that he felt sure would serve the double purpose of making this a better city in which to live and at the same time revive the building industry, long hard hit by the depression, and provide jobs for many who had formerly found work in the building trades or in factories supplying materials for that trade.

Once into the thing, the chairman has not allowed any grass to grow under his feet. His flair for organization began at once to assert itself and within a remarkably short time committees representing the various sections of the building industry and the manufacturers and dealings vitally concerned with that industry had been organized and had begun to work. Mr. Denne keeps in touch with them and has succeeded in keeping them at work with the result that recent weeks have seen a decided spurt in all branches of the building industry and dealers are reporting to the Examiner that trade in their various lines has been improving steadily.

Peterborough's former mayor served the city well in many capacities and in his present role as head of the local Home Improvement plan campaign he has been turning in another very fine job in the general interest.

BUILDING COST FAR FROM PEAK OF BOOM YEARS

No Advance Over 1936 In Price Of Many Commodities

SHOULD BUILD NOW

"Our prices on the building materials we make ourselves have not been advanced at all over the prices we charged a year ago," said Fred J. Overend, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Lumber Company in discussing with The Examiner the price trend in building supplies. "In lines where we have to buy from other firms there has necessarily been a slight advance in prices," he added, "but nowhere have these prices climbed anything near the point they reached in the peak years of 1928 and 1929.

In other words, Mr. Overend, who reports his firm has been kept very busy in recent weeks in complying with the demand for building supplies, confirms what The Examiner has been stressing that the time to go ahead with an improvement and building program is right now. The trend of prices is undoubtedly upward. At present the climb has not been enough to make the cost of building too ponderous a burden but there is no assurance as to what the cost may be six months or a year from now. The prudent citizen will undoubtedly have no trouble at arriving at the conclusion that he cannot afford to take a chance on postponing repairs that are urgently needed because the odds are that if he did wait he might have to pay 10 or 15 per cent more than the job would cost him at the present time.

There is a vast amount of repair work in Peterborough crying out to be done. With the Home Improvement plan offering a simple and practical way of securing the necessary financial support and with prices undoubtedly scheduled to take a sharp upward curve before many months have passed there is every reason to suggest that as much as possible of this work should be put in hand without delay.

Your property is deteriorating in value with every day you put off tackling repairs that are badly needed. On the other hand the cost of making those repairs seems due to increase. The wise citizen will see the desirability of waiting no longer.

Monthly installment payments have been set at the next full cent nearest the fractional result. An adjustment should be made in the final payment to have the total payments equal the face amount of the note. Maximum amount to be financed plus finance charges must not exceed $2,000.

To obtain the amount of the note and the monthly payments for an amount to be financed not shown in the table such as $358. for 12 months, add the table amounts for $300 to the table amounts for $50 and the table amounts for $8, thus:

TABLE FOR 12 MONTHS

Amount to be financed (Cost of Job)	Amount of Note	Monthly Payments
$300.	$310.08	$25.84
50.	51.68	4.31
8.	8.27	.69
358	370.03	30.84

If the amount to be financed is $1,347. for 36 months, make the calculations as follows:

TABLE FOR 36 MONTHS

Amount to be financed (Cost of Job)	Amount of Note	Monthly Payments
$1,000.	$1,095.61	$30.43
300.	328.68	9.13
40.	43.82	1.22
7.	7.67	.21
1,347.	1,475.78	40.99

It will be observed from the above chart that the Dominion Government provides Home Owners with Modernization Loans at a low rate of interest. Compared with similar plans it is, in fact, the lowest rate in the world. For example take the Owner wanting an improvement job costing $100 and desiring to finance the work and materials with a Modernization Loan. If the financing is for one year he signs a note for $103.36. On it he makes payments at the rate of $8.61 monthly. At the end of twelve months he has paid $103.32 plus 4 cents adjustment on the last payment. The use of the money has cost him $3.36 or 6.32% simple interest. Note that there are no carrying or other charges—just the straight simple interest.

Remember, too, that improvements undertaken with these loans have been made Tax Exempt by the Ontario Government.

Bank managers, or any of the Advertisers on these pages every Saturday and in the "Home Improvement" column every day, will be glad to discuss with Home Owners the simple arrangements for a Modernization Loan.

Dining Room Integral Part Of Entire Decorative Plan

Importance Of Home Planning Increased In Past Few Years

ENTERTAIN AT HOME

Modern styles in decoration and furniture have changed the dining room in many homes from a place where the unwanted furniture from the rest of the house is stored to an integral part of the entire decorative plan.

The importance of home planning has increased during recent years. In metropolitan centres, authorities claim the vogue of entertaining at home, rather than in hotels or clubs, has returned. No matter how small the house, the dining space must be adequate to care for the family's social needs.

Modernization funds may be obtained from any bank under the Dominion Government Home Improvement Plan, and the dining room may be completely transformed by this means. The keynote of the room's character will undoubtedly be found in the type of entertaining the hostess plans. A formal room would be out of place in a home where entertaining is casual and informal.

The dining room of one home was planned to care for dinner parties, but at the same time to be suitable for the usual family gathering. Walls and ceilings were finished alike in rough plaster in ivory colour. The door into the hall was removed and the doorway arched, while the kitchen passageway was finished in a corresponding style.

Three windows were built together across the front of the room, giving the effect of one large window. Hardwood floors used throughout the rest of the house were continued in the dining room.

With this simple but effective background, the housewife purchased equally simple furnishings with her own funds. A walnut table blended skilfully with a modern sideboard. A plain rug covered the floor and venetian blinds and plain side curtains hung at the window. A round, unframed mirror was hung over the sideboard.

Aviation research by the Japanese navy and Tokyo Imperial University is planned.

SIMPLE BEDROOM BUT COMFORTABLE IS OFTEN WANTED

How One Owner Redecorated The Top Floor Room Of His House

MAPLE FINISHED

Wanting a simple bedroom, but a comfortable one, the owners of a small house went about redecorating a top floor room.

Knowing that maple furniture was to be used in the room, a decorative scheme that would be suitable was decided upon. A daintily sprigged wallpaper—blue flowers on a white ground—covered the walls. The ceiling paper was ivory.

Woodwork was painted a deeper tone of ivory and the floor was waxed. A ceiling light was dispensed with, but ample floor plugs were installed to care for lamps.

The maple furniture, for which the room was planned, showed off to good advantage, with old-fashioned They combined blue, green, red and white. White curtains hung at the windows and the lamp shades were white with red polka dots.

Under the Home Improvement Plan of the Dominion Government, homes may be remodelled and redecorated.

long throw-in, the ball nearly reaching the goalmouth, but going behind. Sunderland was awarded a free kick, but play was of the ragged variety and mostly in midfield.

Then Preston came near scoring. After six minutes, Milne went through and passed to Pagan, but the latter had his shot blocked by Hall who stood in the goalmouth.

Preston did most of the attacking, but combination was lacking, due to nervousness. Both sides kept the ball too much in the air. Twice North-End was penalized for jumping.

Duns sent an accurate pass across the goalmouth. Gallacher heading to Burbanks, unmarked. The left-winger shot weakly across goal, but the referee had ruled the play offside.

Frank O'Donnell came into the picture after 37 minutes. Receiving a neat pass from Dougal, he swerved round Hall to send a stinging waist-high shot into the corner of the net, Mapson vainly throwing himself across goal in attempting to save.

Half-time—Preston 1, Sunderland 0.

Second Half

The Roker Park forwards attacked strongly on resumption. Six minutes after the cross-over, Sunderland equalised after repeated attacks. Burbanks kicked from a corner straight and true in front of the goalmouth. Johnston gave the ball a short tap and Gurney jumping up headed into the net.

At this stage Preston's attack went to pieces. The "team of all talents" as Sunderland is known, bombarded Burns with shots as the front line worked through the opposing defence time after time. Preston recovered temporarily and pressed hard on the left but the Durham team was dangerous on breakaways.

Sunderland ran the ball down the length of the field, Carter's header going just over the bar. Dougal attacked for Preston and after a fine run sent a terrific left-footer which just grazed the bar.

Sunderland went into the lead after 71 minutes' play. Carter receiving from Gurney sent a left-footer into the right-hand corner of the net from just outside the penalty area.

Five minutes later Burbanks ended scoring. The whole forward line combined in a raid on Preston's goal, Burbanks banged the ball past Napson's outstretched arm.

HINTS ON HOME IMPROVEMENT

Your Garden

Even the tiniest garden can contain a maximum of beauty and comfort as long as you've a little space and a few shrubs. Just spread the color on with a lavish hand—some artificial and some supplied by nature. Even if its only the back yard of limited scope that the big city dweller proudly calls a garden, the little plot can be a garden indeed.

Of course, there's the big essential—flowers. If the earth isn't right for raising them just grow them in pots—potted plants are "right", even for the most formal and sumptuous of gardens. And then paint those pots in bright colorful coats of enamel—blue, yellow, white, green, pink, purple—what you will.

And of course there's that other necessity—a place to sit and enjoy the summer breezes and watch things grow. An old wicker chair repainted to blend in with those flower pots, with colorful waterproof cushions. And here's a tip passed on from good authority. A grand way to repaint wicker furniture is to fill a cleaned out Flit gun with enamel and then spray away. It's as much fun as spraying potato bugs off the vines, and it's just as efficient—the enamel will get into every crevice and every crack. Then there's the ever-popular deck chair, bright and cheerful with the same enamel coat. Next, an old table in a new coat of color, for the odds and ends of unbreakable ashtrays, glasses of lemonade, and so on. Or you can make a perfectly grand tea table out of an old wheelbarrow. Place an extra half-shelf over the top, paint the whole body one bright color, and the wheels, handles and legs another. It's as attractive a piece of garden furniture as you could find in the shops. Even dirt, and grime, rain and storm can't hurt this furniture—the enamel takes to water as to a brother and comes forth as clean, fresh and true-colored as the day you put it on.

Even critical eyes would look at your little garden spot with envy and admiration after a work-out of this sort, and it will cost you hardly anything—just the price of the enamel and a bit of your time, effort and ingenuity.

IRELAND'S NEW CONSTITUTION

a petition by the majority of the Senate, plus two-thirds of the Dail Eireann members may force a referendum on Bills or their submission to Supreme Court examination.

Composition of the Dail is unchanged. The new Senate, to succeed that abolished by De Valera as "obstructionist," will be chosen by an entirely novel method.

The Government will nominate 11 members and 49 will be elected in vocational panels after each general election, the electorate to be composed of all candidates in the Dail election returned unopposed or getting more than 500 votes.

The Universities

Dublin University and the National University would each have three senate members. Others would represent: Language, culture, education, agriculture, fisheries, labor, industry, commerce, public administration and social service.

Emergency legislation could not be touched by the senate but ordinary bills might be delayed three months. The senate could not reject or amend bills "unwelcomely" but may demand a referendum in certain circumstances.

It is proposed to submit the draft of the constitution to the electorate in the form of a plebiscite on the same day as the coming general election, expected in June. Previously it is expected the draft will be approved by the Dail.

When it is effective, the old constitution would be discarded, including its system of military tribunals for political offenders. It is intended, however, to replace these tribunals with special courts to try cases in which juries are likely to be intimidated.

Guarantees of the fundamental rights of person, family, education, private property and religion are embodied in the draft. The special position of the Roman Catholic Church is recognized. As guardian of the faith of the country's majority but the Church of Ireland, the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, the Soviet of Friends, Jews and other denominations are also recognized. No religion will be endowed and divorce will be barred. Foreign divorces will not be recognized.

Gaelic is declared the official language with English second. In case of a dispute on terms of a document, the Gaelic text will prevail.

WOMEN WIN VOTE

Philippine Ballot Goes 405,472 To 49,177

MANILA, P.I., May 1 (AP). — Woman suffrage came back to the Philippines today, the only Oriental country to grant women the right to vote.

The women voted 405,472 to 49,177 in a plebiscite, the Commonwealth Interior Department reported, after tabulating the bulk of returns. Only 300,000 votes were necessary for a constitutional provision assuring feminine enfranchisement.

Many Contractors Are Failing To Sense Their Sales Position

Might Take Leaf From The Books Of The Automobile Salesmen

MUST PERSIST

OTTAWA, May 1.—How do methods of automobile salesmen compare with those used by contractors in connection with the new Dominion Government Home Improvement Plan sponsored by the National Employment Commission?

While the Plan is forging ahead, as indicated by increasing loan totals, indications are that many contractors have not yet fully sensed their important sales position in this great co-operative movement.

"Would the automobile business ever have reached its present proportions if agents and salesmen had sat back and waited for people to come in and buy?" is a pertinent question. "Isn't the psychology of selling cars to impress upon people their need for an automobile? Is it not a fact that sales effort, more than any other single factor is largely responsible for the amazing growth of an automobile industry which did not even exist a few short years ago?

Can Learn Something

What about improving Canadian homes? In the modernization and repair of houses for millions of Canadians to live in is there not a field for similar sales effort to that shown by the automobile salesman? Can the contractor not learn something from the method adopted in selling him the car or truck which he uses in his day-to-day business?

What do the automobile salesmen do? They conduct systematic canvasses of persons who may want a car. They persist until a "prospect" either purchases or refuses to purchase. If lack of money is the reason given for non-purchase the facilities of the corporation's lending organization are offered. The salesman exhausts every avenue to make a sale. His value depends on results, and they come from his aggressive, determined sales activity.

Up to the present, contractors in the repair business seem, generally speaking, to have assumed an attitude of "watchful waiting." They did not feel that they had anything to offer but their services. The practice has grown up to let the home owner ask for those services. But, in hundreds, thousands of cases over the past ten years, the home owner has sorrowed the contractor's attitude. He has watchfully waited, and nothing has been done.

Answers Argument

Here is where the Government plan comes in. With the Home Improvement Plan operating, the contractor has a loan weapon which may be used to answer the "no money" argument of his prospect, and put through the deal. Before the plan came into being that argument was conclusive. No money, no job, was axiomatic. A contractor could not expect to do work, nor did he want to do it, for a person without funds. On the other hand, the home owner, though perhaps acutely conscious of a pressing need for many improvements, did not even approach the contractor. He had to "grin and bear it" until he saved enough to fix up his home. He might never succeed in doing this, and conditions went from bad to worse.

Under the Home Improvement Plan the contractor, armed with a supply of loan application forms can go out and "sell the job." He knows that the banks are ready to co-operate—that the money is readily obtainable provided the home owner can show that there is a fair prospect of his being able to meet very reasonable instalment payments. And, in addition to whatever self interest is served by his sales effort, he can feel that by trying to improve Canadian homes he is helping to improve conditions in Canada.

The sound of the saw and the hammer across this country, after years of semi-silence will be increasingly welcome. The Press of Canada are co-operating splendidly by directing public attention to the Home Improvement Plan, and the Canadian contractor can render further valuable assistance by going out after business. That's today's way to get it.

Bob Hardie, 71 years of age, known to holiday makers as traffic manager of the world's smallest public railway at Hythe, England, has retired.

Bread In Toronto Jumps Cent Monday

Toronto, May 1. (CP).—BREAD prices in Toronto Monday will advance from 10 to 11 cents a loaf of one and a half pounds.

Zeph Hilton of the Consolidated Bakers' Association said increasing cost of ingredients caused the price increase. He stated in September, 1934, the cost of ingredients in a loaf of bread was 4.22 cents but now it was six cents including wrapper. In 1934, he added, flour was $4.80 a barrel, April 1 this year it was $7.30. Other ingredients also jumped in price.

CRACKING WALLS PROBLEM SOLVED

Composition Wall And Ceiling Board Overcomes This Trouble

The owner of a home had trouble with cracking walls and ceilings. He decided to use composition wall and ceiling board in remodelling the bedroom. The material had the advantage of being comparatively inexpensive.

The wall and ceiling material was applied over the original, and a cheerful room resulted. Floors were scraped and painted. A modern electric fixture replaced the old one, and a modern panelled room was the result.

The wall material was finished in soft green and the ceiling was finished in a lighter colour. This made a fitting background for the furniture which had been used in the room before the redecorating. Rugs had a dark red as the predominating colour and the bed spreads were in red, brown and tan. A wing chair was covered in red chintz and another chair had brown upholstery.

The other furniture was finished in walnut.

Owners who wish to remodel rooms should apply to their banks for information about the Home Improvement Plan. This plan provides a method whereby credit-worthy home-owners can secure funds to modernize and brighten their properties.

Basements Can Be Both Useful And Beautiful

KEEP THE YOUNGSTERS from under your feet by giving them a play room in the basement. Instead of wasteful space it can be transformed into a happy hunting ground that will keep them out of mischief for hours. Or, it can be made into a small game room or cozy sitting room for grown-ups. In either case, the job can be done economically, quickly, and with a minimum of disturbance. Advertisers on these pages every Saturday and in the "Home Improvement" column every day will be glad to submit estimates and if necessary arrange a Modernization Loan for you.

Building a New Home?

Then you should know these facts about the importance of installing the right type of heating system . . .

YOU want everything in your new home as perfect as possible—for comfort and convenience. Then remember—7 or 8 months a year the furnace is the heart of home comfort.

It will well repay you to see that your contractor's specifications call for Clare's HECLA Furnace. The Hecla keeps the house abundantly supplied with clean, humidified warm air—because the famous steel-ribbed firepot has THREE TIMES the radiating surface of ordinary firepots. This extra radiation extracts every bit of usable heat from fuel and, by test, saves 1 ton of fuel in 7. This 15% saving will pay interest on a good many dollars.

Also—Hecla can be changed at any time into a modern air conditioning system to give controlled home comfort—winter and summer.

Hecla Furnaces may be purchased on easy terms either through the Government Home Improvement Plan, or the Hecla Time Payment Plan.

Patented HECLA features which make it Canada's Outstanding Furnace.

The Hecla is engineered to give most heat at lowest cost. The steel-ribbed firepot—with 300% greater radiation surface—is the ONLY firepot in Canada guaranteed for 20 years. FUSED JOINTS last as long as the furnace and positively prevent escaping gas or dust. AUTOMATIC HUMIDIFICATION assures correctly-humidified warm air—without attention. These and many other features make it wise to investigate Hecla superiority before deciding on any other method.

Proper installation is of utmost importance in heating a house. Hecla heating engineers plan the installation to suit your house—whether still in blueprint form, or already built. Then, trained workmen finish the job with the efficiency of long experience. Hecla installations make warm, cozy, healthful homes, because Hecla engineers make house-heating a science, not a gamble.

RECALL ORIGIN OF NOTED POEM

Tragic Death Of Little Dartmouth Girls Inspired Well-Read Poem

'BABES IN THE WOODS'

DARTMOUTH, N.S., April 30 (C.P.). — Thoughts of Dartmouth residents, this month, turn back 25 years to the time when the death of two children of the Preston district inspired the poem "Babes in the Woods."

A moss-covered grave-stone in Woodlawn Cemetery marks the spot where Margaret and Jane Elizabeth Meagher lie.

On a warm April day, 25 years ago, the two girls, aged four and six years, tripped gaily from the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Meagher, on Westphal Road.

Their mother became worried because the children had never been away so long. Neighbours were called out and a search was begun. It was not until the sixth day after their disappearance that searching parties found their bodies in the woods, not far from their home. While the neighborhood was being combed, the children had died of hunger and exposure.

The two girls were found where they had attempted to keep warm, by covering themselves up with a blanket of leaves.

News of the tragic happening was reported widely in the newspapers of the continent, and the now-famous poem was inspired.

To-day one can still read on the weather-beaten tombstone the following inscription:

"Babes in the Woods"
Jane Elisabeth
and Margaret Meagher
Aged 6 and 4 years
Who were Lost at Preston
April 11, 1862.

NAVAL REVIEW SET FOR MAY 20

17 Foreign Warships Will Attend Great Ceremony Off Spithead

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., April 29. — (CP) — The Coronation naval review will be held at Spithead, on the south coast near Isle of Wight, on May 20.

As the Royal Standard is broken from the tall masts of the royal yacht, Victoria and Albert, bearing the King to the scene of the review, naval and military salutes will re-echo on the hills about this port.

Again the guns will roar when the King comes in sight of the fleet, augmented by mercantile and fishing vessels and 17 foreign warships. This time a royal salute of 21 guns will be given.

The King will arrive here the night before the review and will sail at 3.00 p.m. the next day. He will begin his review of the fleet at 3.30 p.m. and continue until 5.10 p.m. Then the yacht will anchor at the head of the principal line of ships to be saluted by squadrons of Royal Air Force planes flying in formation overhead.

On the following day the King will visit H.M.S. Nelson, flagship of Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse, Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean Fleet; H.M.S. Dunedin, flagship of Vice-Admiral G. C. Dickens, Commander of the Reserve Fleet, and H.M.S. Southampton, flagship of the 2nd Cruiser Squadron. In the afternoon the King will return to the Portsmouth dockyard and leave there amid the firing of royal salutes by naval and military batteries.

The fleet will disperse May 21. Between its arrival at Spithead May 13 and 14 and the day of the review the public will be allowed to visit the ships.

Making A Bathroom Of Clothes Closet

The home owner who wishes to have an extra bathroom and finds himself puzzled as to where it can be worked in, should seek the advice of an experienced master plumber, suggests the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating. A man who understands plumbing thoroughly, will be able to suggest a convenient and economical location for bathroom fixtures that the home owner himself might not think of, by depriving themselves of the conveniences of additional bathroom facilities, because they are under the impression that a bathroom must be large and that the installation of it is an expensive undertaking.

If necessary, all three essential bathroom fixtures can be placed in a room as small as five by five. The illustrations show how a clothes closet was successfully made into a bathroom. The tub does not show in the picture.

If there is no space at all available for a complete bathroom, there are various alternatives that present themselves, as for instance, 1. A downstairs lavatory in the hall, hall closet, or some room near the hall; 2. A lavatory in the kitchen; 3. A lavatory in a bedroom; 4. An additional lavatory in the present bathroom; 5. A shower in the basement; 6. A closet combination in the basement.

Any householder in the country can take advantage of the easy terms of the Home Improvement Plan to improve their home by the added convenience of an extra bath or downstairs lavatory.

'36 RECORD YEAR IN HOG PRODUCTION

Some 3,797,000 Move Through Plants—Quality Reaches New High

OTTAWA, May 1.—(CP)—A new production peak for hogs and bacon was recorded in Canada in 1936. Not only was there an immense increase in volume said the Agricultural Department's annual review made public to-day, but quality reached an unprecedented standard.

About 3,700,000 hogs were moved through yards direct to plants and direct on export, a sharp increase from 3,067,000 in 1935. Evidence of improved quality, about 800,000 head were sold on a dressed weight or carcass grading basis. This figure mounted from 115,000 in 1935 and 3,600 in 1934.

Bacon exports to the United Kingdom jumped to 134,768,000 pounds from 124,327,000 the previous year, setting another new record but still well below the 360,000000 pound quota under the United Kingdom agreement. The report said the 1936 export showed the best type, pack and quality in the history of the Canadian hog industry.

Exports of hogs to the United States were 60,527, almost five times as great as 14,004 in 1935.

Plenty Of Use Can Be Found Extra Living Room In House

Occasionally Little Work Is Necessary To Create Attractive Room

ATTICS OR BASEMENTS

Any home that is occupied by more than two people will find plenty of use for an extra living room. Space in attics or basements may often be converted to this use and funds for the necessary work may be obtained from a bank or other authorized lending institution under the terms of the Home Improvement Plan. The loan may be repaid in instalments over a period up to five years if necessary.

Occasionally little work is necessary to create attractive room. In one basement, a brick fireplace was built in, to make the focal point of interest. The walls were painted a soft shade of yellow and the floor a deep shade of brown. Composition board was used to close off the corner of the cellar that was being used for the room.

The ceiling gave the effect of beams, the floor beams being joined with false ones to carry out the effect. Curtains were hung at the sides of the small cellar windows, so as not to detract from any light that might enter, and to give the feeling of greater width.

Simple furniture was used in this room.

FARMERS WIRING HOMES ON LOANS

District Residents Taking Advantage Of Home Improvement Plan

CAMPBELLFORD May 1—Chairman of the Home Improvement Plan Committee, T. L. Diamond, told the Examiner that a number of citizens have already taken advantage of loans to repair and modernize homes in town. Two have already made request for loans in order to build and make additions to summer cottages while a number of farmers in the districts which are now being served by the Hydro are making loans in order to have their farms wired. The local building trade has picked up to such an extent that several people who have been endeavoring to engage the services of carpenters have had to postpone work for the present.

Home Loan Plan Will Facilitate Carrying Out Of Small Repairs

Scheme Not Designed Merely To Help Man With Big Building Program

HOW IT WORKS OUT

Although the Home Improvement campaign has been before the public for a considerable period there seems to be a couple of false impressions left in the minds of some folk as to various phases of the scheme.

In the first place there is a tendency to feel that the plan has been launched merely for the purpose of helping the citizens who are contemplating major improvements and are in need of a substantial amount of financial assistance.

Nothing could be further from the mark.

The loan plan of course will help that class of citizen but it is also available for the use of the man who is figuring on some much-needed improvement that may involve a comparatively small amount and who is unable for the moment to find the money required to finance the operation. For him the Home Improvement idea opens the door of opportunity for under the terms of the act he can, without the least difficulty, obtain the assistance he needs at a weekly outlay possibly of only $1 to $3. The plan makes possible improvements that could not be carried out or even considered if it were necessary to pay for them in a lump sum.

Don't Pay Interest On Interest

The other false impression concerns the terms of payment and various critics have conjured up the idea that the borrower is paying interest on interest as to speak. On the contrary, that of course is a totally erroneous notion—he simply pays interest at the rate of 6.32 per cent a year and that is all.

The whole thing is simple. There is no troublesome red tape to tangle up the proceedings. All that is necessary is for the homeowner to decide what improvements he proposes to have made, consult a contractor, a builder, a plumber, a carpenter or a painter as to the approximate cost of the work and then go to the bank with the estimate. He will find a courteous welcome there and provided he meets the few simple requirements set forth under the act he will experience no difficulty in securing the financial assistance he requires. The only stipulation is that he must own his own home, whether mortgaged or not makes no difference and that he has a reasonable surety of income so that he will be in a position to make repayments. There are no extra charges and no unforeseen additions to the cost of the loan.

Consult The Chart

The Examiner would advise its readers to consult the charge chart published in today's issue which shows what you will have to pay for the amount of the loan you require. You know in advance exactly what the payments will be.

A few points to remember:

(1) Loans can be made to owners of residential property for repairs, alterations and additions, including built-in-equipment.

(2) Loans shall not exceed $2,000 in amount on any single dwelling, $3,000 for a duplex and $1,000 additional for each additional family unit such as apartment houses. More than one loan can be made on a single property if the aggregate does not exceed $2,000.

(3) Loans can be repaid in equal monthly instalments or any other periodic instalment convenient to you. Loans $1,000 and under three years to pay. Loans over $1,000 five years to pay.

Suppose that you find that $100 is the amount you require for the improvement you have been planning. If you want to borrow that amount for a year, the discount will be $3.36, making the amount of the note $103.36 and you pay it off in twelve monthly instalments of $8.61. If you prefer to pay in two years your note will be $106.46 and your monthly payments will be 4.44 while on a three-year loan your note would be $109.26 and you would pay $3.04 per month.

British Monarchy Is Rooted In The Hearts Of The Nation And Nothing Can Destroy It

So Declares Archdeacon Gower Rees In Addressing Local Audience

KING EMPIRE'S SYMBOL

"The British monarchy has its roots in the hearts of the people and nothing can destroy it," The Venerable Archdeacon Gower-Rees of Montreal told a local gathering which he addressed on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club.

At the meeting which was held in Murray Street Baptist church, under chairmanship of the Rev. Douglas Paterson, the Kiwanians were joined by representatives of the Rotary, Y's Men, Rinsmen, and Lions clubs. Introduction of the guest speaker was performed by Dr. F. C. Neal.

Prior to Archdeacon Gower-Rees' address which dealt with the significance to the British Empire of the Coronation ceremonies, which are shortly to be held in Westminster, when King George VI will consecrate himself to the service of his people, the joint gathering of service club members and their ladies sat down to dinner in the church basement.

Musical Program

In connection with the program that followed stirring musical selections were presented by a saxophone party from the Salvation Army Temple Band, the following musicians taking part: Bandmaster Gerald Houtley, Mel. Shadgett, Alfred Mills, Leslie Boorman, Watson Butcher, Ben Smith, V. McDonald and C. Kennedy.

The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray Street church, also sang a solo entitled, "My Task," being accompanied at the organ by Leslie Unitt.

Speaking of the Coronation as an historical event of international interest which will turn the hearts and minds of the entire world in the direction of Westminster, Archdeacon Gower-Rees declared, "The King is a symbol and embodiment of a tradition of freedom and liberty which is the special privilege of our breed to mankind."

He referred to His Majesty King George VI, whom he claimed to have the honor of knowing personally, as, "a manly, unpretentious and unaffected personality and the servant of his people."

Primarily Religious

He emphasized the point that the Coronation ceremony is primarily a religious one, and said, "In his announcing or hallowing as King we shall be associated with him and through him."

The reverend speaker pointed out that everything handed to the King at his Coronation has a special meaning and significance in order that the King may be impressed the more completely with the full responsibility attaching to his exalted office.

Declaring that to the British peoples, the Coronation is much more than a display of pageantry, the Archdeacon maintained the throne is the one great bulwark left in the world today and he believed the collapse of the monarchy would mean the end of the British Empire and all that it means to the civilized world.

Throughout the centuries, he stressed, the Coronation has been a rite to which we have attached a great deal of significance. It is a rite in which the King is consecrated and set apart for tremendous responsibility. The British monarchy has its roots in the hearts of the people and nothing can destroy it.

Believing that the monarchy is the one thing that binds the British commonwealth of nations together, he declared, "The symbol of the Empire is not a flag; it is not an institution or a constitution, it is the King."

PIER BUILDING IS RESPONSIBLE FOR POOR CATCH

Trapper Says Rice Lake Rat Bag One-Third Of Normal Size This Year

DUE TO LOW WATER

"That new pier they're building at the Wallace Point bridge is likely to add a few dollars to the cost of Hudson seal coats next winter," William Dixon of Bewdley dryly remarked to the Examiner Friday afternoon.

"Not that I want to see those pretty fur coats cost the ladies a cent more than they have been," Mr. Dixon remarked, "but if they are up in price all I say is don't blame the trappers, and don't blame the rats of Rice Lake.

"During this last week I never in my life saw so many signs of rats around the marshes here at Bewdley, and I have been on the water and trapping for forty-five years.

"The trapping season was from March 25 until April 16. Well, first the ice was slow going out of the marshes, and then we had very low water. You have already published that the number of rats caught was barely one-third of the normal catch because there wasn't the normal level of water in Rice Lake.

Says Water Kept Low

About the last day or two before the season ended, the water began to rise and today I would say that it is a foot and possibly two feet higher than it was during the trapping season. And I am told that the water was up like that time because Peterborough county, and the united counties of Northumberland and Durham are putting in a new pier at the Wallace Point bridge. The contract was let to Wilford of Lindsay, and our information is that he was guaranteed a certain level of water so that he could keep on with the work.

"I am not finding any fault with the Public Department but I do think, and it is the opinion of the trappers generally, that because of the bridge job the provincial Department of Public Works at Oame should have extended our season a week here for another week. Since the season closed there have been lots of signs of rats showing that there was no scarcity, but we ran into unusual conditions, which we are told were due to them jacking up the bridge.

"I wrote to Mr. Taylor, the Deputy-Minister, telling him the circumstances, but as you know there was no change in the season, and the low water cost the trappers many hundreds of dollars. As I say, I am not complaining very much, because I did fairly well. I caught 206 rats and the market price was $2.25, but I am simply telling you what we have heard about the water condi-

Decrease Is Noted Building Permits

Building permits for April totalled $18,484 showing a decrease by comparison with the corresponding month of last year of $8,378 records in the office of the city engineer indicate. Not only was there less activity in the building trades in the month just ended, but there was a general slackening off during the first four months of this year as against the January to April period of 1936. Figures show that to the end of April last year building construction valued at $48,906 was authorized, while to the end of April this year total value of building permits issued was $44,648. Among the 76 permits issued during the last month there was one for repairs to St. Andrew's United Church manse at an estimated cost of $4,000 and also for three new houses. Houses are being erected by Allen Stevens, 45 Sophia street on Rogers street at an estimated cost of $2,000; by Leo Healy, 105 Rim street on Euclid avenue at an estimated cost of $1,200 and by Little Lake Cemetery Board on Ware street at an estimated cost of $2,950. The remainder of the permits issued were for repairs to places of business and dwelling houses.

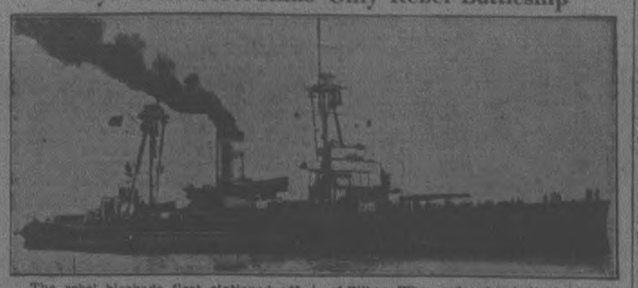
Loyalist Air Fleet Sinks Only Rebel Battleship



The rebel blockade fleet stationed off the Basque coast suffered the loss of their only battleship, the Espana, when loyalist aeroplanes attacked and bombarded the huge ship. The aeroplanes were hurriedly summoned by wireless calls from the British freighter Brosa, which was being attacked by two rebel ships as it attempted to enter the port Santander, 50 miles west of Bilbao. When ordered to halt, the freighter turned and fled at the same time frantically calling aid. The messages were heard at Santander and a loyalist fleet of 32 aeroplanes, circled the Espana, and began dropping bombs. An hour later, the Espana, listing badly, sank supposedly with its crew of 854 men and officers.

Passing Of Steamboat Days Has Taken Away Much Color

These Would Have Been Busy Days On Waterfront Thirty Years Ago

OLD STEAMERS GONE

Those who have had the privilege of inspecting the C. H. O. Deane collection of old Peterborough prints have commented upon the fact that many pictures of old steamboats are included. That of course is easy to understand when it is realized that the steamer was a mighty important transportation agency in the days of not so long ago. It was the medium by which many farmers from down-the-river sections reached Peterborough to market their products and do their shopping. It offered practically the only means of access to the lake resorts north of the city and virtually all the summer outings were made possible through the fleet of passenger craft that plied the district waters.

Just at this season with the ice gone from the lakes this would have been a very busy period thirty years ago. Up at Young's Point Pat and Fred. Young, "Billy" Scollard and the rest of the boys would have been working like beavers to get the fleet ready for speedy use for the logs of the Dickson Company and McDonald's and Gilmour's and the Rathbun Company would be whirling down the swift waters of Rice Creek into Stoney Lake and down the Missisagua into Buckhorn, ready to be boomed together for the slow passage through the lakes which meant busy weeks of towing for the Young's Point steamers. And after that was the glorious summer season with three boats a day from Lakefield, packed with freight and crowded with passengers. Here at home there would be activity over at the Ashburnham yards of the Calcutt line refurbishing the City of Peterborough and the Water Lily for a busy summer.

The Rice Lake Boats

And the Rice Lake boats would be at work already. A week ago the Rainbow and the Monarch and the North Star would have made the trip to Peterborough against the swift current of the swollen Otonabee carrying as cargo the season's harvest of muskrat pelts taken by the Rice Lake trappers. And this morning they would have been back again, this time with passengers carefully looking after baskets of eggs and butter, headed for the Saturday market at Peterborough.

The motor car has completely changed the picture, by supplying a faster and more convenient form of transport. In our own district only a couple of steamers remain in use.

The Fleet Has Dwindled

The Young's Point fleet has dwindled to the Stoney Lake, used exclusively now for excursion purposes, and the Belinda which is the only passenger craft in regular service on the Stoney Lake route. The Empress, that trim swift steamer, that was popular with the summer colony, burned to the water's edge at Mount Julian a few years ago and has never been replaced. The Manita, once a useful member of the fleet was hauled out of the water several years back.

The Calcutt line has long since vanished. The City of Peterborough, the Otonabee and the Water Lily disappeared into limbo of forgotten ships and Peterborough no longer claims the ownership of a single passenger steamer.

Nor does a solitary steam craft remain at Rice Lake or on the river route. The Rainbow, the Monarch and the North Star are just a memory as are the Ogemah, the Esturion, the Sunbeam, the Crandella and the other steamers that once flourished on the northern lakes of the Kawartha chain. Even the Keoka craft the Lady of the Lake, which claimed Bridgenorth as her home harbor, passed into history long ago—like the rest of them, victims of the gasoline age.

Life moves more swiftly now but it is impossible to dodge the conclusion that with the fading speed some of the color and romance has been sacrificed. Otonabee and Monaghan farmers now whirl into town in a few minutes in motor cars to bring their produce to market. They save time in the process but by the same token they are missing the sociable atmosphere that must have been developed during those pleas-

J. B. Snider Named To Harvey Field

J. B. Snider of Kitchener was appointed a supply to the Harvey Field for a period of one year at the special meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery in St. Paul's Church. The call from Norwood to the Rev. D. K. Perrie of Hastings was sustained by the presbytery and on motion the congregations of Havelock, Norwood and Hastings were constituted into one pastoral charge.

ant hours while the steamer slowly chugged its way up the Otonabee stopping every little while at the landings that jutted out into the river every few miles and during the return trips in the late afternoon, when with the mellowing over and the shopping done, the passengers sat comfortably on the deck of the neat little river steamers and talked over the experiences of the day.

Those Saturday Nights

Nowadays too the summer sojourner at Stoney Lake steps into an automobile and within an hour or so he has reached his cottage for his week-end visit, probably grumbling because road operations caused him to lose a minute or two on the way up. He would scoff at the thought that not so long ago Peterborough folk whose summer homes were in upper Stoney Lake thought themselves lucky if they reached their destination by midnight on Saturday night and he would probably wonder why any one should bother about going at all under such conditions.

And yet that Saturday night trip to Stoney Lake will always be a pleasant memory to the regulars who made it every week during the summer season. There was the same old gang each week and the reunion was always enjoyed as the steamer passed through Lake Katchenocka, locked at Young's Point and after a call at South Beach around the corner pointed her trim bow for the light house near Majestic Island and steamed across Clear Lake for the entrancing fairyland of islands that make Stoney Lake the scenic gem of the Kawarthas. It was the big night of the week at Stoney Lake. Here and there bonfires would send their glow high into the night air and nearly every island was ablaze with Chinese lanterns to greet the arrival of the week-end steamer. There was a carnival spirit abroad that is missing in these modern days: it took a bit longer to reach the summer cottage but somehow the delay seems to have been well worth while.

NEW CITY WHARF TO COST $10,000

Plans For Little Lake Dock Call For 'T' Shape Construction

Plans for the new dock in Little Lake have been finally approved, and tenders for the work will be called immediately, J. J. Duffus informed the Examiner today.

The design of this wharf is a "T" shape. The cross section (the upper part of the T) will be 96 feet long by 17 feet wide, with an open, pagoda at each end for resting and seating accomodation. There will also be two lamp standards. The other section extending out from the shore line to the outer face of the dock, and will be 16 feet wide.

Descending the bank from the street level two flights of steps will be built with a ramp in the centre as a convenience in carrying canoes and other small craft up and down to the dock. Safety chains will be hung conveniently on all faces of the dock, and three steps on some of the faces will reach down to the water level.

The estimated cost of the dock, which will be built this summer, is $10,000. It was planned partly as an agreeable mooring wharf for cruisers arriving at Peterborough with tourists making the Trent Waterways trip, and also for the convenience of local citizens desiring to enjoy boating in Little Lake.

TOURIST CARS.

More tourist cars appeared on Peterborough streets to-day Liveson markers noted were from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Quebec, and Manitoba.

CYCLIST INJURED.

When he rode his bicycle into the back of a motor car at George and Charlotte streets at 8 o'clock Friday evening George Hamilton, 593 George street sustained cuts to his right wrist when his arm crashed through the rear window of the vehicle. The injured cyclist was taken to a doctor by W. J. Howden, R.R. 10 driver of the car involved. According to police report the cyclist collided with the rear of the car when the car stopped for a traffic light at the intersection. John Barns, an officer of the local division of the S.J.A.B. happened along with his kit and rendered first aid before the wounded man was taken to the doctor.

INSPECTOR EXPLAINS

Dr. Johnston, V.S., inspector for the Peterborough Humane Society wishes to make it clear that when he requested the magistrate during the hearing of a charge of cruelty to animals to be as lenient as possible low word that he uttered because the man was drunk at the time and not because that he was in no way condoning drunkenness. He simply made the statement because he felt that the young man had been conscious of what he was doing when the offence was committed.

ACTION IS PROMISED

E. A. Outram, secretary of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association has received word from H. H. MacKay, biologist of the fish culture branch of the Ontario Fish and Game Department that the work of selecting suitable sites for bass ponds in this district will be carried out as soon as conditions are favorable for an investigation of this nature. It will be remembered that when a local deputation visited Toronto during the winter and asked for a fish hatchery they were promised that artificial rearing ponds for bass would be located in this district.

FEW CUSTOMERS.

The most pleasant Saturday morning weather of the season was afforded by the weatherman to-day and farmers on the Market Square anticipated big crowds. For some reason, they were disappointed. Customers failed to turn out in the numbers which stormier market days have seen.

CHRISTMAS TREE.

What would one be doing with a Christmas tree on a warm May morning? Downtown pedestrians were faced with this question to-day when a local automobile went by with such a tree tied to its rear. Possibly the owner intends to plant the tree and cultivate it for next Christmas for it had a few branches of roots at its base.

ENTERED PLEA "NOT GUILTY"

The Examiner regrets that owing to a miscarriage of facts it was inadvertently reported that John Lewis, Apt. B, 205 Sherbrooke street was recently fined in magistrate's court for permitting his dog to run at large contrary to provisions of a city by-law. The fact is that Mr. Lewis entered a plea of "not guilty" to the charge and hearing of the case was adjourned until next Thursday.

PLAINTIFF AWARDED $200

Judgment for $200, and costs, was awarded plaintiff after trial on an action of Bellgham & Son against Oscar Cromie by Judge Smoke in Division Court on Friday. CHATHAM SUBURB CUT OFF BY FLOOD

Over Fifty Families Cut Off—Boats Only Means Of Securing Supplies

CHATHAM, Ont., May 1.—(CP)—Inundation of the Northwood Survey in Raleigh township, an area immediately adjacent to the south-western extremity of the city appeared today to be one of the most severe situations resulting from the flooding of the Thames River.

More than 50 families are isolated in their homes with communication only by rowboat as result of the breaking of the Indian Creek dam at the John E. Rhodes farm, near the Raleigh-Harwich Town line. At least eight families have been forced to evacuate. The water today was still rising.

Water descended upon "The Commons" in a flood yesterday, being forced along the path of the Mud Creek drain which empties into Indian Creek, a tributary of McGregor's Creek, which up until yesterday was protected by the dam at the Rhodes farm.

In the afternoon the water was rushing with ominous rapidity and two or three families abandoned their dwellings when it became apparent they would soon be surrounded. The water rose steadily and during one hour more than two feet of water poured into the area.

Throughout the night men in the community labored to assist the more unfortunate families. Early in the evening boats were obtained and have been plying the inundated area steadily ever since.

Today at least eight families are homeless. They include Mr. and Mrs. John Quick, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hennecker, The Star Bakery, which operated on Berry street, is flooded out.

The problem of food supplies today became pressing. Those in charge of boats were commissioned to take food orders from all families trapped in their homes. They were impromptu milkmen, bread peddlars and supply haulage workers. Only a scant half dozen houses are accessible to the city except by boat.

ILLEGAL FISHING COSTS ONE MONTH

Belleville Man Is Convicted Of Grappling In The Moira River

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 1.—(CP)—A number of cases were disposed of in police court yesterday. Randall Smith, Belleville, was given a month for illegal fishing. He was caught grappling in the Moira River. Eugene Short, 17, was remanded for sentence after pleading guilty to theft of four rings from a house. Fifteen days in jail was given Lorne Shankford after he pleaded guilty to theft of scrap iron, a prevalent practice in this district. They are even dismantling windmills," said Crown Attorney Donnan, and "selling the parts for scrap iron."

Samuel Switzer, Belleville, will serve a week in jail, when he failed to work out relief provided by the city. The relief office claimed he owed the city five days work with Switzer claiming ill health the reason for not fulfilling his obligations.

John Finkle pleaded guilty to six charges of theft and two of breaking and entering and was placed under mental observation for two months. Roy Weaver, alleged accomplice pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence.

Fred W. Day, was found guilty of selling liquor and was given two months and eight "found ins" paid $10.

Girl Swimmer Lauds Champagne And Fags

KANSAS CITY, Mar 1—(AP)—Champagne and the cigarette were defended staunchly here today by Eleanor Holm Jarrett, the pretty swimmer whose social activities aboard the liner taking the United States Olympic team to Berlin last year caused her suspension.

"I never had a drink or smoked a cigarette until 1932," she said as she sipped a rum cocktail, "and I'm a darned sight better now than I was five years ago. I don't believe in overtraining. That's a sure way to go stale. A glass of champagne now and then and a cigarette keeps me relaxed."

(Examiner Correspondence.)

EAST EMILY, May 1. — The members of the A.Y.P.A. of St. James' Anglican Church entertained the Young People from St. John's Anglican Church on Friday evening in the Parish Hall, when a good crowd was present and an enjoyable evening spent by all. Arthur Boate, president, called the meeting to order and the meeting was handed over to the social convenor, Miss Marion Franks —the rest of the evening taking the form of a social evening with contests and games, after which lunch was served and everyone departed to their homes much delighted with the pleasant evening spent. This was the closing meeting of the A.Y.P.A. for the summer months.

JAPS TO CONTINUE FISHING SURVEY

Canadian Firms Protest Seeing Possible Invasion Of Local Water

TOKYO, May 1.—(AP)—Japan will continue fishing surveys off the Alaskan coast despite opposition by Canadian and United States fishing interests, the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry made clear today.

Fishery and nautical experts are expected to revisit Alaskan and Canadian waters in continuation of a search for new fishing grounds begun last year under a three-year plan.

Canadian fishery companies have protested that such experimentation indicated Japanese plans for encroachment of North American continental waters.

(Japan has extensive fishing rights off Siberia under a grant from Russia. There have been rumors of the cancellation of the grant, however, before it expires automatically at the end of 1977).

3 Coronation Liners Sail From Montreal

MONTREAL, May 1 — (CP)—Three liners slipped from their berths on the Montreal waterfront with the last passengers bound from here for the Coronation festivities in London.

The Cunarder Lancastria ended the eight-day procession. Among her 900 passengers was Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett leader of Canada's Conservative party, his sister, Mrs. W. D. Herridge, and G. L. MacLachlan, chairman of the Alberta Social Credit Board.

Preceding the Lancastria downstream were the Duchess of Atholl with another 800 passengers, including a contingent of schoolgirls from all parts of the Dominion, Hon. Herbert A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Anglican Primate of all Canada. The third ship was the Athenia.

King Will Present Medals To Dominion, Colonial Troops

Canada's 334, R.C.M.P. And Two Nurses Will Be Included Among 2,000 Present

MARCH PAST TO FOLLOW

LONDON, May 1.—(CP Cable)—The garden of Buckingham Palace will be invaded by unarmed Dominion and Colonial troops May 14 when more than 2,000 will receive Coronation medals from the King. Canada's 334 officers and other ranks, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police contingent and two nurses will be among them.

Troops of the Dominions and Colonies will parade at Wellington barracks at 9.30 a.m. and move off at 9.45 a.m. for Buckingham Palace in their order of precedence. Inside the garden at 10.30 a.m. they will be received by the King.

It is understood His Majesty wishes to present the Coronation medal to each man personally, but that would take four hours. Therefore five or six representatives of each contingent will be summoned to him and will be given trays of medals which will be immediately distributed.

The ceremony will be concluded with a march past the King and the return to Wellington barracks. If it should rain the ceremony will be held in the riding school in the Royal Mews.

In the order of precedence will be India, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Rhodesia, Burma and the Colonies. The parade is expected to evoke a great welcome from Londoners as it will be the first time the overseas troops will be seen together without the counter-attraction of the presence of members of the royal family.

The event wound up with refreshments and dancing.

Immigrant Limit Finds Hull Opposed

WASHINGTON, May 1—(AP)—A senate subcommittee made public yesterday a letter in which Secretary Hull opposed legislation which would put Canadian, Mexican and Latin-American immigrants to the United States on a quota basis.

Hull, Secretary of State, contended the measure would violate the "good neighbor policy" President Roosevelt has sought to establish among western hemisphere countries.

The quota proposal would limit Canadian, Mexican and Latin-American immigration to 10 per cent. of those admitted in 1936.

MUCH WORLD WOOL CLOTHING TROOPS

Fear Drop In Prices If Conditions Should Take Turn Towards Peace

BOSTON, May 1—(AP)—Two important woollen manufacturing officials said: "A considerable part of the wool supply of the world is consigned to armament purposes."

The two officials, who declined to permit the use of their names, by their account placed textiles alongside munitions in Europe's armament race.

One of them, an important manufacturer, said he had observed European mills busily turning out fabrics for troops and civilians.

An official of the national association of wool manufacturers, declared a large part of wool "already is in process of manufacture into uniforms. Some of it has not yet reached that stage. If conditions in the world become quieter this wool may be thrown back on the market for lay purposes with a resultant drop in prices."

The price of wool today, highest since 1920, can be traced directly, this same official said, to the busy looms of Europe.

National advertising, when it reaches the woman through her own Local Daily, reaches her when she is most readily influenced by salesmanship-in-print. At the Theatres

AT THE REGENT

Fifty years ago Louis Pasteur, the great scientist, used his rabies serum on a human for the first time and saved the life of 9-year-old Joseph Meister.

This dramatic experiment which cut the death rate of the dread disease to less than one per cent, is reenacted in the Cosmopolitan production, "The Story of Louis Pasteur," which is being shown at the Regent Theatre as a First National release.

Paul Muni portrays Pasteur, Dickie Moore takes the part of the Meister boy.

While the camera and microphone recorded the scene, the boy whose life was really saved was going about his duties as janitor in the Pasteur Institute in Paris.

The scene was accurate in every detail. Before it was made, First National' Paris representatives located Meister at the Institute and heard him tell the story of how Louis Pasteur actually gave him the rabies treatment fifty years ago.

"The Story of Louis Pasteur" is the thrilling drama of Pasteur's fight against the ignorance prevailing at his time, to save life by science. Others in the cast besides Muni include Josephine Hutchinson, Anita Louis, Donald Woods, Fritz Leiber, Henry O'Neill and Porter Hall.

William Dieterle directed the picture from the screen play by Sheridan Gibney and Pierre Collings.

Louis Pasteur is under the auspices of Registered Nurses Association.

STYLE WHIMSIES

Dark pet blouses are good right now. Black, navy or brown net trimmed with rick-rack is chic, and black net dotted with huge white circles is another effective model.

Open-crowned hats are being boomed for summer wear, both for formal and sports wear.

The silk daytime coat is very smart this season. Heavy poult de soie, silk faille taffeta and silk and wool bengaline are the materials favored.

Gay silk taffeta linings for coats and suits and for blouses and petticoats in plaid and checked weaves are adding to the color of the season.

A simple navy blue frock is an excellent choice for any pretty girl for spring and summer. Pauline Moore's dress shown here has a single trimming note in the large jeweled pin at the V-shaped neckline. Her accessories are navy, and the blue taffeta hat is wreathed with lilies-of-the-valley.

"I have gained in weight and have more color in my face!"

NORMAL WEIGHT and a good complexion are very closely related to health. Loss of health usually leads to loss of weight and a poor complexion. All beauty specialists agree on this point and many women have learned by experience how important health is to beauty and weight. Miss May W——* of Toronto, for instance, writes:

"Four months ago I was pale and underweight. I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they have done me a world of good. Now I have gained in weight and have more color in my face. Friends tell me how much healthier I am looking."

One of the chief causes of a pale face and thin body is improper nourishment. The blood, glands and vital organs of your body must be nourished with mineral iron and cannot function properly without it.

If you are underweight, pale or sallow and rarely feel rested or really well, strike at the root of your trouble. Build up your health and vitality with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They will supply the iron you need and thereby help you back to normal weight, better health and improved complexion. Price 50c.

* Name on request.

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills regularly for a while; and if you don't feel better, stronger and healthier, your money will be returned to you.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta.

"There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbor good. One person I have to make good,—myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy."—O. S. Marsden.

Dear Friends:

Don't you think there is a lot of that kind of thing goes on today? So many seem to think that once they have started on a certain form of goodness, they must get busy and make their friends follow the same route.

We all have a duty to one another, and going around antagonizing our friends, shoving our ideas as to their conduct down their throat, is not by means making them happy. People may like you when they see you doing your best, but you only turn them against you and your goodness, when you do not leave them alone to make up their own minds.

Never fear, if you have got something good that works, your friends will soon be asking you about it, especially if you seem happy yourself, and continue to try and make them happy too. The same form of goodness will not work in every case, because the same obstacles are not met up with in every life.

Then, too, you are presuming that your friend is not so good because they do not know your formula, and that is impertinence to say the least of it.

Some get so very busy trying to save someone else's soul that they are in danger of losing their own. God knows that you have enough to do to look after your own sins of ommission and commission, and while you are busying yourself with others, what becomes of your own?

They won't take care of themselves, be sure of that, and because you have seen the light, do not forget your nature hasn't changed so you would notice it. You still have the same old habits to fight, the same old temptations, with a few added on which the devil has sent you.

Don't be so sure either that your friends and neighbors haven't had a better method for years and have been using it all along, and that is what makes you like them. Let them like you in the same measure, by minding your own business, and giving your friends credit for not being so dumb as you would make out.

Happy people, are not as a rule bad, if they are I have never seen them, and happy people are just as liable to be well instead of sick. If they ask you, why that is a different thing, and even in the telling, do not antagonize them by assuming that you are now perfect, for you're not and never will be.

Help them, comfort them, make them happy in some way, and you will be doing more good than all the words you could preach. But when you assume that you have the only keys to Heaven and that if they follow your ideas you may lend it to them, you only make yourself ridiculous and disliked.

There are lots of doors to goodness, and lots of keys to unlock them, and maybe you haven't even begun to make others that way? It's a good way to look inward a lot when you are trying to be so virtuous, instead of looking for flaws in your friends, and maybe when you do look within yourself, you will be shocked at what you see.

You have to be able to live your friends' life in all its details, before you can even begin to tell him what to do. Advice, yes. But only in small doses, and only if you are asked, because after all, how many use advice even when they do ask for it.

So try all you can to make those around you as happy as possible, and a good place to start is right at home, or in the office or factory. You don't need to hunt far to find those who would appreciate happiness, and even the ability to make people laugh goes a long way, the telling them something you like about them, instead of their faults. Try it won't you?

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

LAKEFIELD

WINNERS NAMED POSTER CONTEST

Helen Kelly And Lily Wong Take Prizes In Lakefield Competition

LAKEFIELD, May 1.—Prize winners in a poster contest sponsored by the Scout Group committee in charge of the Boy Scout and Cub Jamboree to be held here on May 24, were announced on Thursday, April 29 by J. W. MacKerchar, leader of the local Boy Scout Troop.

The winners were Helen Kelly (first prize), and Lily Wong (second prize), both High school pupils. The reward for the best poster is to be a silver medal donated by Mr. MacKerchar.

The contest, which closed at one p.m. on Monday, April 26 was open to both Public and High school pupils. Keen interest was shown by a large number of students who turned in entries of high quality. Many of the posters were cleverly illustrated, and Misses T. and M. Conner, of Peterborough, who acted as judges, had difficulty in picking the winners from among so many splendid entries. The judges' criticisms of the entries were explained by Mr. MacKerchar when he announced the prize winners. A large poster nicely illustrated, failed to qualify amongst the winners because a stencil had been used in the lettering, and a number of letters reversed in the process of stencilling. A second criticism of this entry was that the letters were all the same size so that no words stood out to attract attention as is necessary in a poster. Other posters showed splendid illustrations but insignificant lettering, and still others neglected to space their lettering properly.

The prize winning entry emphatically commanded the public to Halt at the Scout and Cub Jamboree at the Exhibition Grounds at Lakefield on May 24, and added less emphatically that there would be games and contests, and that admission was free. The letters were expertly formed and variety in their colouring, lent to the attractiveness of the completed work.

The second prize entry achieved contrast by the use of black lettering on a yellow background, and the lettering and illustrations in black were beautifully done, with due attention devoted to proper spacing, etc., so that the poster though smaller than some of the others, was in many ways a work of art.

The contest was arranged to foster interest in the coming Scout Jamboree, and the posters will be used in this village to remind citizens and visitors to reserve May 24th for this event.

White Light Seen Sky Friday Night

Almost simultaneously, a man living at Indian River and a woman resident of Burnham street telephoned The Examiner a little after 9 o'clock Friday night to inquire as to the significance of a mysterious light that was to be seen in the sky. Two of The Examiner staff immediately departed for the heavens but had no success in locating it. The Ashburnham informant stated that the light was white in color and resembled the trail left by a falling star. It stretched across the sky from east to west and was visible she said for at least fifteen minutes before it finally faded out.

CARL HUBBELL NICKS DODGERS 18TH STRAIGHT

New York Giants Hammer In Eleven Runs To Brooklyn's Two

FOUR HOME RUNS

Dean Holds Reds To Five Hits Winning 7-1—Senators Whip Yankees 4-1

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Carl Hubbell probably woke up this morning and pinched himself to make sure he wasn't dreaming.

Even after clamping on it, "King Carl" couldn't believe his New York Giant mates had given him all those runs in yesterday's 11-2 walloping of the "hated" Brooklyn Dodgers.

And New York's diamond faithful, awaiting the scheduled 1937 debut appearance of Joe Dimaggio in the Yanks' lineup today, had to check and double-check the box score before they could figure out how Bill Terry's troupe went out and piled up that many tallies for Hub.

It's been done but rarely before for the great left-hander. Ordinarily, the National Baseball League champions give Carl a couple of runs, more or less, and then tell him, in effect: "Well, it's up to you now, boy." They've been doing it for years.

Usually, these few runs are enough. In 1936, Carl won 16 straight, yet his mates backed him up with an average of only about four runs per game in his 35 appearances. In 1935, they did about the same, and they went over that figure for him only once, in '34.

Ott Gets 3rd Homer.

Hubbell's victory yesterday was his second in a row this year, boosting his consecutive game streak in league competition to 18. Mel Ott hammered his third homer of the year, and three other mates followed suit. One of them a pinch four-bagger by Jim Ripple, which probably earned the youngster the regular centre field assignment.

Hubbell allowed seven hits and fanned nine batters, but, despite his fine performance, was unable to catch up to his noted National League rival, Dizzy Dean. The "Great One" posted Victory No. 2 for the year for the Cardinals, treating himself to a five-hitter at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds, and finishing on top 7-1 with the aid of Johnny Mize's second homer.

The Yankees not only saw their five-game winning streak come to an end with a 4-1 whipping at the hands of the Senators, but discovered also that Buck Newsom is no longer their "cousin." Buck, who was easy for the swat squad all last year, handcuffed them with five hits all the way.

Pirates Lose To Cubs.

The Pirates worked a triple play but lost to Chicago Cubs 7-3. One of the Boston Bees' "old" rookies, Jim Turner, turned in a six-hitter for a 15-3 win over the Phillies, who came to terms finally with the holdout first baseman, Dolph Camilli.

Jimmy Foxx, making his first 1937 appearance, and fully recovered from sinus infection, immediately picked up his round-trip bat and banged a homer out of the lot as the Red Sox belted the Athletics 15-5. The Tigers went 10 innings to nose out Cleveland's Indians 4-2, and the St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox were rained out.

Larry Gains Meets Creditors In London

LONDON, May 1—(CP Cable)—The first meeting of creditors of Larry Gains, Toronto negro boxer, was held yesterday at the official receiver's office in the North London district.

Unsecured liabilities were scheduled at £400 19 shillings ($2,471) and there was an income tax claim for £231 (91,142).

Gains filed his own petition and gave the cause of his financial failure as his inability to obtain sufficient remunerative contests since 1934, before which he had made a substantial income. Another reason, he said, was the claim for income tax.

The case was left with the official receiver, J. L. Polden, and a public examination will be held in Edmonton, a London district.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THE REAL BASEBALL brains among the customers at a diamond contest are found in the bleachers. As a general rule. We mean the fans who either can't afford the better seats or don't want them. This is a truism recognized generally in Big League ball parks. In the case of our own Riverside Park, your bleacher fan is found in the west grandstand—which is gratis—or along the fences embracing the infield. Not that there aren't plenty of ball-wise birds in the main stand, but the number is small in proportion. The rest like the game and go to see the pitching, hitting and fielding. They figure at the finish of the ninth that they've seen a game. Strictly speaking, they've only seen the surface of the tussle. They've missed much of the real game—the inside baseball.

* * * * * * *

TO PROPERLY EXPLAIN "inside ball," it might be better to deal for a space with signals. In that way you get an idea of what it is all about. And why Jones made that apparently dumb attempt to steal with but one out. Or why the catcher bawled out the shortstop when the play wasn't near him at all. Or why the pitcher shook his head. Or the coach made such an odd remark. Or anything, in fact. Baseball is supposed to be the most scientific of all sports. Every guy connected with the rival teams in a game is supposed to be thinking ahead at all times. Other sports are too fast to do much thinking—everything is mechanical and the result of constant drilling. But players think as they play in the spalding sport. Or should.

* * * * * * *

ASIDE FROM the catcher's signals—by the use of one, two, three or four fingers—to the pitcher on each pitch, most of the signalling is done by the manager or coach. John McGraw of the Giants used to do all his signalling from the bench by various signs and remarks, while Connie Mack does his from the dugout with a scorecard. Sort of semaphore system. When a team is in the field, the skipper generally talks to the catcher who, in turn, relays signals to the different fielders. When a team is at bat, the coach on first or third usually does the sign stuff by talking or using his hands.

* * * * * * *

THOSE STOCK PHRASES used by coaches aren't just idle chatter. His team knows what is meant and the rival team tries to find the key. For instance, Shiner Johnston last year used numbers for signals. In one game "two" meant for the guy on first to steal. Shiner would be apparently bellowing encouragement at the batter, saying: "Make it be in there," or "he can't find the plate," etc. And then maybe in the same tone he'd say, "Let's get two runs this inning," or "take two strikes, he's wild". And the runner and batter knew what was expected. The latter had to take the pitch and try legally to block the catcher a little in his throws to second, and the runner had to get a lead, be on his toes and run like the deuce as the hurler's arm went up. But such a signal couldn't be used often or it would be spotted.

* * * * * * *

THERE ARE DOZENS of ways to signal, using words, touching some part of the face with any number of fingers, hitching the belt, pulling down the cap, getting down on one or the other knee, standing so-and-so- in the coaching box, etc. And the chief times for signals are (a) to bunt, (b) the hit and run, (c) take one, (d) steal, (e) double steal, (f) squeeze play, (g) battery signals. Not only is the bunt sign flashed for a sacrifice but sometimes when a double play is feared on a slow runner with a low-ball hurler showing good control. The hit and run usually comes up with a guy on first and a righthand hitter who drives toward right field. Some "dumb" steals result from a hit and run that missed fire.

* * * * * * *

THE DOUBLE STEAL usually is tried with men on first and third, two out and a weak hitter up. The squeeze play is a gamble late in the tilt for a tying or winning run and requires a good "blocking" batter and a fast runner. The standard sign by the catcher for a pitchout—that is a waste ball to try and pick a runner off—is a closed fist. The receiver must be careful and keep his signals out of sight by all but the pitcher as the rival coaches or rival players on base are always trying to read his signs. Infielders often have signs between themselves to cover a base, to trap a runner or cut off a throw. Sometimes a coach's advice to a batter contains a key word meaning that he knows the next pitch will be a curve. However, most batters prefer to make their own guesses and take no chances on getting wrong info sometimes with malice aforethought. These are just a few slants on signalling and what is meant by inside ball. Watch for it next game.

* * * * * * *

AND NOW with a good group assured and the schedule set for the Central Ontario lacrossers, affiliated with the O.A.L.A. as intermediates, the Petes can get down to work real hard on finishing up their new box and getting in plenty of stiff workouts before the season commences. Dope on last night's group meeting in Cobourg is in elsewhere this eve. The boys are getting anxious to get out there around with their sticks once more and it won't be long. A local executive meeting will be held in Duffin's at eight bells Monday p.m. to name the manager and coach and handle other items of business.

* * * * * * *

STRIKES US that the tendency in local sports—that is, in the more important leagues—is to branch out to include district teams. And, in some cases Central Ontario ones. Senior ball and lacrosse are examples of the latter. And look at hire our Senior City Hockey League is half made up of district teams like Lakefield, Millbrook and Bewdley. Girls' softball expects at least two out-of-town teams this summer and maybe more. Men's softball would welcome Omemee and Bridgenorth in. Even the Southend Softball Circuit has Keene included. Soccer, cricket, tennis, etc., have the same tendency to some extent. Time was when district sports organized among themselves and city leagues were closed corporations. It is not so to-day and, we feel, it is now a better layout for sports in one section.

* * * * * * *

UP AND DOWN Sports' Rialto. All entries in the Church Softball League must be in by Monday e'en . . . Men's City Softball League holds a huddle Tuesday night in Duffin' at eight . . . Girls' Softball Loop meets at eight next Friday p.m. in Duffin', an open session . . . "Y" Cinema last night drew a better crowd than the previous gloaming . . . No workouts at Riverside Park for some time yet as the water in the outfield is still high . . . Those contributing sports items to this paper are asked please to get 'em in early; the night the games are played is even better . . . Got to go now and lie on a bank by a babbling brook—yeah, nuts in May!

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE-CRACKER.

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, I see where we open the ball season with the Oshawa gang which is the present Ontario champs coming here for the fixture what prys off the lid for what should oughta be a rip-roaring season. We mights as well start right in by combing them Oshawans. It will count just as much licking them in May as later on. The champs is standing pat with pretty much the same lineup as last year but judging from recent doings in the motor burg I wouldn't be surprised if the umps walked out there May 24th and hollered "Battery for Oshawa, Homer Martin and Hugh Thompson". Anyway we understand the team is playing here by the courtesy of the United Automobile Workers of America and they probably will wear cleats with "C.I.O." on them. We just would like to warn them right now they will probably think Mitch Hogburn is pitching against them before they get through with this local gang.

The Leaves Go Nuts

The big sports feature this week, old timer, has been the mad spurt of them Toronto Maple Leaves. When they hit for the north from the training camp even the press agent what was writing up their doings figgered they could win 2 games in a row from a Class 2 outfit. They only had a kid infield, a doubtful looking pitching brigade and a run-of-the-mine outfield and I gotta a hunch Mister Dan Rowley was only praying the outfit would hang together long enough on the 1st road trip so they would not drop clean outta the league before he could land some reinforcements from somewheres to fill some of the weak spots.

And lookit what happened. The Leaves goes clean crazy right off the reek. First they goes into Baltimore and wallops the Orioles 3 straight in their handbox park where home runs is knocked over the fence with the knuckles. Then they moved into Syracuse and grabbed off the 2 games played there and then over to the Giants farm at Jersey City where already they had cleaned up the 1st 2 games as this is wrote giving them 7 wins in a row. On paper and on their records the Leafs don't look that good and mebbe they aint but anyway they give Toronto the best start in many a moon and that means a good many dollars will roll in at the box office for the early games that would have been absent without leave otherwise.

Something Wrong Here

By the way Mac, some of them Toronto sport writers deserve a orchid this week for raving over what they called daring base running by the Leaves. The Globe-mail had a big heading about it the other day but when you read the story you seen that all that happened was that 3 leaves which had singled with men on second had gone a extra base on the throw to the plate to stop the third coming home from keystone station. That don't rate no daring baseball; that's just automatic for even a overaized catcher or a spavined pitcher will ramble down to second everytime under the same set of circumstances. In fact he'd probably drew a fine if he didn't. Looks like Dan Cowley better start a school for baseball writers or the Globemail should send a hurry call out for Mister Bert Perry what used to dish out the baseball dope for the old Mail. Mister Perry knew his baseball and that rave about daring baseball makes folks kinda wonder if the present cron does.

Well that seems to be enough fan fodder for the nonce—careful of that spelling Mac—ain't so I just do a blackout here.

Sportfully Yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

NEW ZEALANDERS TAKE SPOTLIGHT IN OLD COUNTRY

M. L. Page Captains Strong Cricket Team On English Tour

PLAY THREE TESTS

LONDON, May 1 (CP)—Crowned county champion last summer for the first time in 63 years, Derbyshire's prospects of duplicating the feat lend interest to the championship competition as English cricketers swing into action this season. The Midlanders' achievement broke the stranglehold of Yorkshire and Lancashire on first-class cricket honors.

The visit of New Zealand cricketers provides England's test selection committee with another opportunity of experimenting in an effort to find a combination capable of wresting the Ashes from Australia in 1938.

Three test matches will be played against New Zealand who have yet to be successful against the Mother Country. Official international tilts between the two countries since 1930 have been notable for the number of draws. Of 11 games played, England won the only two fought to a finish, rain being the deciding factor in most of the others.

Led by M. L. Page, Canterbury star, the Antipodeans hope for success in at least one of the tests arranged. The first will be played at Lord's, June 26, the second at Manchester, starting July 24, and the final encounter is booked for the Oval, Aug 14. New Zealand's first important game will be against Surrey, May 8 and subsequent fixtures include all the first-class county teams.

Old Country players start the campaign with the hope that weather conditions will show an improvement over last season. One of the wettest summers for many years ruined scores of "gates," causing serious financial losses to all county clubs, some being forced to issue appeals to replenish depleted treasuries.

Only 118 matches were brought to a definite conclusion compared with 161 in 1925. The number of drawn games increased from 73 to 116. Yorkshire had a good excuse for not retaining the championship won in 1935, no fewer than 18 of the northern county's fixtures being drawn, most of them through wet weather.

Noted Players Missing

Two famous professionals, A. P. "Tich" Freeman, diminutive Kent spin-bowler, and Philip Mead, Hampshire's leading batsman for two decades, will be missing from first-class competition. The cricket world was surprised when county officials announced the veterans had been released. Freeman, now 48 years old, will play for Walsall in the Birmingham and District League while Mead, who has passed the half-century mark, will be coach at Framlingham College.

Possibility that Kenneth Farnes, rangy fast bowler, will not be available for Essex is seen in a report that he is considering a scholastic appointment in Australia. Farnes bowled successfully against the Aussies in the fourth and fifth test matches a few months ago.

Gloucestershire and Somerset, noted cricketing counties, are confident of maintaining all-round strength that carried them to fourth and seventh place in the championship table last year. The former jumped from 15th position and the Cider County from the 14th. Lancashire, dubbed the failure of the year, fell from fourth to 11th.

Gloucestershire's season closed with a tragedy a few hours after the final match had been played and won. D. A. C. Page, captain, was killed when motoring to his home at Cirencester, his death coming at a time when the county had undergone a remarkable revival.

ARRANGE FOR REPLAY.

SHEFFIELD, England (CP).—In the event of Sunderland and Preston drawing in the Cup final at Wembley, May 1, the Football Association has arranged for the replay on Sheffield Wednesday's ground May 5.

RECORD PRIZE SHOOT.

SYDNEY, Australia (CP).—Claimed to be a record for rifle-shooting prize money, $50,000 will be awarded at the big shoot in New South Wales next February in connection with the 150th anniversary celebrations.

War Admiral Finishes 6 Lengths Ahead

Breezing past the post, six lengths in front of the field, War Admiral, trim son of the great Man o' War, is shown winning the Chesapeake stakes at Havre de Grace, Md., and turning in a performance that changed many a forecaster's prediction on the outcome of the Kentucky Derby on May 8. Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger rode the winner, who competed against four other Kentucky eligibles.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Although the "official" opening of our Lawn Bowling Club takes place on the 24th of May—we might say the "semi-official" opening took place last night.

It was the occasion of the joint meeting of the membership and games committees, and while the attendance was not what we expected it to be, still those who did come out all took part in good healthy discussion—and that's what the meeting was called for.

Robt. Hendry, chairman of the games committee outlined the season's program of activities and after the boys all took a fling at discussing the different clauses it was unanimously decided to leave it all to the games committee.

Geo. Gimblett, chairman of the membership committee gave a brief account of the work done by his committee and while a great number of the skips have responded with their quota of players there are still some rinks that are not completed. If all the skips but up to a 100 per cent it will mean our club will have forty-two rinks, an increase of four over last year—but, as we understand it no rink will be accepted unless there are four men on it, and each player must sign a membership card.

In view of the fact that we are still short a few men yet it has been decided to postpone the "zero" hour until next Saturday night, (May 8)—and we believe that date is final.

W. J. Oke, president of the club acted as chairman of the meeting and he announced at the beginning it would be thrown wide open for suggestions and also for constructive criticism. We believe that those meetings do a lot of good for bowling and the boys get a better insight as to what is going on.

Remember When—

Aga Khan's great three-year-old colt, Bahram out of the 1930 Derby winner, Blenheim, started on the trail of the mythical "triple crown" two years ago today with an easy victory in the Two Thousand Guineas at Newmarket, England. Bahram went on to win the crown with Derby and St. Leger victories.

Most of the cast of "Anthony and Anna," a play which has been running in London since 1935, boast that they have played their parts in three reigns.

Queen Mary Beats Central 12 To 8

Queen Mary copped a 12-8 decision over Central in a tidy School Softball League tilt last evening on the west end diamond. A five-run splash in the final frame put the finishing touch on ice for the victors after a close struggle between the well-matched teams. The hurling on both sides was fair with some good fielding and hard, timely bingling shown. In the latter department, the Q. M. boys had a distinct edge. Central started strong but were held safely in check after the first stanza. The teams:

Central: Lomax, c; Millen, ss; Ascott, 1b; Weese of; Graham, rf; Lee, p; Halcrow, 3b; Clarke, lf; Moorhead, 2b.

Triple Schedule Decided At Group Meeting—Pete King Is Eastern Representative

Mike Kelley, president of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, and Gene Dopp, secretary of the O.A.L.A., assured the local delegation at the group lacrosse meeting last night in Cobourg that they would be here later this month to officially open the new box on George Street. Representatives from Peterborough were Doug. Miller, Charlie Carson, Bud Fisher, George Mein, and Fred Nelson.

While the meeting was primarily to draw up the schedule, this was not accomplished. However, the teams discussed their wants and the schedule will be drawn up this coming week. They agreed to a triple schedule, with a winner being declared by September 1st. It will open in two weeks' time. Several other matters of business were discussed at the session.

Pete King on O.A.L.A.

Pete King of Peterborough was named Eastern representative of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association, representing this league. Doug Miller will be the local representative on the group executive, Carling-Kelly of Trenton Airport resigned as secretary-treasurer, fearing he might be moved at any time, and Rosa Burley of Trenton was appointed in his place.

President Harry Moore conducted the meeting which was well attended and saw much enthusiasm in evidence. The visiting officials from Toronto congratulated Peterborough on its work in organizing the Central Ontario League and in building the new box here. They pointed out that the game is in for a real revival, huge crowds on the Pacific Coast and in the West attending games last year, and indications pointing to a big year in lacrosse this season from coast to coast in Canada.

Prince Of Wales Beats Queen Mary

Prince of Wales swamped Queen Mary 34-14 in a junior School Softball League game yesterday on the Wales' diamond. The tilt went five frames and was a terrific slugfest with poor pitching and fielding shown, but with the batters banging the ball to all corners of the lot. The winners tallied five runs in the initial inning, 12 in the second, then six and 11 in the fourth. Queen Mary got three in their first, five in the second, three more in the third, and another trio in the fourth. They were blanked in the fifth. The teams:

Prince of Wales — Crowe, p; Doughty, c; Gardiner, 1b; Hotrum, 2b; Henry, 3b; Parnall, ss; Harrison, lf; Braund, cf; Saunders, rf.

Umpires—Neiman and Scott.

CARL HUBBELL NICKS DODGERS 18TH STRAIGHT

New York Giants Hammer In Eleven Runs To Brooklyn's Two

FOUR HOME RUNS

Dean Holds Reds To Five Hits Winning 7-1—Senators Whip Yankees 4-1

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Carl Hubbell probably woke up this morning and pinched himself to make sure he wasn't dreaming.

Even after sleeping on it, King Carl couldn't believe his New York Giant mates had given him all those runs in yesterday's 11-2 walloping of the baffled Brooklyn Dodgers.

And New York's diamond faithful, awaiting the scheduled 1937 debut appearance of Joe Dimaggio in the Yanks' lineup today, had to check and double-check the box score before they could figure out how Bill Terry's troupe went out and piled up that many tallies for Hub.

It's been done but rarely before for the great left-hander. Ordinarily the National Baseball League champions give Carl a couple of runs, more or less, and then tell him, in effect, "Well, it's up to you now, boy." They've been doing it for years.

Usually, these few runs are enough. In 1936, Carl won 16 straight, yet his mates backed him up with an average of only about four runs per game in his 30 appearances. In 1935, they did about the same, and they went over that figure for him only once, in 34.

Ott Gets 3rd Homer.

Hubbell's victory yesterday was his second in a row this year, boosting his consecutive game streak in league competition to 18. Mel Ott hammered his third homer of the year, and three other mates followed suit. One of them a pinch four-bagger by Jim Ripple, which probably earned the youngster the regular centre field assignment.

Hubbell allowed seven hits and fanned nine batters, but, despite his fine performance, was unable to catch up to his noted National League rival, Dizzy Dean. The "Great One" posted Victory No. 2 for the year for the Cardinals, stealing himself to a five-hitter at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds, and finishing on top 7-1 with the aid of Johnny Mize's second homer.

The Yankees not only saw their five-game winning streak come to an end with a 4-1 whipping at the hands of the Senators, but discovered also that Buck Newsom is no longer their "cousin." Buck, who was easy for the swat squad all last year, handcuffed them with five hits all the way.

Pirates Lose To Cubs.

The Pirates worked a triple play but lost to Chicago Cubs 7-2. One of the Boston Bees' "old" rookies, Jim Turner, turned in a six-hitter for a 13-3 win over the Phillies, who came to terms finally with the holdout Dolph Camilli.

Jimmy Foxx, making his first 1937 appearance, and fully recovered from sinus infection, immediately picked up his round-trip bat and banged a homer out of the lot as the Red Sox belted the Athletics 15-5. The Tigers went 10 innings to nose out Cleveland's Indians 4-3, and the St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox were rained out.

Larry Gains Meets Creditors In London

LONDON, May 1—(CP Cable)—The first meeting of creditors of Larry Gains, Toronto negro boxer, was held yesterday at the official receiver's office in the North London district.

Unsecured liabilities were scheduled at £400 19 shillings ($2,471) and there was an income tax claim for £231 ($1,142).

Gains filed his own petition and gave the cause of his financial failure as his inability to obtain sufficient remunerative contests since 1934, before which he had made a substantial income. Another reason, he said, was the claim for income tax.

The case was left with the official receiver, J. L. Polden, and a public examination will be held in Edmonton, a London district.

Other sports are too fast to do much thinking—everything is mechanical and the result of constant drilling. But players think as they play in the spalding sport. Or should.

* * * * * *

ASIDE FROM the catcher's signals—by the use of one, two, three or four fingers—to the pitcher on each pitch, most of the signalling is done by the manager or coach. John McGraw of the Giants used to do all his signalling from the bench by various signs and remarks, while Connie Mack does his from the dugout with a scorecard. Sort of semaphore system. When a team is in the field, the skipper generally talks to the catcher who, in turn, relays signals to the diffrent fielders. When a team is at bat, the coach on first or third usually does the sign stuff by talking or using his hands.

* * * * * *

THOSE STOCK PHRASES used by coaches aren't just idle chatter. His team knows what is meant and the rival team tries to find the key. For instance, Shiner Johnston last year used numbers for signals. In one game "two" meant, for the guy on first to steal. Shiner would be apparently bellowing encouragement at the batter, saying: "Make it be in there," or "he can't find the plate," etc. And then maybe in the same tone he'd say, "Let's get two runs this inning," or "take two strikes, he's wild". And the runner and batter knew what was expected. The latter had to take the pitch and try legally to block the catcher a little in his throw to second, and the runner had to get a lead, be on his toes and run like the deuce as the hurler's arm went up. But such a signal couldn't be used often or it would be spotted.

* * * * * *

THERE ARE DOZENS of ways to signal, using words; touching some part of the face with any number of fingers, hitching the belt, pulling down the cap, getting down on one or the other knee, standing so-and-so- in the coaching box, etc. And the chief times for signals are (a) to bunt, (b) the hit and run, (c) take one, (d) steal, (e) double steal, (f) squeeze play, (g) battery signals. Not only is the bunt sign flashed for a sacrifice but sometimes when a double play is feared on a slow runner with a low-ball hurler showing good control. The hit and run usually comes up with a guy on first and a righthand hitter who drives toward right field. Some "dumb" steals result from a hit and run that missed fire.

* * * * * *

THE DOUBLE STEAL usually is tried with men on first and third, two out and a weak hitter up. The squeeze play is a gamble late in the tilt for a tying or winning run and requires a good "blocking" batter and a fast runner. The standard sign by the catcher for a pitchout—that is a waste ball to try and pick a runner off—is a closed fist. The receiver must be careful and keep his signals out of sight by all but the pitcher as the rival coaches or rival players on base are always trying to read his signs. Infielders often have signs between themselves to cover a base, to trap a runner or cut off a throw. Sometimes a coach's advice to a batter contains a key word meaning that he knows the next pitch will be a curve. However, most batters prefer to make their own guesses and take no chances on getting wrong info, sometimes with malice aforethought. There are just a few slants on signalling and what is meant by inside ball. Watch for it next game.

* * * * * *

AND NOW with a good group assured and the schedule set for the Central Ontario lacrosseta, affiliated with the O.A.L.A. as intermediates, the Petes can get down to work real hard on finishing up their new box and getting in plenty of stiff workouts before the season commences. Dope on last night's group meeting in Cobourg is in elsewhere this ore. The boys are getting anxious to get out there around with their sticks once more and it won't be long. A local executive meeting will be held in Duffus' at eight bells Monday p.m. to name the manager and coach and handle other items of business.

* * * * * *

STRIKES US that the tendency in local sports—that is, in the more important leagues—is to branch out to include district teams. And, in some cases Central Ontario ones. Senior ball and lacrosse are examples of the latter. And look at how our Senior City Hockey League is half made up of district teams like Lakefield, Millbrook and Bewdley. Girls' softball expects at least ten out-of-town teams this summer and maybe more. Men's softball would welcome Omemee and Bridgenorth in. Even the Southend Softball Circuit has Keene included. Soccer, cricket, tennis, etc., have the same tendency to some extent. Time was when district sports organized among themselves and city leagues were closed corporations. It is not so to-day and, we feel, it is now a better layout for sports in one section.

* * * * * *

UP AND DOWN Sports' Rialto. All entries to the Church Softball League must be in by Monday e'en... Men's City Softball League holds a huddle Tuesday night in Duffus' at eight.... Girls' Softball Loop meets at eight next Friday p.m. in Duffus', an open session.... All Saints' pickists, local junior champs last winter, will be banqueted Tuesday night at 6.30 in the Paragon.... Wally Berger of the Bees ropes in 12 G's per annum.... Ivan Fletcher regards with pessimism his Keene gal softballers; he does it every year—and every year they're up there in the playoffs!.... Lou Brooks is talking rugby already yet.... "X" Circus last night drew a better crowd than the previous gloaming.... No workouts at Riverside Park for some time yet as the water in the outfield is still high.... Those contributing sports items to this paper are asked please to get 'em in early; the night the games are played is even better.... Got to go now and lie on a bank by a babbling brook—yeah, nuts in May!

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE-CRACKER.

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, I see where we open the ball season with the Oshawa gang which is the present Ontario champs coming here for the fixture what grys off the lid for what should oughta be a rip-roaring season. We mighta as well start right in by combing them Oshawans. It will count just as much licking them in May as later on. The champs is standing pat with pretty much the same lineup as last year but judging from recent doings in the motor burg I wouldn't be surprised if the umps walked out there May 24th and hollered "Battery for Oshawa, Homer Martin and Hugh Thompson". Anyway we understand the team is playing here by the courtesy of the United Automobile Workers of America and they probably will wear creats with "C.I.O." on them. We just would like to warn them right now they will probably think Mitch Hepburn is pitching against them before they get through with the local gang.

The Leaves Go Nuts

The big sports feature this week, old timer, has been the mad spurt of them Toronto Maple Leaves. When they hit for the north from the training camp even the press agent what was writing up their doings figgered they could win 2 games in a row from a Class Z outfit. They only had a kid infield, a doubtful looking pitching brigade and a run-of-the-mine outfield and I gotta a bunch Mister Dan Howley was only praying the outfit would hang together long enough on the 1st road trip so they would not drop clean outta the league before he could land some reinforcements from somewheres to fill some of the weak spots.

Ain't lookit what happened. The Leaves gons clean crazy right off the reek. First they goes into Baltimore and wallops the Orioles 3 straight in their hardnox park where home runs is knocked over the fence with the knuckles. Then they moved into Syracuse and grabbed off the 2 games played there and then over to the Giants farm at Jersey City where already they had cleaned up the 1st 2 games as this is wrote giving them 7 wins in a row. On paper and on their records the Leafs don't look that good and mebbe they ain't but anyway they give Toronto the best start in many a moon and that means a good many dollars will roll in at the box office for the early games that would have been absent without leave otherwise.

Something Wrong Here

By the way Mac, some of them Toronto sport writers deserve a orchid this week for raving over what they called daring base running by the Leaves. The Globe-mail had a big heading about it the other day but when you read the story you seen that all that happened was that 3 leaves which had singled with men on second had gone a extra base on the throw to the plate to stop the bird coming home from keystone station. That don't rate no daring baseball; that's just automatic for even a overaged catcher or a spavined pitcher will ramble down to second everytime under the same set of circumstances. In fact he'd probably drew a fine if he didn't. Looks like Dan Cowley better start a school for baseball writers or the Globemail should send a hurry call out for Mister Bert Perry what used to dish out the baseball dope for the old Mail. Mister Perry knew his baseball and that rave about daring baseball makes folks kinda wonder if the present crop does.

Well that seems to be enough fan fodder for the nosce—careful of that spelling Mac—and so I just do a blackout here.

Sportifully Yours,
A WISE CRACKER.

NEW ZEALANDERS TAKE SPOTLIGHT IN OLD COUNTRY

M. L. Page Captains Strong Cricket Team On English Tour

PLAY THREE TESTS

LONDON, May 1 (CP)—Crowned county champion last summer for the first time in 60 years, Derbyshire's prospects of duplicating the feat lend interest to the championship competition as English cricketers swing into action this season. The Midlanders' achievement broke the strangle-hold of Yorkshire and Lancashire on first-class cricket honors.

The visit of New Zealand cricketers provides England's test selection committee with another opportunity of experimenting in an effort to find a combination capable of wresting the Ashes from Australia in 1938.

Three test matches will be played against New Zealand who have yet to be successful against the Mother Country. Official international tilts between the two countries since 1930 have been notable for the number of draws. Of 11 games played, England won the only two fought to a finish, rain being the deciding factor in most of the others.

Led by M. L. Page, Canterbury star, the Antipodeans hope for success in at least one of the tests arranged. The first will be played at Lord's, June 26, the second at Manchester, starting July 24, and the final encounter is booked for the Oval, Aug 14. New Zealand's first important game will be against Surrey, May 8 and subsequent fixtures include all the first-class county teams.

Old Country players start the campaign with the hope that weather conditions will show an improvement over last season. One of the wettest summers for many years ruined scores of "gates," causing serious financial losses to all county clubs, some being forced to issue appeals to replenish depleted treasuries.

Only 118 matches were brought to a definite conclusion compared with 161 in 1935. The number of drawn games increased from 73 to 118. Yorkshire had a good excuse for not retaining the championship won in 1935, no fewer than 16 of the northern county's fixtures being drawn, most of them through wet weather.

Noted Players Missing

Two famous professionals, A. P. "Tich" Freeman, diminutive Kent spin-bowler, and Philip Mead, Hampshire's leading batsman for two decades, will be missing from first-class competition. The cricket world was surprised when county officials announced the veterans had been released. Freeman, now 48 years old, will play for Walsall in the Birmingham and District League while Mead, who has passed the half-century mark, will be coach at Framlingham College.

Possibility that Kenneth Farnes, rangy fast bowler, will not be available for Essex is seen in a report that he is considering a scholastic appointment in Australia. Farnes bowled successfully against the Aussies in the fourth and fifth test matches a few months ago.

Gloucestershire and Somerset, noted cricketing counties, are confident of maintaining all-round strength that carried them to fourth and seventh place in the championship table last year. The former jumped from 15th position and the Cider County from the 14th. Lancashire, dubbed the failure of the year, fell from fourth to 11th.

Gloucestershire's season closed with a tragedy a few hours after the final match had been played and won. D. A. C. Page, captain, was killed when motoring to his home at Cirencester, his death coming at a time when the county had undergone a remarkable revival.

ARRANGE FOR REPLAY.

SHEFFIELD, England (CP).—In the event of Sunderland and Preston drawing in the Cup final at Wembley, May 1, the Football Association has arranged for the replay on Sheffield Wednesday's ground May 5.

RECORD PRIZE SHOOT.

SYDNEY, Australia (CP).—Claimed to be a record for rifle-shooting prize money, $50,000 will be awarded at the big shoot in New South Wales next February in connection with the 150th anniversary celebrations.

War Admiral Finishes 6 Lengths Ahead

Breezing past the post six lengths in front of the field, War Admiral, trim son of the great Man o' War, is shown winning the Chesapeake stakes at Havre de Grace, Md., and turning in a performance that changed many a forecaster's prediction on the outcome of the Kentucky Derby on May 8. Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger rode the winner, who competed against four other Kentucky eligibles.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Although the "official" opening of our Lawn Bowling Club takes place on the 24th of May—we might say the "semi-official" opening took place last night.

It was the occasion of the joint meeting of the membership and games committees, and while the attendance was not what we expected it to be, still those who did come out all took part in good healthy discussion—and that's what the meeting was called for.

Robt. Hendry, chairman of the games committee outlined the season's program of activities and after the boys all took a fling at discussing the different clauses it was unanimously decided to leave it all to the games committee.

Geo. Gimblett, chairman of the membership committee gave a brief account of the work done by his committee and while a great number of the skips have responded with their quota of players there are still some rinks that are not completed. If all the skips bat un to a 100 per cent it will mean our club will have forty-two rinks, an increase of four over last year—but, as we understand it no rink will be accepted unless there are four men on it, and each player must sign a membership card.

In view of the fact that we are still short a few men yet it has been decided to postpone the "zero" hour until next Saturday night, (May 8)—and we believe that date is final.

W. J. Oke, president of the club acted as chairman of the meeting and he announced at the beginning it would be thrown wide open for suggestions and also for constructive criticism. We believe that those meetings do a lot of good for bowling and the boys get a better insight as to what is going on.

Remember When—

Aga Khan's great three-year-old colt, Bahram out of the 1930 Derby winner, Blenheim, started on the trail of the mythical "triple crown" two years ago today with an easy victory in the Two Thousand Guineas at Newmarket, England. Bahram went on to win the crown with Derby and St. Leger victories.

Most of the cast of "Anthony and Anna," a play which has been running in London since 1935, boast that they have played their parts in three reigns.

Queen Mary Beats Central 12 To 8

Queen Mary copped a 12-8 decision over Central in a tidy School Softball League tilt last evening on the west end diamond. A five-run splash in the final frame put the finishing touch on for the victors after a close struggle between the well-matched teams. The hurling on both sides was fair with some good fielding and hard, timely hitting shown. In the latter department the Q. M. boys had a distinct edge. Central started strong but were held safely in check after the first stanza. The teams:

Central: Lomax, c; Millen, ss; Ascott, 3b; Weese, cf; Graham, rf; Lee, p; Halerow, 2b; Clarke, lf; Moorhead, 1b.

Queen Mary: Mortimer, ss; Neiman, c; Morley, lf; Weaver, p; Ackford, 2b; Smith, cf; McBride, 1b; Horton, 2b; Boubley, rf.

Score by innings:

Central	4	1	1	0	0	—	8
Queen Mary	1	0	2	0	3	5	—	12

Mike Kelley, president of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, and Ossie Dorge, secretary of the O.A.L.A., assured the local delegation at the group lacrosse meeting last night in Cobourg that they would be here later this month to officially open the new box on George Street. Representatives from Peterborough were Doug Miller, Charlie Calnon, Bud Fisher, George Mein, and Fred Nelson.

While the meeting was primarily to draw up the schedule, this was not accomplished. However, the teams discussed their wants and the schedule will be drawn up this coming week. They agreed to a triple schedule, with a winner being declared by September 1st. It will open in two weeks' time. Several other matters of business were discussed at the session.

Pete King on O.A.L.A.

Pete King of Peterborough, who has been Eastern representative of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association, representing this league, Doug Miller will be the local representative on the group executive. Carling Kelly of Trenton Airport, resigned as secretary-treasurer, fearing he might be moved at any time, and Ross Burley of Trenton was appointed in his place.

President Harry Moore conducted the meeting, which was well attended and saw much enthusiasm in evidence. The visiting officials from Toronto congratulated Peterborough on its work in organizing the Central Ontario League and in building the new box here. They pointed out that the game is in for a real revival, huge crowds on the Pacific Coast and in the West attending games last year, and indications pointing to a big year in lacrosse this season from coast to coast in Canada.

Prince Of Wales Beats Queen Mary

Prince of Wales swamped Queen Mary 34-14 in a junior School Softball League game yesterday on the Wales' diamond. The tilt went five frames and was a terrific slugfest with poor pitching and fielding shown, but with the batters banging the ball to all corners of the lot. The winners tallied five runs in the initial inning, 12 in the second, one six and 11 in the fourth. Queen Mary got three in their first, five in the second, three more in the third, and another trio in the fourth. They were blanked in the fifth. The teams:

Prince of Wales — Crowe, p; Doughty, c; Gardner, 1b; Hotrum, 2b; Henry, 3b; Parnall, ss; Harrison, lf; Braund, cf; Saunders, rf.

Umpires—Neiman and Scott.

JERSEY CITY STOPS LEAFS 4-1 DECISION

Veteran Ben Cantwell Breaks Toronto's Winning Streak

STILL IN TOP PLACE

Bisons Knock Bears Off 4-3 While Montreal Bumps Baltimore 5-2

(By the Associated Press.)

If Bill Terry wasn't so well supplied with pitchers on his New York Giants he might be seen casting furtive eyes across the Hudson River where the veteran Ben Cantwell seems to be enjoying a new lease on life with Jersey City's Little Giants in the International League.

Sold down the river last January by the Boston Bees after completing a 10-year stay in the National League, the 35-year-old curve ball artist appears to have found himself in the commodious surroundings of the new Roosevelt Stadium in Jersey City.

Cantwell, who once played for the Varsity Giants himself, followed up his four-hit performance of last Friday with his second winning effort as many starts yesterday as the Little Giants stopped the victory string of Toronto's wonder "Kids" with a 4-1 decision.

Touched For 10

The veteran was touched for 10 hits, but except for the fifth inning when the Leafs put together two singles, a pass to score their lone run, managed to keep things under control.

Despite their loss, the Leafs remained in first place as the Buffalo Bisons trimmed the second place Newark Bears 4 to 3. Truett Sewell won a pitching duel from Vito Tamulis when Ollie Carnegie belted a triple with Sewell and Johnny Tyler on base in the eighth.

Paced by Irvine Jeffries' three-run homer, Rabbit Maranville's Montrealers defeated Baltimore 5-2 for their third straight victory and the Orioles sixth consecutive loss. Mule Gray belted a four-baser for the Birds.

Syracuse's Chiefs were forced to 11 innings before they annexed their second straight win over the Rochester Red Wings 3-2.

The Leafs had several chances to set up a lead for Meola, especially in the third, fourth and fifth innings, when they bunched seven of their ten hits to produce only one run. It took three singles and a walk to manufacture Toronto's only tally in the fifth. Madura opened with a single to centre, but was rubbed out when Gantenbein bounded into a double play, Mayo Smith walked, went to second as Petoskey bounced a hit off Wilson's chest, and scored on Bobby Porter's line single to left. Redmond made a hard catch of Walsh's pop foul to end the inning.

Meola Is Charitable.

Those two first-inning runs scored by the homesters were virtual gifts from Meola. The hefty Toronto right-hander passed both Gomes and Wilson to start the game, and they advanced on Lee's sacrifice. Gomes came home after Jolley filed to Petoskey, and Anton's single brought in Wilson.

With two out of the fifth, Jose Gomes came all the way home on his infield pop fly. Madura made an inglorious muff on the catch as he trotted in, and Meola, retrieving the ball, threw to head off Gomes at second. The trouble was there was nobody covering the base, and the ball went past Porter into deep right field, as Gomes cantered across the pay-off spot. Singles by Cantwell, Wilson and Lee provided the only other score of the game in the seventh.

Although the Leafs outhit the Giants 10 to 9, their blows were spaced over six different innings. In the third Madura and Gantenbein singled but no runner reached third. The next frame Walsh and Heath followed a pass to Porter with singles but they could not score, and in the fifth it took a walk and three singles to bring home a runner.

Frank Madura, Ted Petoskey and Jim Walsh slapped out a pair of safeties each for Toronto. Don Ross went hitless for the first time, but Joe Gantenbein and Tommy Heath stretched their consecutive game hitting record to eight with infield taps.

Batting Punch Fails

Snapping of their victory string at seven games didn't bother the Leafs. Meola pitched good enough ball to win, but batting punch failed the team for the first time. Howley will shoot Johnny Pomorski against the Giants to-morrow in the fourth and final game of the series. Glen Gabler, brother of "Gabbo" of New York Giants, will be on the mound for Travis Jackson's crew.

Jackson, in beating out a bunt in the eighth inning, fell and twisted his knee. The injury will keep him out for two months, the Jersey City skipper announced.

Sunday the Leafs invade the lair of Newark Bears, for a four-game series to decide league leadership. Jim Pattison will pitch in one of Sunday's games but Howley doesn't know who to send in for the other game. Babe Davis was originally scheduled, but he complained of a sore shoulder to-day. If he feels all right, he'll likely pitch the opener.

WINDSOR FORDS TRIM B.C. 28-23

First Defeat For Thunderbirds Since Entering Provincial Playoffs

By Ivan Corbett
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

VANCOUVER, May 1.—(CP). — Windsor Fords, fighting with championship courage to retain the Canadian men's senior basketball title, broke University of British Columbia's long string of victories last night and are determined to even the best-of-five series at two games each when the teams clash again to-night.

Fords flashed a brilliant attack to win the third game 28-23. The Vancouver Thunderbirds had not been beaten since they entered the Provincial play-offs more than a month ago, having won the first two games of the Windsor series 31-29 and 31-30.

Setting at rest rumors they had called their star centre, Julius Goldman, from Windsor, by airplane, Fords took the floor without the ace sharpshooter who remained at home for business reasons. They ripped past the Thunderbird guards almost at will in the opening plays and scored nine points without a reply in the first 10 minutes.

Windsor was never headed throughout the game, leading 13-4 at halftime. Referee Jewell called numerous fouls on Fords in the early minutes, but the Collegiate were unable to make them count.

Fords, who saw victory snatched from their grasp in each of the first two games just before the final bell, took no chances last night. They were faster getting back under their own basket to defend it from the fast-breaking Collegians.

Wiseman was the most effective man on the floor and shared scoring honors with Varsity's Jimmy Bardsley, each with seven points.

BONERS IN MOVIES PROVIDE FANS FUN

Expert Employed To Check R.C.M.P. Scrip Finds Forty In Two Reels

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—(AP).—Hunting movie boners, the game thousands of fans love to play, is creating a well-paid profession in Hollywood—the technical advisor.

A flood of critical letters now follows even a slight mistake on the screen. The fixers, as writers in "How could you be so dumb?"

Today inquiry disclosed that such an oldtime subject as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police isn't being filmed any more until an expert looks over the script. Bruce Carruthers, an ex-mountie, has finished this job for a two-reeler. He spotted two-score mistakes.

The first scene for the troop, while on horses, to salute the flag. "The men do not salute mounted," suggested Carruthers, "they merely sit strictly at attention."

Another sequence called for the sergeant, on meeting a fur-draped girl, to declare, "That silver fox pelt sets you off like a million pounds."

"He should say 'dollars,'" the expert corrected. "No woman would like to look so heavy."

His final suggestion was not technically a part of his job. He happened to notice it and threw it in gratis.

All wrong, pointed out the expert. If Angus was a Scot and a trader, he would be sure to say, "Oh, I dinna know that it's such a good pelt. I've seen better many times."

ANCIENT AMPULLA RESEMBLES EAGLE

Sacred Vessel, One Of Oldest In Abbey, Contains The Oil

LONDON, May 1 (CP) — Among the many sacred and priceless articles used in the Coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth is the Ampulla, shaped in the form of an eagle, which contains the oil used for the anointing.

The Ampulla is about nine inches in height, weighing about 10 ounces. It is older, in part at least, than 1660, which makes it the more interesting since practically all the present coronation regalia is comparatively modern, having been made for the Coronation of Charles II, following destruction of crown property during the Commonwealth.

The spoon into which the oil is actually poured is of course a separate item of silvergilt, the handle of which is set with four pearls, and is believed to date from the 13th century.

The Ampulla is something called the Golden Eagle, since it is of gold in the form of an eagle with wings outstretched.

Gordon Monkman Named Executive

Gordon Monkman of Peterborough was elected first vice-president of the Canadian Allied Textile Trades Association at the annual meeting and banquet of the Association in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Friday. John M. Lair of Toronto is the new president.

It was announced at the meeting that members of the Association employed over 3,000 persons, and had a payroll of $3,000,000. Among the speakers was John Collins, the Trade Commissioner for New Zealand.

If a Briton lives to 70 years he will walk 49,000 miles, says a London juggler of statistics.

CHAPTER 27

"A TYPIST!" exclaimed Mrs. Smith scornfully when Jacqueline suggested that for herself as a means of livelihood now that she was determined not to marry Jim. "Ten or fifteen dollars a week and a stuffy little flat somewhere like this one, with milk bottles all over the doorstep, and someone always in the bathroom! And if you don't marry Jim Asson, what's going to happen? About the money, I mean. I borrowed $1,000 from Colonel Lutman, and he's got to be paid back somehow. And then there's the money for the fares."

"Oh, hang the money!" exclaimed Jacqueline impatiently. "I'm sick of the sound of the word. I don't know where the money's coming from: it isn't coming from Jim Asson."

Her mother sighed.

"I'm sure I can't think what you've got against Jim Asson. I think he's thrilling—just my idea of what a husband should be."

"Heavens!"

"And it's all so sudden," wailed her mother. "Just when I thought that everything was going so smoothly! But I ought to have expected something of the sort. I ought to have known it was all too good to be true. You don't think of anyone but yourself. You never have. You don't think of me and all I've done for you all these years, all the things I've gone without so that you should have the best chance I could give you." She produced a handkerchief and dabbed her eyes. "And now it's all useless, and I suppose I've got to go on with the same old life, pinching and scraping and never having a decent dress to my back, just because you've taken a sudden dislike to Jim Asson. And you don't care. You don't care what happens to me, or what I've got to put up with. And what will Colonel Lutman say?"

Jacqueline gave a shrug.

"Not much, I imagine. And in any case I don't care what he says. I don't care what anyone says. I'm not marrying Jim Asson."

The older woman was weeping without restraint now.

"You're cruel, Jacqueline," she sobbed. "You're cruel and hard and heartless. I don't believe you'll ever marry anybody. I can't think what's the matter with you. You don't get it from your father. I'm sure if he'd had his way he'd have married no end of people."

"Oh, I'll marry someone some day, mother," comforted Jacqueline. "I can't promise it will be someone who'll make you an allowance of $2,500 a year, like Jim Asson..."

"It wasn't $2,500: it was $5,000," sobbed her mother. "And now I suppose I shall have to struggle on with the wretched $1,500 a year from your Uncle Alan. And he doesn't even pay that punctually. The last payment is more than a month overdue, and for all he cares I might have been starving." She sighed. "I probably shall starve. But you won't care as long as everything's as you wish it to be. You won't worry your head about what happens to me."

There came a knock at the door, and a moment later it opened and Colonel Lutman came into the room. Mrs. Smith hastily dried her eyes, got up, and went to meet him.

"Ah, Colonel Lutman, I'm so glad you have come. Perhaps you can bring this girl to her senses. I'm sure I can't make head or tail of it. Some long rigmarole about not marrying Jim Asson."

Colonel Lutman's serene expression gave place to a frown, and he glanced quickly at Jacqueline.

"Not marry Jim?" he exclaimed. "My dear Mrs. Smith, I think you must have misunderstood her. Jacqueline has given her word, and I can hardly believe...."

"You will have to believe, Colonel Lutman," interrupted Jacqueline. "It's perfectly true. I've just told mother I'm not marrying Jim Asson."

Colonel Lutman adjusted his eyeglass.

"I see," he said thoughtfully. "As definite as that, is it? But isn't this rather a sudden decision?"

Jacqueline shrugged her shoulders.

"So was the engagement, if it comes to that."

"Yes—quite," agreed Colonel Lutman. "But that, my dear Jacqueline, is the way love takes one when one is young." He turned to Mrs. Smith with a reassuring smile. "If I were you, Mrs. Smith, I wouldn't take this too much to heart. Jacqueline, I am sure, isn't serious. Very often, you know, when a young girl becomes engaged she has a sudden revulsion of feeling like this, but it is only a passing phase—just a little nervousness as the wedding day approaches. To-morrow, no doubt, she'll be ready to go out with you and buy her trousseau."

"Don't bank on that, Colonel Lutman" said Jacqueline. "This isn't a passing phase. I have quite made up my mind, and nothing you can say will make me alter it."

"Nothing?"

"Nothing."

"I see," said Colonel Lutman gravely. "Well, I wouldn't be too sure about that. This is a very serious business for Jim, and I shall use all my influence to persuade you to reconsider your decision."

Jacqueline shook her head.

"She's so obstinate," sighed Mrs. Smith. "She just stands here and says 'I won't marry Jim', and that is all you can get out of her. I'm sure I don't know what we're going to do about it. After all I've done for her!" Mrs. Smith was wiping her eyes again, and Colonel Lutman laid a sympathetic hand on her shoulder.

"Don't distress yourself, my dear Mrs. Smith," he said. "It is naturally a little upsetting, but if you will leave the matter in my hands, I feel sure I shall be able to make Jacqueline—er—take a more reasonable view of it. She must remember that she has a duty to her mother."

"I do remember that, Colonel Lutman," said Jacqueline, "and I've come to the conclusion that the best way to do my duty to my mother is to have nothing to do with Jim Asson."

"Indeed!" said Colonel Lutman, and there was no mistaking the hint of hostility in his voice, "and may one inquire why? Only yesterday morning, I understand, you went to Mr. Stuckey's office and signed the deed, and evidently fully intended to marry Jim; and now you drop this bombshell. All of us, I think—Jim and your mother and myself, as Jim Asson's trustee—are entitled to some explanation. Why the sudden change of mind?"

Jacqueline's eyes met Colonel Lutman's searchingly.

"Can't you think of any possible explanation, Colonel Lutman?"

"My dear Jacqueline, it leaves me bewildered," said the Colonel. "I must say that it seems to me a most extraordinary way to behave."

"So selfish!" exclaimed Mrs. Smith. "Just like her father! And as obstinate as a mule. Look at her chin!"

"Well, the fact is, Colonel Lutman," said Jacqueline, "that I never should have got engaged to Jim at all, I don't know him very well, do I? As a matter of fact, when I promised to marry him I really didn't know who he was or anything about him, except that his name was Jim Asson. I knew nothing at all about his people or his past or anything connected with him that was really important. I had no right to promise to marry him without knowing a great deal more about him—especially about his past. When a girl's going to marry a man, his past is important, you know."

"My dear, you can take it from me that it's not nearly so important as the future," said her mother. "A thousand a year that you've spent doesn't matter nearly as much as a thousand a year that you're going to spend."

"I'm afraid I don't follow," said Colonel Lutman. "If you cared enough for Jim Asson a few days ago to promise to marry him when you knew so little about him, I can't see why today, when you know no more about him than you did, you should suddenly change your mind."

"Oh, but I do" said Jacqueline with a smile. "Make no mistake about that, Colonel Lutman. I know quite a good deal about Jim Asson to day."

HEAVY LIQUOR BILL

Brantford 'Bootlegger' Bought $480 Worth of Liquor in Past 12 Months.

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 1 (CP) James McArthur, Brantford, was sentenced to-day to two months in jail after being convicted on a charge of keeping liquor for sale. McArthur's home was raided by Chief Harry Stanley Feb. 20, the police finding that the defendant had bought nearly $480.00 worth of liquor in the past 12 months.

The defence claimed there were six adult residents in the home, that amount set at about $10 a week for liquor and beer was not an inordinate amount, especially when it was known that many friends visited the home.

Bedtime Story
By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MAY FLOWERS.

"Nurse Jane! Nurse Jane!" called Uncle Wiggily in his hollow stump bungalow one morning as he heard the muskrat lady housekeeper creeping around the kitchen.

"Yes, Mr. Longears, What is it?" squeaked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy as she tied the pancake turner on her tail, for there were to be pancakes for breakfast that morning.

"Did they come?" asked Uncle Wiggily eagerly from the top of the stairs, where he stood in his bathrobe and slippers.

"Did who come?" repeated Nurse Jane. "Do you mean the Bad Chaps? I hope not if you do."

"I hope the same," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "No, I don't mean Bad Chaps. But I'm quite sure they didn't come or you would have known what I meant without asking. Never mind. I'll go look for them."

A Secret?

"What was it Mr. Longears wanted, Janie?" asked the rabbit lady wife hopping into the kitchen to help Nurse Jane get breakfast.

"He wouldn't tell me," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Oh, ho!" whispered Mrs. Longears. "Another mystery, eh! We must see about this, Nurse Jane."

"Indeed we must, Mrs. Longears," agreed Nurse Jane.

"I'll get a quick breakfast for myself," whispered the rabbit lady. "Then I'll be ready to follow Wiggy when he goes out to find what he asked you about without telling. You see the children get off to school and I'll follow Wiggy."

"It shall be done!" whispered Nurse Jane.

When Uncle Wiggily had finished his breakfast and the rabbit children—forty seven of them—had finished theirs, Mrs. Longears hid behind the gas stove. Soon the children had gone to say their lessons to the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School.

Then Uncle Wiggily went hopping out the back door, whistling and twinkling his pink nose.

"Going adventuring, Mr. Longears?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Oh, yes, maybe so," answered the rabbit indifferent like and nonchalant.

"If they come what shall I do with them?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Oh, they won't come now—I'll have to go after them," said Mr. Longears. His wife, hiding behind the stove, heard this. She wondered. She heard Nurse Jane say:

"You didn't tell me what you are going after, did you, Mr. Longears?"

"No," said Uncle Wiggily, calm like and indifferent, "I didn't."

Follows Him.

Away he hopped, over the fields and through the woods. Mrs. Longears hopped behind him, keeping out of sight and sound. She saw her rabbit husband stop and look down at the ground. He smelled the wind then, all of a sudden he joyfully cried:

"Here they are! Here they are! Hurray! Right on time!"

"My goodness! What can he have found?" thought Mrs. Longears. Before she knew it she was close behind her husband. But he didn't see or hear her. He was too busy stooping down and picking something.

Suddenly he jumped up. Then he saw his wife and, twinkling his pink nose at her in a jolly way he laughed and said:

"April showers bring May flowers! Here they are, my dear! I went out to see if I could find some flowers for you this first day of May. And here they are! Hurra!"

"Hurray! Thank you, Wiggy, my dear!" laughed Mrs. Longears as she took the bouquet. So they were both happy. And if spinach doesn't put strawberry ice cream on itself to make believe it's a watermelon, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily on guard.

CHATHAM VICTOR IN FIGHT TO SAVE ITS WATERWORKS

Five-Foot Wall Of Sandbags Saves Plant—River Drops Nearly 2 Inches An Hour

DAMAGE UNESTIMATED

CHATHAM, Ont., May 1.—(CP)—Chatham to-day had won its fight against the worst flood in its history.

While homes and business places in the valley were under several feet of water—and will remain so for several days—the health and well-being of the population had been safeguarded as a result of the battle staged at the City Water Works.

While few persons realized it, the water works was the focal point of interest. Had the turbulent Thames, which rose to the unprecedented height of 21 feet 6 inches above normal inundated the plant, the city would have been deprived of drinking water, fire protection, and light. Piped waters were kept out by a stout five-foot breastwork of sandbags and clay.

At the crest of the flood reached the city, officials were relieved when they observed the rampaging river remain at the same level. From then on the receding was fractional, but it was enough to satisfy the workers that their work had not been in vain. The river had gone down 8 inches to-day and was receding at the rate of 1¼ inches an hour.

While officials rejoiced over the winning fight at the waterworks, the turbulent river had created extensive damage which could not be estimated.

Considerable Damage.

Havoc has been wrought in the plants and business places in the River Valley, extensive damage done to the homes on William, Water, Dover and Thames streets, while all over the city water had backed up sewers to fill basements.

Yesterday and through the night, platoons of the city fire brigade stood ready, responding to numerous calls to remove people from homes, or pump out basements of hospitals, schools and the larger buildings.

Plans were being formulated to-day by Red Cross Society officials to aid those who have suffered from the flood. While there have been no cases reported of extreme hardship during the height of the present disaster, Red Cross work will be valuable when the mop up starts. Homes will require several days to dry out and disinfecting will be necessary.

"Unless some drastic break down occurs at our waterworks we have the flood whipped," said Mayor W. D. Colby.

No estimate was availble of the amount of damage to business establishments hit by the flood, but it will be considerable. Water was in most of the basements of downtown stores, but merchants had taken the precaution to raise stock into upper rooms.

'FORGED' TELEGRAM STARTS AN UPROAR

Duplessis Backs Member In Charge Against Chaloult—Who Denies It

QUEBEC, May 1 (CP)—Echoes of a charge Rene Chaloult (Un-Kamouraska) "forged" a telegram last election day to give the impression he would be named to the Duplessis Cabinet roiled around the Legislature yesterday. Auguste Boyer (Un-Chateauguay), and Premier Duplessis laid the charge in a session Thursday night at which the dissident Nationalist member for Kamouraska denied the accusation.

The member for Chateauguay interrupted a speech by Mr. Chaloult with loud asides about the telegram. He finally asked the Nationalist point blank whether he had "forged a telegram." Mr. Chaloult declared such charges were unworthy of a member of the House, but Premier Duplessis insisted he give a direct answer.

The Premier said he had affidavits to prove that on August 17, 1936, the member for Kamouraska "forged" a telegram "I was supposed to have sent him summoning him to Three Rivers for a purpose I have never considered, to name him Minister."

"That's false, absolutely false and perjury," replied Mr. Chaloult amid an uproar.

"I'll turn the affidavits over to you and you can arrest the people who signed them," declared Mr. Duplessis and the Nationalist insisted he would be glad to have the arrests made. Liberals and Nationalists jumped to their feet to protest the accusation and Union Nationale Government members added their voices to the din.

A dozen members were on their feet at once trying to make themselves heard. Emileo Lesage (Un-Abitibi) left his seat and rushed down the side of the House toward Mr. Chaloult's desk but was stopped by a placating fellow-member of the Government.

The Show Windows of the Nation

The merchants of Canada have played an important part in national development. They were in the vanguard of colonization; their business is the axis on which modern trade and commerce revolve.

Every merchant's progress and the value of his service to the community have depended at all times on his ability to keep prospective customers informed of the kind and quality of the goods he could supply. Advertising has been essential to the profitable conduct of his business.

The efficiency of the local daily newspapers as advertising media has been demonstrated more and more conclusively as markets have expanded and the variety of competitive goods has increased.

Today the most successful merchants are those who advertise their products consistently and frequently in their local newspapers. They know the newspapers maintain an intimate contact with every home and that every consumer depends on his daily newspaper for reliable information concerning goods and services available.

Consequently, the advertising columns of the Canadian daily newspapers have become, in a very real sense, the show windows of the nation. They influence the purchases of more than two million families every day.
